D.C. Woman's Attacker Is Condemned To Death

Conviction Comes After Curran's Plea To Make Streets In Capital Safe

James R. McKenzie, 21, was condemned to death by a District Court jury last night for the rape of Mrs. Vada K. Abarca, 26, in a Fourteenth Street laundry agency on June 24.

The 12 men jurors deliberated only an hour and 48 minutes after hearing District Attorney Edward M. Curran's demand for the extreme penalty.

"These crimes have got to be stopped," Curran told the jurors, "and you are the ones that can stop them. I ask you for a verdict that will make the streets of Washingon safe for women."

Speedy Prosecution

The conviction came 35 days after Mrs. Abarca was robbed and ravished in the laundry agency at 3427 Fourteenth Street Northwest by a Negro. It was one of the most rapid prosecutions on record here.

Mrs. Abarca testified that she was alone in the place when McKenzie came in, locked the door and threatened her with a gun. She said he rifled the cash register, then asked for her purse and took $10 of her money. Forcing her into the back room, Mrs. Abarca said, the man tied her hands and attacked her, holding his gun at her temple. He fled, leaving her gagged and tied to a clothes rack.

Telltale Hair Found on Him

Two days later Mrs. Abarca rode through the adjoining neighborhood in a police car with two detectives. "Oh, my God! There's the man!" she exclaimed when she saw McKenzie on a street corner. While she collapsed in hysterics, Detective Sergts. Elmer F. Lewis and Daniel H. Jones pounced on McKenzie.

The man denied the charge, claimed at first that he was with a girl friend, and later that he was at home when the attack was committed.

Found on his clothes was a hair which Deputy Coroner Dr. Richard Rosenberg testified belonged to a white person. By chemical tests, Dr. Rosenberg found blood stains on McKenzie's person.

Miss Katherine Harper, 30, 1035 Quebec Place Northwest, was with the officers when McKenzie was caught. She said he was the man who robbed her in another laundry agency the day after Mrs. Abarca was attacked.

Appeal Planned

Defense Counsel John H. Wilson, believing that Miss Harper's identification was open to question, tried in vain during the trial to explore the circumstances of that robbery.

But he was blocked by Federal Judge T. Whitfield Davidson, who said he would not permit "trial of two lawsuits at once."

In appealing for a verdict of not guilty, Wilson urged the jurors to discount Mrs. Abarca's identification, because Government witnesses described her as "highly nervous"

Lightning Fells 3 Children in Takoma Park

2 Youths Drowned; Temperatures in 90's To Plague D. C. Today

Three children were injured by lightning at Takoma Park, Md., one seriously, as an electric storm struck the Washington area last night.

Earlier, two persons were drowned while swimming in the Anacostia and Potomac Rivers as the Capital obtained slight relief from the heat wave, with temperatures remaining below the 82-degree mark.

A return of high, humid temperatures was predicted for today by the Weather Bureau, which held no hope for comfortable weather before Friday at the earliest. The thermometer is expected to soar into the 90's today and tomorrow.

Spaniel Puppy Killed

Sitting in steel chairs under a tree at 103 Trescott Avenue, Takoma Park, as the storm broke, two little girls and a boy were knocked to the ground when a bolt of lightning struck nearby. A black spaniel puppy with them was killed.

Leonard O'Neil, 13, of Lawrence, Mass., visiting Mrs. William Neidlinger at 101 Trescott Avenue, was knocked unconscious and a nerve center was injured. Mary Jo Hardy, 12, of 102 Hilton Avenue, and Charlotte Brown, 13, of 103 Trescott Avenue, suffered minor burns.

The bolt was believed to have struck the chair in which the O'Neil boy sat. In addition to the nerve injury, he suffered severe burns. The lightning threw the dog's body across him as they fell

Joint income tax provisions of the $3,529,200,000 tax bill last night were assured of a separate House vote when Ways and Means Committee spokesmen agreed with House leaders on modifying the tightly-closed tax rule.

House action on the rule was abruptly postponed when a combination of Republicans and some Democrats threatened to upset closed procedure and throw the big bill open to general amendment from the floor.

Fear of revolt on the rule was aggravated by a thumping House defeat dealt a conference report on the revised Senate plant seizure amendment. The House was slated to call up the tax rule next, but adjourned instead while leaders went into a huddle.

Upshot of the leadership conference was: Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee agreed to go before the Rules Committee this morning to ask liberalization of the rule to permit House members to vote on a motion to strike out the joint return requirement.

The controversial provision, approved 15 to 10 by the Ways and Means Committee, would require husbands and wives to file joint income tax returns, forcing those with large incomes into higher surtax brackets to yield an additional 305 million dollars.

As originally drafted, the rule barred floor consideration of any change in this. All noncommittee amendments were ruled out except

GasRationing Plan Forecast in East After Labor Day

By the Associated Press

New York, July 29.—A moderate rationing plan for gasoline and oil among Eastern motorists, to be imposed by the Federal Government immediately after Labor Day, September 1, was forecast today by certain well-informed oil men.

The New York oil men said one of the first curtailment plans likely to be adopted would be the closing of filling stations 12 hours a day—from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m.

Her Faith Is Rewarded

Woman, 75, Going Blind, Gets Wish to See President Fulfilled

"You'll never get to see the President," they told her. But they were wrong.

All the way up on the train to Washington she could hear those mocking voices of the skeptics back home, in Reidsville, Ga.

"You're a 75-year-old woman," said the skeptics. "You're going blind. You've got to be operated on at the County Hospital. You may lose your sight. You can't go trotting off to Washington to see the President.

"Be sensible," they said. "Stay home and have the operation. A woman of your age, practically a great-great-grandmother, can't go off wild—goosechasing 700 miles to Washington to see Mr. Roosevelt."

But Mrs. L. R. P. Jordan has lived a long time. She has reared 24 step-children, seen 65 step-grandchildren and 15 step-great-grandchildren and one step-great-great-grandchild come into the world. She knew in her heart of hearts that you can do something if you want to do it badly enough.

"He'll see me," she said quietly to herself on the way up in the train.

"He must see me. I've got to tell him I love him for what he's done for the poor people of this country.

"I've got to tell him about my brood of 105 children. I've got to tell him they are willing to fight to defend this country of ours. I'll see him."

But it wasn't easy.

"Sorry, the President is engaged in a Cabinet meeting," she was told.

But Mrs. Jordan clung to her hope to see the President before total

Premier Hails Reds' Fight, but Cautions British About Optimism

London, July 29.—Winston Churchill told the British people today that the United States "is giving us aid on a gigantic scale and is advancing in rising wrath and conviction to the very verge of war" with Germany.

But he warned his people solemnly that they must count on their own strength to repel any September invasion gamble by Germany.

Successfully, he defended his Government's direction of industry and labor toward total war organization in a trenchant speech which inundated all but the sharpest peaks of parliamentary criticism. He ended on a high note of resolve to, if need be, "proffer the last drop of our heart's blood" for Britain.

The prime minister refused flatly to name a superminister of production, which a large number of his press and parliamentary critics had demanded. He declared such an appointment would be a "fake and fraud on the public," and challenged Commons to a vote of confidence on the matter.

Russia's Fight Hailed

The debate on production ended quickly without a vote and thus Churchill won a more decisive political victory than any vote of confidence would have been, parliamentary experts declared.

Along with his appraisal of the aid of the United States, the prime minister said "mighty Russia, so treacherously assaulted, has struck back with magnificent strength and courage, and brought prodigious and well deserved slaughter on the Axis armies." But he added:

"All the massive and towering facts which we are entitled to dwell upon must not lead us for a moment to suppose that the worst is over.

British Secret Weapon: Fake Ration Cards

Berlin, July 29 (U.P.).—The Hamburger Fremdenblatt complained today that British planes have been dropping forged clothing ration cards in Germany.

President Roosevelt indicated yesterday that he considers Japan's move into Indo-China to be part of an Axis world-wide plot to dismember democratic nations, while the Netherlands Minister said at the State Department that "in case of extreme emergency" the oil wells and refineries in the East Indies would be "effectively destroyed" by the Dutch.

The Chief Executive, though declining at a press conference to discuss his economic counterattack against Japan on the ground that the Far Eastern situation is so uncertain, refused to treat as two separate questions the German threat in Europe and the Japanese menace in Asia.

"Do you consider the Pacific situation now as more serious than the European situation?" a reporter asked.

Mr. Roosevelt replied that he did not think the question had any meaning, that he would not put the matter on a comparative basis.

Loudon Sees Welles

He simply did not think along those lines, the President stated.

Mr. Roosevelt's quick reply recalled his description of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis in a fireside speech December 29, 1940, when he said:

"Never before since Jamestown and Plymouth Rock has our American civilization been in such danger as now.

"For on September 27, 1940, by an agreement signed in Berlin, three powerful nations, two in Europe and one in Asia, joined themselves together in the threat that if the United States interfered with or blocked the expansion program of these three nations—a program aimed at world control—they would unite in ultimate action against the United States."

Dr. Alexander Loudon, the Netherlands Minister, disclosed to reporters the Dutch plan to render their oilfields useless in case of attack. He came to the State Department for a conference with Acting Secretary Welles.

Carefully refraining from mentioning Japan, Dr. Loudon said that

'Decent of Him,' Senator Says

Stimson Apologizes to Wheeler For Charge of 'Near-Treason'

Secretary Stimson last night apologized to Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, for a statement a week ago implying the latter had intentionally sent circulars to soldiers urging them to participate in an antiwar campaign.

The War Secretary said, however, that an inquiry launched by the War Department has developed "evidence of organized attempts by other persons to arouse disloyalty on the part of the soldiers in the cantonments toward the training plans of their officers."

He said the Army's inquiry indicated that "not three but at least several hundred" of the postcards sent out by Wheeler had fallen into the hands of soldiers. Wheeler had said three of the one million cards sent out were known to have reached soldiers.

WHEELER

STIMSON

The Montanan emphasized that the circulars had been mailed before the question of retaining selectees and National Guardsmen in service had been raised.

The cards, which Wheeler said went to a "cross-section of the population," urged those receiving them to write President Roosevelt that they opposed America's entry into the war.

Secretary Stimson, who declared last week Wheeler was guilty of conduct approaching treason, said last night that on the basis of his later statement the Senator "has shown the absence of any intent to circularize" troops. He added he was sorry that on the "basis of incomplete evidence" he made a statement last week carrying "a contrary implication."

The War Secretary's attack on Senator Wheeler was backed up last Friday by President Roosevelt, who declared the anti-interventionist leader had gone "too far" by his action. Both Democratic and Republican

Early Senate approval by a 2-to-1 margin but trouble ahead in the House was forecast last night for the service extension bill.

Fourteen Senators opposing the Administration resolution to retain selectees, Reservists and National Guardsmen in uniform indefinitely announced following a strategy meeting yesterday that they would not filibuster the measure, debate on which begins today. The group will fight the proposal, but plans no overly long speeches.

Leaders still are talking of a Senate vote by the weekend, or early next week at the latest.

On the House side, however, committee action on the measure was again postponed, and informal polls indicate that a majority of Representatives may vote against retention of the selectees.

The House Military Affairs Committee debated the troop retention proposal for several hours yesterday behind closed doors, and afterward Chairman May predicted favorable action would be taken on the measure this morning. He indicated it

Army Creates 5 Units With Own Air Support

New Commands Similar To Those Germans Used So Successfully

In a move to weld Army aviation and ground troops into a well-knit combat team, the War Department yesterday announced the creation of five new-type units to be known as Air Support Commands.

They will form a part of the Air Forces Combat Command and include all types of aerial support for ground troops—dive-bombers, horizontal light bombers, observation and photographic planes and balloons, as well as gliders and air transports for parachutists and airborne infantry.

The plan follows somewhat the Nazi program of close coordination of air and ground units, which proved so successful in Poland, the

Lines Swaying, Germans Report They're Winning Near Smolensk

By the Associated Press

The Soviet command declared early today the Germans had been driven from their newly-dug trenches in the Smolensk sector protecting Moscow, and other Soviet informants asserted that at some points Nazi units had been thrown back as much as 100 miles from the most advanced positions reached by invading spearheads.

These claims to spectacular successes for the new Russian counter-offensive were sharply at variance with general Nazi claims to progress in the four main German drives into the Soviet.

They were accompanied by the declaration of S. A. Lozovsky, vice-commissar for foreign affairs and official Soviet spokesman, that the leading German units were in general retreat before Red tank forces.

Russian Confidence Grows

The early morning communique of the Soviet general staff itself did not include these details. Aside from its report of bitter and, for the Russians, successful action at the Smolensk center, it told of a resumption of heavy fighting below Leningrad—this time in the vicinity of Novorzhev.

Russian reports on the situation afield had reflected yesterday a growing confidence while the Germans again stressed what they termed the success of operations to destroy Red troops rather than to occupy Soviet territory.

Earlier, the war for Western Russia had been almost overshadowed by Japanese maneuvers which vitally affected American positions in the Pacific.

In effect warning others to get out of the way, Japan began occupying eight air bases and five garrison posts in southern French Indo-China, while Germany openly engaged the United States in a struggle for dominant influence in South America.

800 Miles from Manila

Japan's occupation of southern Indo-China centered about the naval base of Camranh, which is only 800 miles from Manila and in like striking distance of Britain's bases at Singapore and Hongkong as well as of the Dutch East Indies.

The attitude of Japanese nav units steaming south to Indo-C was thus described by a Japa correspondent accompanying expedition—and his dispatch distributed by the authorit news agency, Domei:

"Clear the way, disturbers o peace; let us protect Indo-C from international intrigue!"

Strike or Sabotage?

300 Seize Big Canadian Plant For 3 Days Until Troops Arrive

By the United Press

Ottawa, July 29.—The huge 150-million-dollar Arvida, Quebec, plant of the Aluminum Co. of Canada was seized Thursday night by 300 men, who held the plant until Sunday in what may have been a well-organized enemy attempt at sabotage, C. D. Howe, minister of munitions and supply, revealed tonight.

The plant was seized in a coup Thursday afternoon and held by the 300 men behind locked gates until government troops appeared before the plant Sunday, Howe said.

Howe said that the incident justified the suspicion that it had been an organized attempt at sabotage.

[Reports direct from Arvida, however, according to the Associated Press, pictured the incident as a strike. It kept 5,000 plant workers idle for five days and 4,000 laborers building an addition to the plant struck in sympathy.

[The plant workers agreed to return to work at a mass meeting today. Meanwhile, they planned to present their case to the Dominion government. Pot room workers who were getting 50 cents an hour had asked $1 and other classes of employes demanded increases of 10 to 20 cents an hour.

[Howe said the disturbance started when 300 employes in the pot room decided to quit work. Other workmen, he declared, were "taken by surprise and were ordered to leave the plant by the ringleaders." By midnight Thursday the 300 men were in control and had locked the gate.]

Howe said that enemy agents could not have struck at a more vital plant than that at Arvida and that although no actual damage was done the fact that the plant's metal pots were allowed to cool and will have to be chipped out before they are used again will mean a loss of four weeks' production.

The plant is situated in the Lake St. John district of Quebec and bad communication facilities prevented the government from getting troops to the scene for three days, Howe said.

The minister said that because of communication difficulties he did not know whether the ringleaders of the seizure had been arrested.

Self-Defense, Knox Testified

U. S. Destroyer Dropped Bombs On 'Possible' Nazi Submarine

A United States destroyer, picking up survivors of a steamer sunk off Greenland, dropped three depth charges when its listening devices indicated possible presence of a submarine, a Senate Naval Affairs Committee report revealed yesterday.

The committee called Secretary Knox and other naval officials two weeks ago to testify on assertions that the United States already was engaged in "shooting war."

Knox, according to the heavily edited transcript of his testimony made public yesterday, said the American destroyer was carrying out an "act of mercy" in rescuing 60 seamen and that in dropping the depth charges the captain of the warship "very prudently exercised the right of self-preservation."

"It is quite possible no submarine was there," the Navy Secretary added.

The committee, acting under a resolution calling for Congressional investigation of the "shooting war" charges, concluded that "no further investigation need be undertaken at this time." It described yesterday's publication as a "preliminary report," however, and said it was not passing judgment on the accuracy of the charges or testimony before the committee.

Knox condemned as a "perfect piece of fabrication" an account in a newspaper column of an alleged convoying operation by a powerful force of American warships escorting 80 British merchantmen to the west coast of Africa, including a statement that an American plane had radioed the position of a German raider to British warships.

Nazis Generally Checked, Reds Say

Line of Battle Is Swaying, Lozov Declares, With Many Enemy Retreats

Copyright by New York Times

Moscow, July 29.—The ponderous German advance into western and northwestern Russia now has been generally checked, according to the official foreign office spokesman, who asserted this evening that while the front can by no means be considered stabilized in this gigantic battle, the Wehrmacht penetration can be described as halted by the series of fierce Red army counterattacks.

"In many places our tanks cut into the enemy rear, forcing vanguard units to retreat," he said, adding that several Nazi detachments had been encircled and that others had been thrust back by frontal assault.

There is little detail available from which one can grasp the exact geographical status of these enormous operations in which, as the sixth week of the Russo-German war proceeds, it is officially stated here that considerably more than nine million combatants are engaged on both sides of the fighting line.

The Red army communique laconically states that night-long fighting continued in the direction of Nevel, Smolensk and Zhitomir and that nothing of importance occurred elsewhere. The Soviet air force operated against large German troops and concentrations in coordination with the ground forces and bombed enemy airdromes, it says.

Enemy Losses Heavy

A later communique said there was fighting throughout the day in the directions of Novorzhev, Nevel, Smolensk and Zhitomir, it being particularly fierce in the central sector in the direction of Smolensk, where the Russians reported that by a series of counter-attacks they had fought the enemy off from positions he had occupied, inflicting heavy losses.

Vice Foreign Commissar S. A. Lozovsky in his regular press conference, scouted Berlin claims that the Axis vanguard was in the Leningrad suburbs. When asked whether the correspondents could visit the embattled city he said he would refer their request to the general staff.

He described the operations as a continued "series of attacks and counterattacks," adding, "there is nothing resembling a period of all-quiet or a frozen and stabilized front." It was then that he added, that the Nazi advance had been checked and stated that intense action was going on not only along all the fronts but on the flanks and in the enemy rear.

In this respect, it is interesting to note the claim of many well-informed Russians that not only is Smolensk firmly in Soviet hands but the admiralty surrounded and by-passed White Russian capital, Minsk, which Berlin claimed to have captured weeks ago, is still in Russian possession and forming a strong islet to the rear.

Querried as to the "stability" of the front, Lozovsky said this could not be claimed since no permanent lines or trenches had been formed. However, he said, such trenches had been actually dug and used as springboards for actions in some sectors.

He said, that although the Germans announced long ago that the Red air force, tanks and manpower were destroyed, there was still enough to spare of all and that Berlin was now apologizing that the Soviet is not France.

Today's press prints details from correspondents at the front. The Pravda says that one regiment in the presence of Marshal Simeon Budenny drove the Germans back 10 miles in a counterattack and that Nazi armored forces and transport columns had been passed to the southwestward. A railroad station was recaptured after a half-hour of artillery barrage followed by a bayonet charge in a forest region.

According to this newspaper, just before the bayonet assault, the mustachioed veteran shouted "Well boys, it's hot," to which another soldier, pointing toward the Nazis, replied, "It is lots hotter over there, comrade."

Other reports, officially unconfirmed, state some Nazi detachments were driven back as much as 100 miles from the farthest points of advance by Panzer divisions.

Reds Drop Papers

One counterattack of considerable magnitude succeeded in the recapture from the Germans of a city, the name of which is not given, it is reported, and numerous small sallies aimed at German spearheads, slowed up the oncoming drive and, according to Lozovsky, checked it.

At one point, where the fighting was the bitterest, a collective farmer provided the Red staff with information as to the location of a German reserve concentration, which was subjected to a barrage after the Nazi batteries had been silenced.

A local newspaper dispatch claims that the Germans are now sending tanks forward disguised under red flags but these have been halted with grenades and petrol-filled bottles and finished off by Soviet tanks.

It was officially revealed that the Russians are dropping special German language newspapers behind the enemy lines showing Nazi prisoners and the likes, and attaching safe-conduct passes for intending deserters.

Peruvian Violation Of Truce Charged

Quito, Ecuador, July 29 (AP).—Informed sources said tonight that Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, Ecuadorean Ambassador to the United States, had delivered to the State Department an "energetic protest" against alleged Peruvian violation of a border truce.

The United States, Argentina and Brazil had suggested a truce and both countries agreed last week. But the Ecuadorean government tonight charged that Peru still was massing thousands of men on the disputed frontier and had resumed hostilities.

would follow in general the form of the resolution coming before the Senate today.

Representative Short (Republican), Missouri, however, said that he and six other minority members of the group intend to oppose the measure. They will offer as a substitute legislation holding in the National Guard and Reserves only.

The Senate resolution declares that the national interest is imperiled, and therefore the President is authorized to retain the selectees, Guardsmen and Reservists in service. It does not declare a national emergency.

Favored by Administration

President Roosevelt and War Department chiefs have urged such action, however, and two Administration supporters said yesterday that Congress should "follow up" the troop retention bill with a national emergency declaration.

Senators Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, and Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, backed such a step to "unify the Nation behind the President's foreign policy."

Administration leaders in Congress, however, have separated such action from the service extension measure to draw the teeth of some of the opposition to the latter bill. An emergency declaration would invoke many war-time powers and touch off a bitter foreign policy debate.

House debate on the troop bill will start Tuesday, Chairman May said last night.

Victory Near In Smolensk Area, Nazis Say

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Wednesday), July 30.—A mighty battle of men and machines is under way along a 190-mile front stretching northeastward beyond Smolensk, where the Russians are trying again and again, but without success, to pinch off a Nazi panzer-driven wedge, German dispatches reported early today.

One account of the battle of titans, published in Adolf Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, said that Red army forces under Marshal Simeon Timoshenko, commander of the Soviet central front, were putting up a stiff but doomed defense of this vital gateway to Moscow.

Beobachter said the battle of battles was raging between the towns of Mogilev and Vyazma, which are 190 miles apart, and to a depth of 90 miles. Mogilev is 100 miles southwest of Smolensk and Vyazma is 100 miles east of Smolensk and only 130 miles from Moscow.

The German army was reported earlier to have virtually annihilated Russian forces encircled in the Smolensk area and to have pressed forward to create chaos in a surprise attack on the multiple track rail line to Moscow.

German advance units, said the official news agency, D. N. B., made the surprise attack east of Smolensk July 26, destroying 20 fully landen freight trains with 1,200 cars, 1,000 trucks and a great mass of Soviet war materials.

Nearby roads were reported jammed with Russian columns when the Germans opened fire, resulting, D. N. B. said, "in mad confusion as shells burst among marching troops, trucks caught fire and boxcars loaded with munitions exploded."

Today the Luftwaffe again supported advance units, the agency said, by destroying a number of railway lines with direct hits. Twenty Soviet airplanes were said to have been destroyed on the ground during an attack on one field and many other planes were listed as damaged.

D. N. B. also reported a terrific one-hour battle between Russian tanks and a German antitank unit advancing southwest of Smolensk in the Mogilev area Monday, resulting in the destruction of 83 Russian tanks.

Weather Unfavorable

The high command, reporting progress in each of its four main drives into Russia, stated the trapped Russians in the Smolensk region "have been virtually wiped out," and informed quarters added that attempts of remaining trapped troops to break out of the ring have been repulsed with bloody losses.

Despite unfavorable weather conditions, German and Rumanian troops were credited with a series of victories in localized but bitter fighting. The high command, in its daily communique, reported that Rumanian troops had gained complete control of Bessarabia.

In further advances in this region, D. N. B. said, many thousands of Russians are deserting their own ranks and fleeing into German and Rumanian camps.

Farther north, "operations in the Ukraine continued steadily," the high command said, and west of Lake Piepus, in the path of the drive on Leningrad, Soviet troops are encircled and facing destruction by German forces mopping up Estonia. Still farther north, on the Finnish front, German and Finnish troops staged a surprise raid which yielded 52 Russian cannon, D. N. B. said.

Booty Called Great

The high command gave most attention to the Smolensk sector, however.

"The enemy's power groups, which were overrun in the course of our break through of the Stalin Line in the direction of Smolensk, now have been virtually wiped out," it said. "The last encirclement east of Smolensk is facing destruction.

"A great number of prisoners and a large amount of booty will be reported within a few days as a result of this tremendous battle of destruction."

D. N. B., in elaboration, said that two Soviet battalions and two batteries were destroyed in fierce fighting in a forest of the Smolensk area as trapped Russians tried to break out of the ring.

Legation Invites Swiss to Celebration

The Minister from Switzerland, Dr. Charles Bruggmann, and Mme. Bruggmann have invited members of Swiss colonies in Washington and Baltimore to attend the celebration of the 650th anniversary of Swiss independence this Sunday at 3 p. m. on the grounds of the new Swiss Legation, 2920 Cathedral Avenue Northwest. Hans Kirchhofer heads the arrangements committee.

Indies to Destroy Oil if Invaded

"all measures have been taken for some time and can be put into effect immediately to insure the complete destruction of the oilfields and refineries.

"There will be no hesitation in making capital destruction of the oil industry in the islands if we are forced to do so."

The minister declined to make any comment on the general situation confronting the Netherlands Empire.

Earlier in the day, Welles told reporters that the United States could offer Japan no assurances regarding the cargo of the 40-odd vessels that have been fearfully hovering off the Pacific Coast. Though Welles gave the Japanese Ambassador a pledge Monday that prompt clearance would be granted the ships from American ports, yesterday he saiid that no assurances could be given regarding fuel oil and other supplies to enable the vessels to moke the return voyage to Nippon. Their owners would have to apply for such supplies to the export control authorities in the usual manner, Welles said. He gave no hint whether this Government will issue licenses to Japan for oil.

The President's press conference produced no elaboration of how he plans to administer the drastic "freezing" order imposed on Japanese trade last Friday night.

In an apparent effort to keep the Japanese guessing, the President said that it was not the proper time to comment on the Far Eastern situation.

This was the manner in which he turned aside such questions as how the export control would work, whether pressure on Japan was being eased, what did he think of the Japanese occupation of Indo-China, and what was the general policy underlying administration of the freezing order.

Mr. Roosevelt professed not to know that Government agencies had withheld statistics on Japanese oil shipments, but he pointed out that Japanese ships, some with oil cargoes, had left United States ports a few days before issuance of the freezing order.

He sidestepped requests for comment on the assertion by British Prime Minister Winston Church, in a speech yesterday, that the United States was nearing "the verge of war."

Japan Wants Added Assurances

San Francisco, July 29 (U.P.).—The Japanese government tonight held the big passenger liner Tatuta Maru and smaller Japanese ships at anchor off United States Pacific ports until the United States gives added assurances that the vessels and cargoes will not be seized if they enter American territorial waters.

Although the State Department in Washington had announced that the ships would not be detained if they docked, it was apparent that Japan was not satisfied with the assurance.

which sunk the Nazi vessel.

He described as "pure invention" an assertion in the same column that United States destroyers had sunk a submarine with depth charges on the same convoy route.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, told the committee that "the public has been led to believe we were shooting, working with British ships. That is not true."

"And we can assure the American people," Chairman Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, inquired "that there is not an undeclared war, a hidden war, or a naval war as far as we are concerned?"

"That is right," Knox said.

Questioned by Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, Knox said no American ships or planes have operated from British bases in European waters.

He declined to answer questions on the strength of the American garrison in Iceland, on possible plans for "a future war in collaboration with some other nation" or possible plans for further occupations of strategic areas.

Roosevelt to Ask Price-Fixing Powers Today

President Roosevelt in a message today will ask Congress to grant him the necessary price-fixing authority to combat runaway prices and inflationary trends, Congressional leaders said last night.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley announced complete agreement on price control policy following yesterday's weekly legislative conference at the White House, but declined to divulge details of the bill.

Legislation worked out by Price Administrator Leon Henderson in conferences with leaders and legislative draftsmen, empowering the President to fix individual commodity prices and imposing over-all ceiling prices in various categories, was reportedly ready for introduction in both Houses.

In the Senate, Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, acting chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, has been asked to introduce the legislation, while in the House the bill was expected to be handled by Chairman Steagall of the House Banking Committee.

Willkie Predicts Quick Nazi Defeat

Chicago, July 29 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie expressed the opinion today that if Russia held out until September it would mark the beginning of the end for Adolf Hitler.

He said that Germany's defeat probably would be more rapid than most persons expect, assuming that the Russians stop the Germans drive to the east.

Willkie gave his opinions in an interview on his way to his farm near Elwood, Ind.

Lowlands and France.

Under it, each of America's four field armies will have its own designated air support. The first four of the air support commands will be a part of the four air forces. The fifth, coming directly under the Air Forces Combat Command, will operate with the armored force.

Heading the air support commands will be: First, Col. William E. Kepner, famous Army balloonist, now at Michell Fied, N. Y.; second, Brig. Gen. John B. Brooks, former commander of the Randolph Field primary flying school, now at Fort George Wright, Wash.; third, Col. Asa N. Duncan, chief of the Air Corps military personnel division here; fourth, Col. Robert C. Candee, chief of the Air Corps intelligence division here; fifth, Brig. Gen. Junius W. Jones, commander of the Sixteenth Bombardment Wing, Bowman Field, Ky.

Observation squadrons now assigned to various Army divisions will be transferred to the new units, under the plan. No headquarters for the new commands have been selected as yet, but they will be close to the ground forces to which assigned.

"The ground forces and their air support units will cooperate in their training and operations plans, assuring that unity and coordination of action which is essential to success in battle," the War Department said.

"It is stressed that flexibility in the use of aviation will be increased rather than diminished under this program. The field armies and the armored force will not necessarily have to rely only on their particular air support command. If the situation requires it, additional aviation will be used."

Garfield Playground To Have Homecoming

The committee arranging the sixth annual homecoming at Garfield Park Playground a week from today will meet at 2 p. m. today with Miss Evelyn Sheridan, who was first director at the playground 20 years ago. On the committee are Mrs. Eleanore Cornell, Mrs. Michael Cannon, Mrs. Mildred Barrett, Mrs. Dorothy Waddell, Mrs. George Walker and Mrs. Gladys Belt.

The reunion will be open to all the "kids" who ever used the play field.

The President's Day

By International News Service

GREATEST MAN: History halted briefly at the White House yesterday to allow a little 75-year-old lady with dimming eyes to pass by to see the President before darkness settled over her life. Mrs. L. R. P. Jordan, of Reidsville, Ga., was received after the President had heard about her ambition to "see the greatest man on earth" before approaching blindness overtook her.

NO, NO, A THOUSAND MES, ETC.: In a crumpled ite shirt open at the neck, onogrammed in blue on the t sleeves, and tieless, the esident went through his ss conference almost enly in negatives. A direct or a variation or evasion reof almost ended the conence three times, but each e some worried correondent saved the situation h a quick-fired gap-filler. viously the President was re than willing to cut the ference short, jokingly ggested that "the boys" re affected by the Washton heat and bereft of any d questions. They weren't but the President wasn't king. Place-marked and der the President's left nd on his desk was William rer's "Berlin Diary."

FAST START: Mr. Roosee's day had a fast start an early one. Promptly 10 a. m. the Congressional four, Vice President Wale, Speaker Rayburn, Maity Leaders Barkley and Cormack clumped in; powwed with the President for an hour and three-quarters, thereby upsetting the timetable considerably.

ECUADOR SCRATCHED: Due to the overtime with the Congressionals, the President flagged down Sumner Welles, told him to show up at 11:45 instead of the scheduled time, scratched the appointment with Ecuadorian Ambassador Alfaro and special envoy, Senor Dr. Don Homero Viteri Lafronte.

LABOR, THEN LUNCH: A. F. L.'s William Green bustled by the doorkeeper into the Presidential innersanctum for a lengthy talk on labor in defense industries. The conference was evidently a smooth-sailer. Green exited smilingly, and said he and the President had found themselves "in agreement on many things." Marriner Eccles, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, lunched with the President, and talked over the two board vacancies, among other things. Before the bell for the press conference, Lowell Mellett, Liaison Officer Wayne Coy, Chinese Lend-Lease Expert Lauchlin Currie slipped in, had a few words with the President before the correspondents surged in under the watchful eyes of the guards and Secret Service men.

Churchill's Text Praising Russia

By the Associated Press

London, July 29.—Following is a partial text of Prime Minister Churchill's speech in Commons today:

On January 22 of this year I explained to the House the system of administration and production it was proposed to adopt. That is the system which we have followed since, and it is the system to which in general and in principle I propose to adhere.

If we are to be perpetually altering our system we may achieve the appearance of energy and reform not only at the expense of the authority of the individual but to the detriment of the full working of the machinery and heavy cost in output itself. . . .

In my capacity as minister of defense, I prepared for the war cabinet during the first three months of this year a revised general scheme bringing together the whole of our munition production and the whole of our import pogram and prescribing the just and reasonable targets at which we ought to aim. . . .

The general scheme received final approval by the war cabinet on March 31 and therefore became mandatory. . . .

Work Parceled Out

Execution of this scheme on the ministry side is confided to the three great supply departments with the admiralty, ministry of supply and ministry of aircraft production.

Work has been parceled out and it remains for them to do it.

The picture so luridly drawn of chaotic and convulsive struggles of the three supply departments without guidance or design is one which will no doubt be pleasing to our enemies but happily has no relation to the facts.

The question arises, however, whether in their execution of the approved scheme the three supply departments have been wanting in energy, or through excess of zeal, have quarrelled with each other or trespassed on each other's domains.

There are no doubt instances of friction on the fringes of these powerful organizations, but I do not belive they bear any proportion worth mentioning to their individual and concerted efforts. . . .

At the point which we have now reached in our munitions development almost all firms and factories are working under complete control of the government at fulfilment of an approved and concerted program.

There are no doubt a number of minor aspects of our national life which have not yet been effectively regimented, but when and as they are wanted their turn will come.

Agreements With U. S.

We are not a totalitarian state, but we are steadily, and I believe as fast as possible, working ourselves into a total war organization. . . .

We have, of course, come to very clean-cut agreements with our American friends and helpers.

They are making immense efforts in the common cause and they naturally ask for the very fullest information as to what is happening to their goods and whether there is waste and misdirection.

It is our duty to satisfy them that there is no muddle or that muddle is reduced to a minimum and that they are getting value for their money.

We welcome their criticism because it is at once searching, friendly and well-informed.

Improvement in ordering of imports and of British purchases in the United States is in relation to the very large number of competent persons at work on both sides of the ocean. It is, I am glad to say, steady and progressive. . . .

At this point, I will deal with a suggestion that a ministry of production should be formed . . . Some are for complete merging of the supply departments of the admiralty, air ministry and war office—one great common shop serving all fighting needs . . .

Who is this superman who will dominate the vast entrenched and embattled organization of the admiralty . . . teach the present minister of aircraft production how to make aircraft quicker and better than they are now being made or who is going to interfere with Lord Beaverbrook as minister of supply?

When you have decided on the man, let me know his name. I shall be very glad to serve under him (laughter), provided I am satisfied that he possesses all the Napoleonic qualities required. . . .

Charge Denied

The charge made by Mr. Carro-Jones (Laborite member from Aberdeen) is quite untrue, so far as aircraft on British order are concerned.

All these aircraft are supplied with spare engines and spare frames. There is no failure or oversight of this kind in ordering British aircraft. . . .

t is those of the French kind (planes ordered in the United States before the fall of France) that were lacking.

It is those of the French kind eral charge of slackness and inefficiency in factories, whether due to local lack of management or to lack of zeal on part of the working people.

Sir J. Wardlaw-Milne said our people were only working up to 75 per cent of their possible efficiency. He had no wish to harass national defense, but this sentence has been wrested from its context.

It is serious when it is broadcast apart from its context. I have to think of its effect in Australia, where party politics are pursued with the robust detachment exhibited by our forerunners in this House in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

Australian troops are bearing with great distinction much of the brunt of fighting in the Middle East and it must be very painful to Australia to be told that we are only making a three-quarters effort here at home to put the proper weapons in their hands.

In America such a statement is meat and drink to isolationists.

Comparisons Made

What is important is whether this statement is true. Two questions arise, whether it is 75 per cent and 75 per cent of what? (Cheers).

I take the datum line of the three months after Dunkerque when our people worked to the utmost limit of their powers—men fell exhausted at the lathes and working men and women did not take off their clothes for weeks at a time. Are we working at only 75 per cent of that?

There are a few reasons why we cannot maintain indefinitely the intensive personal effort of a year ago. If we are to win this war, and I feel solidly convinced that we shall—it will be largely by staying power.

For that purpose there must be one day in seven for rest as a general rule and there must be one week's holiday a year. We have relaxed to that extent since Dunkerque. If we had not done so we should have had a serious crash. . . .

First, allowance must be made for the very severe change in diet of the heavy manual workers which is far less stimulating than a year ago.

Hopkins' Speech Cited

We want more meat in the mines and foundries and more cheese. Why should that gratify Lord Haw Haw?

Will Lord Haw Haw also bear in mind the statement of Mr. Hopkins the other day on the intent of the U. S. A. to see that our people get food and to keep sea lines secure by which food can be brought.

I know the great arrangements that have been made to send us food and in variety and more interesting qualities (cheers). So I do not think I need to be told I am helping Lord Haw Haw.

I can give instances of dispersion of 20, 30 or 40 subcenters. All this was achieved at a cost of production, but it has placed us in a position when we have paid the cost where we are immune from mortal damage in our aircraft production, and in other branches of munitions, from enemy air raids.

We may suffer, we may be retarded but we can no longer be destroyed.

I should like to give some facts and figures to show how improved organizations and the smoother running of our machines has overcome adverse currents. . . .

But . . . despite all troubles the ministry of supply output in the last three months has been one-third greater than in three months of the Dunkerque period.

Increased Shipbuilding

Although our army, navy and air force are larger, the ministry has one-third more people working in its factories, and despite dislocation, blackouts, dispersal and so on, each man is turning out, on the whole, each day as much as he did in that time of almost superhuman effort. . . .

We have made in the last three months more than twice the field guns we made in the Dunkerque period. Munitions output is half as much again.

The combined program of merchant and naval shipbuilding now in active progress is bigger than in any period of the last war, although work now is immeasurably more complex than then.

In aircraft it is foolish to calculate by numbers of machines because of the difference of time in man-hours needed to produce them.

But the increase even above the first period of a year ago is substantial. The increase since this government took office is enormous.

I should be proud to tell the House, but I am not going to do so because the enemy does not tell us their figures which we would like to have. . . .

Bomber Production Up

As to bombers, British production alone—without taking into account American—has doubled our power of bomb discharge on Germany at 1,500 miles range.

In the next three months taking in American reinforcements, we shall double it again, and in the next six months after that we shall redouble it. . . .

We are told how badly labor is behaving from a number of people who never did a day's work in their lives (laughter and cheers).

We had many devastating stoppages and strikes in the last war. In the last two years of it, nearly 12 million days were lost through labor disputes.

During the whole course of this war—23 months—we have lost less than 2 million days.

When I look out on the whole tumultuous scene of this ever-widening war, I think it is my duty to give a serious warning to the House and country to be on guard equally against pessimism and against optimism.

There are no doubt temptations to optimism.

It is a fact that mighty Russia, so treacherously assaulted, has struck back with such magnificent strength and courage and brought prodigious and well-deserved slaughter on the Nazi armies.

Gigantic U. S. Help

The United States, the greatest single power, is giving us aid on a gigantic scale and is advancing in rising wrath and conviction to the very verge of war.

It is a fact that German air superiority has been broken and air attacks on this country, for the time being, have almost ceased.

It is a fact that the Battle of the Atlantic, although far from being won, is—partly from American intervention—moving progressively in our favor.

It is a fact that the Nile Valley is much safer than it was 12 or 3 months ago.

It is a fact that the enemy has lost his pretense of theme and doctrine and has sunk ever deeper in moral ad intellectual degradation and bankruptcy so that almost all his conquests have proved burdens and worse.

But all the massive towering facts which we are entitled to dwell upon must not lead us for a moment to propose that the worst is over.

The formidable power of Nazi Germany, the vast mass of destructive munitions which they made or captured, the courage, skill, and audacity of their striking forces, the ruthlessness of their centralized war direction, the prostrate condition of so many great peoples under their yoke, the resources of many lands which may, to some extent, become available to them—all these restrain rejoicing and forbid the slightset relaxation.

Invasion Season at Hand

It would be madness for us to suppose that Russia or the United States are going to win this war for us. The invasion season is at hand. All the armed forces have been warned to be at concert pitch by September 1 and to maintain the utmost vigilance, meanwhile.

We have to reckon with a gambler's desperation which, by a mere gesture, decreed the death of three or four million Russian and German soldiers.

We stand here, still the champion. If we fail, all fail. And if we fall, all fall.

It si only by a superb, intense and prolonged effort of the whole British Empire—with a great combination of about three-fourth of the human race—that the fight against Naziism will come into vehement and dynamic life.

For more than a year, we have been all alone. All alone, we have had to guard the treasure of mankind. Although there may be profound and encouraging changes in the situation, our own final and commanding responsibilities remain undiminished and we shall only discharge them by continuing to pour out in the common cause the utmost endeavors of our strength and virtue and, if need be, to proffer the last drop of our hearts' blood. (Prolonged cheers.)

Dr. Artucio to Tell House Group Of Nazi Intrigues Tomorrow

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

Dr. Hugo Fernandez Artucio, Uruguayan hero of a lone wolf campaign against the Nazis in South America, is scheduled tomorrow to tell the House Military Affairs Committee of warlike German activity in the Southern republics.

Dr. Artucio was a Government witness against Transocean, the German news service convicted in the District Court last week of propaganda activity against the United States. His testimony was limited by the rules of evidence to Transocean activity, but there will be no such restrictions when he appears before the committee.

"We understand that Dr. Artucio has made a thorough investigation," said Chairman May (Democrat), of Kentucky. "The State Department vouches for him, as a reputable scholar from Uruguay.

Going to England Soon

"Whatever Dr. Artucio has learned about Nazi activity in South America, such as might be a threat to the United States—either now or in the future—is of the utmast importance.

"We are planning a session to hear Dr. Artucio's findings Thursday morning. We are going to try to work it in, despite our crowded schedule, because Dr. Artucio is leaving Friday, in an Army bomber, for England, where the authorities are anxious to hear him."

Of a score of South American witnesses called for the Transocean trial, Dr. Artucio was the only one to reach the District Court. Arturo Regueros Peralta, Colombian congressman and editor, was murdered in Bucaramanga the night before he planned to leave for Washington. Others then changed their minds about coming.

Told Findings in Book

When he was professor of philosophy in the University of Montevideo, Uruguay, Dr. Artucio undertook a broad investigation of Nazi infiltration. As evidence piled up, he warned his countrymen of their danger in radio speeches and presented his findings in a book, "Nazis en El Uruguay."

Those he branded as "fifth columnists" caused his arrest for criminal libel. He was freed after a trial, and 80 persons he accused of Nazi activity were arrested.

Kirsten Flagstad To Stay in Norway, Husband Says

Berlin, July 29 (INS).—Kirsten Flagstad, leading Wagnerian soprano, considers making a trip to the United States too dangerous and will remain in her native Norway for the duration of the war, her husband, Henry Johansen, told an International News Service correspondent in a telephone interview today.

She has also decided not to sing as long as the war lasts, according to her husband, who is at his summer home in southwest Norway. She is in complete seclusion at a remote country house where he sees her only once a week, Johansen said.

Her New York agents, who have $125,000 worth of concert and operatic agreements for the singer, are understood to have given up all hope of her return this year.

Japanese Seize U. S. Property in Shantung

By the Associated Press

Shanghai (Wednesday), July 30.—American and British properties in the whole of Shantung Province have been placed under "protective custody" by the Japanese, reliable informants reported today, following the closing down of American and British oil plants at Tsingtao and Dairen.

At one point in northern Shantung stocks belonging to the Socony Vacuum Co. have been seized.

At Tsingtao, installations of the Texas and Socony companies were closed tonight, with Japanese sentries preventing deliveries. The Japanese explained they were acting because of rumors that the owners planned to "dynamite the docks."

American and British properties at Chefoo and Tsinan also were said to be under protective custody.

Navy Steams South

Tokyo, July 29.—Japanese naval forces steamed southward today for the occupation of French Indo-China in an aggressive mood which a Japanese correspondent aboard a warship epitomized this way:

"Clear the way, disturbers of the peace; let us protect Indo-China from international intrigue!"

This was the overwhelming sentiment of the navy as described in radioed dispatches from Correspondent Fusuo Oya and published by the authoritative news agency Domei.

Press Attacks U. C.

[Here in the capital, according to United Press, newspapers launched "the most violent attacks in history" on the United States, Britain and the Netherlands Indies for imposing economic penalties on this country because of Nippon's military occupation of South Indo-China.

[The United States in particular war warned flatly that war was a possibility. One influential newspaper writer asserted that Washington's attitude towards this country was "ten times as bad" as that of Czarist Russia prior to the start of the Russo-Japanese war of 1903.]

Standard Oil Stops Sales

American and other foreign firms whose assets had been frozen in retaliation for similar action by the British-United States bloc of nations were virtually at a standstill.

The only United States firms whose assets were not blocked were those more than 50 per cent owned by Japanese interests, such as plants of the International General Electric.

Moving picture concerns had at least eight million yen ($1,827,000) in cash tied up. It appeared that the government might make a monopoly of this business with American firms withdrawing.

The Standard Oil Co. has been forced to suspend local retail sales because of inability to receive payments for its products as a result of the freezing order.

The total value of American-owned property in Japan affected in one way or another was reliably estimated at a billion yen ($234,000,000).

15 Ships Reach Saigon

Saigon, French Indo-China (Wednesday), July 30.—A convoy of 15 Japanese naval ships arrived here today with troops as the Japanese sped the occupation of bases in Indo-China.

The arrivals here followed the movement of Nipponese forces into nearby Campanh, French Indo-China naval base 800 miles from Manila.

Rich Find Out Heirs Don't Want Fortunes Except in Hard Cash

This is the third in a series of articles, depicting the fate of American society, under the impact of war, high taxes, the new tempo of national life.

By Inez Robb
International News Service Writer

New York, July 29.—The families of the present social scions have been forced to learn a harsh, dual truism: (1) You can't take it with you and (2) your heirs don't want it unless it is in hard, cold cash on the barrel head.

This is no indication that the heirs are a hard, mercenary, unsentimental lot. Rather, it is a testament of the complete change, a change that has transformed great houses and kindred possessions into drugs on the market.

Heirs and owners of houses in Fifth Avenue or on the fashionable East Side are in luck. They can usually sell the mansions for approximately the assessed value of the land. The 41-foot Harris Fahnestock mansion at 15 East Sixty-sixth Street has just been sold for $40,000.

One-Tenth of Cost

The house was built only 16 years ago at the cost of $400,000 to build. It would probably cost twice as much to duplicate today. Yet it sold for approximately the present value of New York real estate in that area—$1,000 per front foot.

If that mansion had been in Newport, on Long Island or in Tuxedo Park, the Fahnestock clan might finally have despaired of ever selling it and emulated the daughters of the late Judge Elbert H. Gary, who finally razed the old steel master's beautiful home at Jericho, Long Island, when no buyers appeared and taxes began to eat into the estate.

The Fahnestock house, like that of the late Clarence H. Mackay, a 50-foot palace at 5 East Seventy-seventh Street, has been sold for transformation into one-room apartments.

In the meantime, Mackay's beloved country home at Roslyn, Long Island, is closed and empty.

This country show place, where he gave for the Prince of Wales (now the Duke of Windsor) one of the finest balls in the memory of this generation, is on a scale that neither his widow, the former prima donna, Anna Case, nor his children are either able or willing to support.

Heirs Spurn Society

Like the children of so many parents whose lives were wrapped up in society, the son and two daughters of the late Clarence Mackay don't give a hoot about society. The son, John W. Mackay, lives in an unpretentious house at Roslyn, like any other commuter.

Of the two daughters, Mrs. Irving Berlin is too devoted to her husband, her children and her writing to pay the slightest heed to the Four Hundred. The other daughter, Mrs. Robert Z. Hawkins, is married to a Reno attorney and spends most of her time in that small Navada town.

By any standards the Mackay heirs are rich. But like the children of other bygone social leaders, such as the late Mrs. William Astor, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs and Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, they have an active aversion for anything resembling social leadership.

A Matter of Time

What has happened to Fifth Avenue as a residential thoroughfare is a story too old for retelling. With the passing of the Cornelius Vanderbilt mansion on the northwest corner of Fifth at Fifty-first Street, only two private residences will remain below Sixtieth Street. The old brownstone front on the southeast corner of Fifth at Forty-eighth Street belongs to the French widow of Robert Walter Goelet, who died recently.

The second old brownsone mansion, on the northeast corner of Fifth and Forty-seventh Streets is occupied by Finley J. Shepard, widower of the late Helen Gould Shepard, daughter of Jay Gould.

But it is only a matter of time until these houses disappear, too. They occupy parcels of real estate for which taxes can only be supported by business properties.

blindness dims her eyes.

She heard he was taking a train to Hyde Park, N. Y. last Thursday night. So she went down to Union Station to try to catch a glimpse of him there. But just as she arrived the great gate at the railroad tracks swung closed and the Presidential Special pulled out of sight.

Mrs. Jordan was almost ready to give up—but not quite. Then the President read a story in The Washington Post about her unsuccessful attempt to see him at Union Station. He told his secretary to put her on his appointment list.

So yesterday Mrs. Jordan, dressed in her Sunday best, steel-rimmed spectacles strengthening the dimming sight, came to see the President. She came with Representative Hugh Peterson, of Georgia.

She shook the President's hand. She told him of how she has been married three times, that though she has no cildren of her own, literally dozens call her "Ma" or "Grandma Jordan."

Her Family Is Ready

Finally, she told him that all her family is "ready to fight" to defend the country.

When she left his office, there were reporters to meet her.

"What did he say to you?" they asked.

"He told me the South was 100 per cent for defending our free institutions," she said.

"I think he's the finest man on earth."

And then she smiled. In a week she would go back home to Georgia. But her eyes had seen the President of the United States.

House to Debate Joint Return Apart From Tax Bill

on the final motion to recommit the bill. On that motion, Republican managers had planned to couple a joint return repealer with a proposal to broaden the income tax base.

Proposed modification of the iron-clad rule, while it paved the way for House approval of closed tax procedure, opened the bill to the risk of a $305,000,000 loss in revenue in event joint return provisions are rescinded.

Should the move against joint returns win, indications were the House would be recessed while the Ways and Means Committee launched a quick hunt for 305 million dollars revenue from other scources to plug the gap.

Surtax May Be Raised

Most likely alternative, it was said, would be revivial of the original steep Treasury surtax rates on individuals, starting the surtax at 11 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income, instead of 5 per cent as now proposed.

Committee spokesmen are prepared to tell the House it must choose between joint returns, affecting about 4 per cent of the taxpayers, and individual surtax increases affecting some 96 per cent, it was learned.

When the House adjourned yesterday without action on the tax rule, House Minority Leader Martin told reporters "they haven't got the votes" to adopt the rule. Leaders declined to concede this but immediately called a conference in the office of Speaker Rayburn.

Challenged by Nine States

Conferring with Speaker Rayburn, Majority Leader McCormack and the House Parliamentarian, Lewis Deschler, were Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee and Representative Cooper (Democrat), of Tennessee.

Following the conference, Rayburn told reporters Doughton had agreed to an effort to get a new rule permitting a separate vote on the joint return provision.

Main opposition to joint return provisions has come from the nine community property States, where couples are permitted to share equally their income for income tax purposes. Representatives from these States have challenged the constitutionality of the joint return move.

Churchill Says U.S. Is at Verge of War

tive muntitions which they have made or captured, the courage, skill and audacity of their striking forces, the ruthlessness of their centralized war direction, the prostrate condition of so many great peoples under their yoke, the resources of many lands which may to some extent become available to them, all these restrain rejoicing and forbid the slightest relaxation.

"Invasion Season at Hand"

"It would be madness for us to suppose that Russia or the United States are going to win this war for us. The invasion season is at hand. All the armed forces have been warned to be at concert pitch by September 1 and to maintain the utmost vigilance meanwhile. We have to reckon with a gambler's desperation—which, by a mere gesture, decreed the death of three or four million Russian and German soldiers."

Churchill vigorously attacked Sir John Wardlaw-Milne; Leslie Hore-Belisha, former war secretary, and other critics for what he called "the ill-smelling posy" of production criticism which "happily has no relation to the facts."

He lamented the effect in America of Wardlaw-Milne's statement that British production is only 75 per cent of potential, and cried out that this was "meat and drink" to Uunted States isolationists. Wardlaw-Milne, however, stuck to his guns in a brief speech later.

Bitterly, Churchill said, "We are told how badly labor is behaving from a number of people who never did a day's work in their lives."

Today, he pointed out, "there was no stoppage of work of any kind arising from a trade dispute in any part of Great Britain," although in the last war labor strikes were rife.

"As to bombers," he said, "British production alone, without taking into account American, has doubled our power of bomb discharge on Germany at 1,500 miles range. In the next three months, taking in American reinforcement, we shall double it again, and in the next six months after that we shall redouble it."

Space to House Army Unit Sought In New Center

Officials at the new Municipal Center today will seek 10,000 square feet of space to house a portion of the Army Quartermaster Corps.

The Army yesterday asked the Commissioners to provide office facilities for some 600 Quartermaster Corps employes.

Under tentative arrangements, the Police Department will be forced to give up eight of its rooms, and the Department of Vehicles and Traffic and Fire Department will relinquish two rooms each.

Both Police Supt. Brown and Traffic Director Van Duzer said last night that they were uncertain as to what portions of their divisions will be moved. The War Department already occupies half of the building.

Driest of All Wars, Nazi Writer Finds

By Hans Huffzky
German Journalist

With the German Army on the Eastern Front, July 29.—This war is the driest of all wars.

That is because it leads past too few water mains, fewer than in Poland and fewer than in France.

Flap down your dust-coated eyelashes, comrade, and think back—think of France: Wasn't that then one vast water fountain compared with this country.

Yesterday we passed a village as we rolled along the marching route of our panzers. For hours before we had located it on our map. Now it must still be ten kilometers away, now only five, now just one more—there it was, the village, there was the first house and there, too, was the first bucket-well.

Down deep with the pail—up it came with mire and mud. On to the next well! It yielded only a brownish broth.

No City of "M" Left

The wells already had been drawn dry by our comrades. So once again we cannot wash ourselves tonight. Wash? Why for Heaven's sake, we haven't the faintest intention of washing. There isn't water for that. All we want is to just dip our hands once, just to cool our burned brows and necks a bit.

This morning we were to drive through the city of "M" (obviously Minsk). We figured it out: There must be so and so many hydrants, for drinking, for cooking, for washing, for filling our field flasks.

When we reached "M" we didn't come to "M," for it is something that doesn't exist anymore and you can't come to it. We reached "M" only according to our maps. For "M" was in reality nothing but a bit of smouldering landscape. I say landscape because the chimneys which remained standing between the wooden houses looked from afar like trees. The fleeing Soviet had with his artillery shot "M" into the ground and burned it down completely.

Back home in our German garrisons a field flask full of water isn't worth a straw. There it merely weighs down the belt from which so many other things are already hanging.

Water Biggest Luxury

But a field flask with drinking water, tea or coffee today in the East is worth more than anything that can happen to you.

That comrade begs as though he wanted to borrow 100 marks from you. Or he offers you other luxuries in exchange, a whole frying pan full of butter, one dozen eggs, 100 cigarettes—whatever he just happens to have.

The other day one lad offered for one field flask full of tea one pair of boots which he had found abandoned in Soviet barracks and which he really intended as a substitute for his own, which already were pretty dilapidated.

The loveliest vehicles in this war are those from whose tops protrude little stovepipes—the field kitchens. Not on account of the pork roast which they offer you, and not on account of the pea soup, but solely on account of their tea. Whether the field kitchens are standing or moving they are always surrounded. And if it be only three swallows, comrade!

In peacetime the field kitchens usually heat their kettles for drinkables twice daily, once for the morning, once for the evening coffee. In this war they haven't become cold for a single hour. They boil 10 and 12 times during the day and night. One can come to them of mornings at 4, or nights at 11, during the pause between skirmishes, or in the midst of the din of battle—their chimneys invariably exuding smoke, and their kettles will grow cold for the first time only after the last shots of this campaign have been fired.

Washing Like Dissipation

How was it, anyway, at home? How many meters of waterspout did one need every morning for washing a face that after all was really quite clean?

Yesterday for the first time in a long while I was privileged really to wash and shave myself. It was a veritable dissipation I indulged in with that water. Why, I had two whole drinking cups full of water for it!

The other day in an abandoned villa of high Soviet commisars we ran into a tremendous booty: We didn't take the phonograph, nor the books and cutglass candelabra, but five empty wine bottles. Then one comrade panhandled his way up and down our materials avenue and "touched" the field kitchens. Each filled one bottle for him.

Unfortunately the fifth bottle sustained a crack from hot tea. The comrade was roundly blamed for acting so carelessly—why didn't he warm up the bottle slowly?

The saddest soldiers' eyes I have encountered were on the bridges across the large rivers, across the Berezina, the Dnepr, eyes of men who for days hadn't come off their dirty, grimy vehicles and out of their hot, dust-covered jackets and trousers, and who now—the burning sun on a sweaty military cap—were crossing the cool water.

Never have there been such sad, thirsty eyes during so proud a ride, during their ride across the great streams of an opponent who is forever retreating farther eastward.

We yearn for so much—for example, for one hour without the din of battle, for one stretch of summer landscape that doesn't smell of conflagration and death, for one walk through a street of peace with children's laughter and clinking of glasses reaching your ear from a jolly window. Yet all this becomes threadbare and infinitesimal compared with the yearning for the great water, for water for drinking, for bathing, for nonsensical wallowing.

For:

This war is the driest of all wars!

Quezon Offers Philippine Defense Funds

President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines has offered President Roosevelt $54,000,000 in Philippine funds in this country for use in the joint defense of the Philippines, and legislation shortly will be introduced in Congress to make this available.

Joaquin M. Elizalde, resident commissioner from the Philippines, disclosed Quezon's cabled offer last night and predicted the funds shortly will be put to work for Philippine defense under guidance of United States military and naval authorities.

A joint Army and Navy board has worked out details of how the money will be spent and estimates shortly will be recommended by the Budget Bureau to free by formal appropriation sums held for the Philippines by the Treasury, Elizalde said.

The 54 million dollars comprises partly money authorized by Congress to compensate the Philippines for losses suffered in the dollar-devaluation program and partly money due the Philippines from Treasury collections on sugar excises.

The Philippine commissioner said ten million dollars already has been advanced from general defense funds for the joint defense project, to be later paid out of the Philippine gift.

Elizalde said Philippine citizens were "100 per cent loyal." Expressions that his countrymen were "ungrateful" or "disloyal," voiced in connection with the Philippine independence movement, are now being disproven, the commissioner said.

"If there is a war, Philippine soldiers will fight just as vigorously as the men from the States," Elizalde said last night.

Sank 21 Ships In One Attack, Germans Say

By the Associated Press

Berlin, July 29.—A running fight lasting for days between German submarines protected by so-called "safety craft" and a British Atlantic convoy has resulted in the destruction of 21 British ships, Adolf Hitler's headquarters announced in a special communique tonight.

The "safety craft" themselves sank one British destroyer and one corvette, while the submarines sent to the bottom 116,500 tons of British merchant shipping, the announcement said.

Heralding the feat as "a big success in the Battle of the Atlantic," the high command said that the submarines sank the ships despite being "hard-pressed by destroyers, corvettes, submarine traps and auxiliary cruisers."

Except to state that it lasted for days, the special communique gave no further details of the battle, but previously a military spokesman had indicated that the clashes began early Monday morning and continued through last night.

Informed quarters explained that the "safety craft" discharged "well-aimed torpedoes which sank the destroyer and the corvette in a few minutes.

No precise description of the boats was released.

This was the first large-scale submarine operation reported recently.

"There have been fewer convoys," a spokesman said. "We cannot expect our U-boats to sink convoys where there are none."

Silk Leg Future Bare Indeed; Hose Supply to Last 3 Months

By Lee Carson
International News Service Staff Writer

That internationally famous pillar of beauty—the American girl's leg—was focal point yesterday of governmental, industrial and union inspection as the silk shortage precipitated by the Japanese situation ceased being a speculation and became a sheer fact.

Emerging from a day-long meeting with the office of price control and civilian supply and the priorities division of OPM, silk importers, brokers, manufacturers and retailers admitted that the future for the Nation's Dietrichs looked dark indeed.

The supply of silk stockings on hand in warehouse and on store shelves is enough to last only about three months.

Ninety-nine per cent of all America's silk is imported from Japan and Japanese-controlled parts of China. Faced with an absolute dead end and no source of supply the Government and the silk dealers yesterday gnawed unhappily on their knuckles and talked wishfully about allocating what is left of silk stock after defense needs, using substitutes, "conditioning American women to errhh-ah cotton and rayon combination stockings."

Discussed tentatively at yesterday's meeting was the possibility of introducing the British method of substituting for silk appeal in times of acute shortage. The British go bare-legged or paint their legs with a special type of cosmetic which passes at 50 paces for stockings but does not stand up under close scrutiny. Harking back to the tatooed lady in the circus and the penchant of sailors for hearts and flowers entwined on the biceps was the suggestion of indelibly "fixing" the legs with stockings.

Acting immediately to protect frantic females against profiteering, Leon Henderson's OPACS has issued an order to all retailers to keep hosiery prices at current levels.

First move toward conserving what is left of the imported legging material will be to persuade the women that stockings with cotton or rayon feet and tops are terribly chic and just as good. "We've had a lot of experience with this sort of stocking in Canada," Roy Tilles, president of Gotham Hosiery Co., said, "and the Canadian women don't seem to mind."

Best guess was that the substitutes will be cotton meshes, rayons, lace, and stockings of heavier fibers made alluring with the use of open-work. For winter wear and everyday running around, brightly colored knitted stockings in fancy stitches and perhaps gaiters will be hopefully displayed.

Late in the afternoon the union leaders stepped into the meeting with the problem of what is to be done with the 110,000 silk stocking workers who may be thrown out of jobs if the industry collapses and will be subjected to serious lay-offs at best. The answer at the day's end for the silk workers was a program of transferral to other defense industries employing similar types of skilled labor.

Lightning Fells Three Children

All were taken to the Washington Sanitarium at Takoma Park.

In Washington, at least one high tension power line was felled by the storm. Because of static caused by the storm, the police radio dispatcher ordered police cars to turn off their radios and go to precinct stations to receive calls.

Drowned here yesterday were Charles Thornton, Negro, 9, of 131 N Street Southeast, who was swimming with companions in the Eastern Branch, and another Negro youth, unidentified, who was bathing in the Potomac. The latter's body was removed to the District Morgue.

Yesterday's lower temperatures, as compared with the previous day's 100-degree heat, resulted from a mass of cool air moving in from the Atlantic, but the respite will be brief, according to the weatherman.

He said the District will be lucky if it's cloudy today and tomorrow, in which case the mercury may not go above 90. Yesterday's high of 82 came at noon. After the storm the thermometer had dropped to 73.

Washington's humidity yesterday was described by the Weather Bureau as "typical for this area in summer."

Stimson Apologizes to Senator Wheeler

Senators, however, took Wheeler's part Monday, during a rousing session of the Senate in which Stimson came in for intense criticism.

Senator Wheeler, informed last night of Stimson's statement, said, "It was a very decent thing for him to do."

Stimson's statement follows:

Secretary Stimson's statement said:

"The inquiry now being made by the War Department of the post-offices of the larger cantonments of the Army indicates that not three but at least several hundred of the circulars sent out by Senator Wheeler did reach soldiers of the United States Army. The inquiry has also developed evidence of organized attempts by other persons to arouse disloyalty on the part of the soldiers in the cantonments toward the training plans of their officers. The danger to the national defense of such attempts is obvious and will receive the careful attention of the Department.

"On the basis of Senator Wheeler's statement in the Senate as to the time and method of the issuance of his circular, I believe that he has shown the absence of any intent on his part to circularize the soldiers in the training camps. I am sorry that on the basis of incomplete evidence I made a statement last week which carried a contrary implication."

President Denies Knowing Status of Wheeler's Son

President Roosevelt yesterday disclaimed any knowledge of the naval status of Richard Wheeler, son of the Democratic Senator from Montana, and reproved a reporter who asked him about it.

The question concerned an assertion made Monday by Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate Naval Committee. Walsh told the Senate that an admiral, whom he did not identify, had rejected an application of young Wheeler for a commission, after the son had said he shared his father's views. Later, Walsh said, Secretary of the Navy Knox overruled the admiral.

Mr. Roosevelt told the reporter his question was improper. He added that it obviously would have to be referred to Knox since he knew nothing about the affair.

Rich Find Out Heirs Don't Want Fortunes Except in Hard Cash

This is the third in a series of articles, depicting the fate of American society, under the impact of war, high taxes, the new tempo of national life.

By Inez Robb
International News Service Writer

New York, July 29.—The families of the present social scions have been forced to learn a harsh, dual truism: (1) You can't take it with you and (2) your heirs don't want it unless it is in hard, cold cash on the barrel head.

This is no indication that the heirs are a hard, mercenary, unsentimental lot. Rather, it is a testament of the complete change, a change that has transformed great houses and kindred possessions into drugs on the market.

Heirs and owners of houses in Fifth Avenue or on the fashionable East Side are in luck. They can usually sell the mansions for approximately the assessed value of the land. The 41-foot Harris Fahnestock mansion at 15 East Sixty-sixth Street has just been sold for $40,000.

One-Tenth of Cost

The house was built only 16 years ago at the cost of $400,000 to build. It would probably cost twice as much to duplicate today. Yet it sold for approximately the present value of New York real estate in that area—$1,000 per front foot.

If that mansion had been in Newport, on Long Island or in Tuxedo Park, the Fahnestock clan might finally have despaired of ever selling it and emulated the daughters of the late Judge Elbert H. Gary, who finally razed the old steel master's beautiful home at Jericho, Long Island, when no buyers appeared and taxes began to eat into the estate.

The Fahnestock house, like that of the late Clarence H. Mackay, a 50-foot palace at 5 East Seventy-seventh Street, has been sold for transformation into one-room apartments.

In the meantime, Mackay's beloved country home at Roslyn, Long Island, is closed and empty.

This country show place, where he gave for the Prince of Wales (now the Duke of Windsor) one of the finest balls in the memory of this generation, is on a scale that neither his widow, the former prima donna, Anna Case, nor his children are either able or willing to support.

Heirs Spurn Society

Like the children of so many parents whose lives were wrapped up in society, the son and two daughters of the late Clarence Mackay don't give a hoot about society. The son, John W. Mackay, lives in an unpretentious house at Roslyn, like any other commuter.

Of the two daughters, Mrs. Irving Berlin is too devoted to her husband, her children and her writing to pay the slightest heed to the Four Hundred. The other daughter, Mrs. Robert Z. Hawkins, is married to a Reno attorney and spends most of her time in that small Navada town.

By any standards the Mackay heirs are rich. But like the children of other bygone social leaders, such as the late Mrs. William Astor, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs and Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, they have an active aversion for anything resembling social leadership.

A Matter of Time

What has happened to Fifth Avenue as a residential thoroughfare is a story too old for retelling. With the passing of the Cornelius Vanderbilt mansion on the northwest corner of Fifth at Fifty-first Street, only two private residences will remain below Sixtieth Street. The old brownstone front on the southeast corner of Fifth at Forty-eighth Street belongs to the French widow of Robert Walter Goelet, who died recently.

The second old brownsone mansion, on the northeast corner of Fifth and Forty-seventh Streets is occupied by Finley J. Shepard, widower of the late Helen Gould Shepard, daughter of Jay Gould.

But it is only a matter of time until these houses disappear, too. They occupy parcels of real estate for which taxes can only be supported by business properties.

Space to House Army Unit Sought In New Center

Officials at the new Municipal Center today will seek 10,000 square feet of space to house a portion of the Army Quartermaster Corps.

The Army yesterday asked the Commissioners to provide office facilities for some 600 Quartermaster Corps employes.

Under tentative arrangements, the Police Department will be forced to give up eight of its rooms, and the Department of Vehicles and Traffic and Fire Department will relinquish two rooms each.

Both Police Supt. Brown and Traffic Director Van Duzer said last night that they were uncertain as to what portions of their divisions will be moved. The War Department already occupies half of the building.

blindness dims her eyes.

She heard he was taking a train to Hyde Park, N. Y. last Thursday night. So she went down to Union Station to try to catch a glimpse of him there. But just as she arrived the great gate at the railroad tracks swung closed and the Presidential Special pulled out of sight.

Mrs. Jordan was almost ready to give up—but not quite. Then the President read a story in The Washington Post about her unsuccessful attempt to see him at Union Station. He told his secretary to put her on his appointment list.

So yesterday Mrs. Jordan, dressed in her Sunday best, steel-rimmed spectacles strengthening the dimming sight, came to see the President. She came with Representative Hugh Peterson, of Georgia.

She shook the President's hand. She told him of how she has been married three times, that though she has no cildren of her own, literally dozens call her "Ma" or "Grandma Jordan."

Her Family Is Ready

Finally, she told him that all her family is "ready to fight" to defend the country.

When she left his office, there were reporters to meet her.

"What did he say to you?" they asked.

"He told me the South was 100 per cent for defending our free institutions," she said.

"I think he's the finest man on earth."

And then she smiled. In a week she would go back home to Georgia. But her eyes had seen the President of the United States.

tive muntitions which they have made or captured, the courage, skill and audacity of their striking forces, the ruthlessness of their centralized war direction, the prostrate condition of so many great peoples under their yoke, the resources of many lands which may to some extent become available to them, all these restrain rejoicing and forbid the slightest relaxation.

"Invasion Season at Hand"

"It would be madness for us to suppose that Russia or the United States are going to win this war for us. The invasion season is at hand. All the armed forces have been warned to be at concert pitch by September 1 and to maintain the utmost vigilance meanwhile. We have to reckon with a gambler's desperation—which, by a mere gesture, decreed the death of three or four million Russian and German soldiers."

Churchill vigorously attacked Sir John Wardlaw-Milne; Leslie Hore-Belisha, former war secretary, and other critics for what he called "the ill-smelling posy" of production criticism which "happily has no relation to the facts."

He lamented the effect in America of Wardlaw-Milne's statement that British production is only 75 per cent of potential, and cried out that this was "meat and drink" to Uunted States isolationists. Wardlaw-Milne, however, stuck to his guns in a brief speech later.

Bitterly, Churchill said, "We are told how badly labor is behaving from a number of people who never did a day's work in their lives."

Today, he pointed out, "there was no stoppage of work of any kind arising from a trade dispute in any part of Great Britain," although in the last war labor strikes were rife.

"As to bombers," he said, "British production alone, without taking into account American, has doubled our power of bomb discharge on Germany at 1,500 miles range. In the next three months, taking in American reinforcement, we shall double it again, and in the next six months after that we shall redouble it."

Saltonstall Signs Law Redistricting State

Boston, July 29 (AP).—Republican-drafted legislation realigning Massachusetts' Congressional districts and eliminating the district now served by Representative Thomas N. Eliot (Democrat), of Cambridge, was signed into law late today by Gov. Leverett Saltonstall.

The measure reduces the Bay State's representation in the National House from 15 to 14 members. Democrats protested that it constituted a "vicious gerrymander."

on the final motion to recommit the bill. On that motion, Republican managers had planned to couple a joint return repealer with a proposal to broaden the income tax base.

Proposed modification of the iron-clad rule, while it paved the way for House approval of closed tax procedure, opened the bill to the risk of a $305,000,000 loss in revenue in event joint return provisions are rescinded.

Should the move against joint returns win, indications were the House would be recessed while the Ways and Means Committee launched a quick hunt for 305 million dollars revenue from other scources to plug the gap.

Surtax May Be Raised

Most likely alternative, it was said, would be revivial of the original steep Treasury surtax rates on individuals, starting the surtax at 11 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income, instead of 5 per cent as now proposed.

Committee spokesmen are prepared to tell the House it must choose between joint returns, affecting about 4 per cent of the taxpayers, and individual surtax increases affecting some 96 per cent, it was learned.

When the House adjourned yesterday without action on the tax rule, House Minority Leader Martin told reporters "they haven't got the votes" to adopt the rule. Leaders declined to concede this but immediately called a conference in the office of Speaker Rayburn.

Challenged by Nine States

Conferring with Speaker Rayburn, Majority Leader McCormack and the House Parliamentarian, Lewis Deschler, were Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee and Representative Cooper (Democrat), of Tennessee.

Following the conference, Rayburn told reporters Doughton had agreed to an effort to get a new rule permitting a separate vote on the joint return provision.

Main opposition to joint return provisions has come from the nine community property States, where couples are permitted to share equally their income for income tax purposes. Representatives from these States have challenged the constitutionality of the joint return move.

Ritz Hotel Sold At Auction Here

The Ritz Hotel at 920 F Street Northwest was sold at public auction yesterday to Milford F. Schwartz for $70,000, subject to a first trust securing the principal sum of $30,000. Sale was advertised by the American Security & Trust Co., trustees, anad Vernon G. Owen was the auctioneer.

The building, of five stories, was erected as an office building in 1911 for Benjamin Schwartz, original owner, at an estimated cost of $18,000. Frank P. Heil was the builder and Samuel R. Turner, the architect.

Driest of All Wars, Nazi Writer Finds

By Hans Huffzky
German Journalist

With the German Army on the Eastern Front, July 29.—This war is the driest of all wars.

That is because it leads past too few water mains, fewer than in Poland and fewer than in France.

Flap down your dust-coated eyelashes, comrade, and think back—think of France: Wasn't that then one vast water fountain compared with this country.

Yesterday we passed a village as we rolled along the marching route of our panzers. For hours before we had located it on our map. Now it must still be ten kilometers away, now only five, now just one more—there it was, the village, there was the first house and there, too, was the first bucket-well.

Down deep with the pail—up it came with mire and mud. On to the next well! It yielded only a brownish broth.

No City of "M" Left

The wells already had been drawn dry by our comrades. So once again we cannot wash ourselves tonight. Wash? Why for Heaven's sake, we haven't the faintest intention of washing. There isn't water for that. All we want is to just dip our hands once, just to cool our burned brows and necks a bit.

This morning we were to drive through the city of "M" (obviously Minsk). We figured it out: There must be so and so many hydrants, for drinking, for cooking, for washing, for filling our field flasks.

When we reached "M" we didn't come to "M," for it is something that doesn't exist anymore and you can't come to it. We reached "M" only according to our maps. For "M" was in reality nothing but a bit of smouldering landscape. I say landscape because the chimneys which remained standing between the wooden houses looked from afar like trees. The fleeing Soviet had with his artillery shot "M" into the ground and burned it down completely.

Back home in our German garrisons a field flask full of water isn't worth a straw. There it merely weighs down the belt from which so many other things are already hanging.

Water Biggest Luxury

But a field flask with drinking water, tea or coffee today in the East is worth more than anything that can happen to you.

That comrade begs as though he wanted to borrow 100 marks from you. Or he offers you other luxuries in exchange, a whole frying pan full of butter, one dozen eggs, 100 cigarettes—whatever he just happens to have.

The other day one lad offered for one field flask full of tea one pair of boots which he had found abandoned in Soviet barracks and which he really intended as a substitute for his own, which already were pretty dilapidated.

The loveliest vehicles in this war are those from whose tops protrude little stovepipes—the field kitchens. Not on account of the pork roast which they offer you, and not on account of the pea soup, but solely on account of their tea. Whether the field kitchens are standing or moving they are always surrounded. And if it be only three swallows, comrade!

In peacetime the field kitchens usually heat their kettles for drinkables twice daily, once for the morning, once for the evening coffee. In this war they haven't become cold for a single hour. They boil 10 and 12 times during the day and night. One can come to them of mornings at 4, or nights at 11, during the pause between skirmishes, or in the midst of the din of battle—their chimneys invariably exuding smoke, and their kettles will grow cold for the first time only after the last shots of this campaign have been fired.

Washing Like Dissipation

How was it, anyway, at home? How many meters of waterspout did one need every morning for washing a face that after all was really quite clean?

Yesterday for the first time in a long while I was privileged really to wash and shave myself. It was a veritable dissipation I indulged in with that water. Why, I had two whole drinking cups full of water for it!

The other day in an abandoned villa of high Soviet commisars we ran into a tremendous booty: We didn't take the phonograph, nor the books and cutglass candelabra, but five empty wine bottles. Then one comrade panhandled his way up and down our materials avenue and "touched" the field kitchens. Each filled one bottle for him.

Unfortunately the fifth bottle sustained a crack from hot tea. The comrade was roundly blamed for acting so carelessly—why didn't he warm up the bottle slowly?

The saddest soldiers' eyes I have encountered were on the bridges across the large rivers, across the Berezina, the Dnepr, eyes of men who for days hadn't come off their dirty, grimy vehicles and out of their hot, dust-covered jackets and trousers, and who now—the burning sun on a sweaty military cap—were crossing the cool water.

Never have there been such sad, thirsty eyes during so proud a ride, during their ride across the great streams of an opponent who is forever retreating farther eastward.

We yearn for so much—for example, for one hour without the din of battle, for one stretch of summer landscape that doesn't smell of conflagration and death, for one walk through a street of peace with children's laughter and clinking of glasses reaching your ear from a jolly window. Yet all this becomes threadbare and infinitesimal compared with the yearning for the great water, for water for drinking, for bathing, for nonsensical wallowing.

For:

This war is the driest of all wars!

Quezon Offers Philippine Defense Funds

President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines has offered President Roosevelt $54,000,000 in Philippine funds in this country for use in the joint defense of the Philippines, and legislation shortly will be introduced in Congress to make this available.

Joaquin M. Elizalde, resident commissioner from the Philippines, disclosed Quezon's cabled offer last night and predicted the funds shortly will be put to work for Philippine defense under guidance of United States military and naval authorities.

A joint Army and Navy board has worked out details of how the money will be spent and estimates shortly will be recommended by the Budget Bureau to free by formal appropriation sums held for the Philippines by the Treasury, Elizalde said.

The 54 million dollars comprises partly money authorized by Congress to compensate the Philippines for losses suffered in the dollar-devaluation program and partly money due the Philippines from Treasury collections on sugar excises.

The Philippine commissioner said ten million dollars already has been advanced from general defense funds for the joint defense project, to be later paid out of the Philippine gift.

Elizalde said Philippine citizens were "100 per cent loyal." Expressions that his countrymen were "ungrateful" or "disloyal," voiced in connection with the Philippine independence movement, are now being disproven, the commissioner said.

"If there is a war, Philippine soldiers will fight just as vigorously as the men from the States," Elizalde said last night.

By the Associated Press

Berlin, July 29.—A running fight lasting for days between German submarines protected by so-called "safety craft" and a British Atlantic convoy has resulted in the destruction of 21 British ships, Adolf Hitler's headquarters announced in a special communique tonight.

The "safety craft" themselves sank one British destroyer and one corvette, while the submarines sent to the bottom 116,500 tons of British merchant shipping, the announcement said.

Heralding the feat as "a big success in the Battle of the Atlantic," the high command said that the submarines sank the ships despite being "hard-pressed by destroyers, corvettes, submarine traps and auxiliary cruisers."

Except to state that it lasted for days, the special communique gave no further details of the battle, but previously a military spokesman had indicated that the clashes began early Monday morning and continued through last night.

Informed quarters explained that the "safety craft" discharged "well-aimed torpedoes which sank the destroyer and the corvette in a few minutes.

No precise description of the boats was released.

This was the first large-scale submarine operation reported recently.

"There have been fewer convoys," a spokesman said. "We cannot expect our U-boats to sink convoys where there are none."

Senators, however, took Wheeler's part Monday, during a rousing session of the Senate in which Stimson came in for intense criticism.

Senator Wheeler, informed last night of Stimson's statement, said, "It was a very decent thing for him to do."

Stimson's statement follows:

Secretary Stimson's statement said:

"The inquiry now being made by the War Department of the post-offices of the larger cantonments of the Army indicates that not three but at least several hundred of the circulars sent out by Senator Wheeler did reach soldiers of the United States Army. The inquiry has also developed evidence of organized attempts by other persons to arouse disloyalty on the part of the soldiers in the cantonments toward the training plans of their officers. The danger to the national defense of such attempts is obvious and will receive the careful attention of the Department.

"On the basis of Senator Wheeler's statement in the Senate as to the time and method of the issuance of his circular, I believe that he has shown the absence of any intent on his part to circularize the soldiers in the training camps. I am sorry that on the basis of incomplete evidence I made a statement last week which carried a contrary implication."

President Denies Knowing Status of Wheeler's Son

President Roosevelt yesterday disclaimed any knowledge of the naval status of Richard Wheeler, son of the Democratic Senator from Montana, and reproved a reporter who asked him about it.

The question concerned an assertion made Monday by Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate Naval Committee. Walsh told the Senate that an admiral, whom he did not identify, had rejected an application of young Wheeler for a commission, after the son had said he shared his father's views. Later, Walsh said, Secretary of the Navy Knox overruled the admiral.

Mr. Roosevelt told the reporter his question was improper. He added that it obviously would have to be referred to Knox since he knew nothing about the affair.

to the ground.

All were taken to the Washington Sanitarium at Takoma Park.

In Washington, at least one high tension power line was felled by the storm. Because of static caused by the storm, the police radio dispatcher ordered police cars to turn off their radios and go to precinct stations to receive calls.

Drowned here yesterday were Charles Thornton, Negro, 9, of 131 N Street Southeast, who was swimming with companions in the Eastern Branch, and another Negro youth, unidentified, who was bathing in the Potomac. The latter's body was removed to the District Morgue.

Yesterday's lower temperatures, as compared with the previous day's 100-degree heat, resulted from a mass of cool air moving in from the Atlantic, but the respite will be brief, according to the weatherman.

He said the District will be lucky if it's cloudy today and tomorrow, in which case the mercury may not go above 90. Yesterday's high of 82 came at noon. After the storm the thermometer had dropped to 73.

Washington's humidity yesterday was described by the Weather Bureau as "typical for this area in summer."

Silk Leg Future Bare Indeed; Hose Supply to Last 3 Months

By Lee Carson
International News Service Staff Writer

That internationally famous pillar of beauty—the American girl's leg—was focal point yesterday of governmental, industrial and union inspection as the silk shortage precipitated by the Japanese situation ceased being a speculation and became a sheer fact.

Emerging from a day-long meeting with the office of price control and civilian supply and the priorities division of OPM, silk importers, brokers, manufacturers and retailers admitted that the future for the Nation's Dietrichs looked dark indeed.

The supply of silk stockings on hand in warehouse and on store shelves is enough to last only about three months.

Ninety-nine per cent of all America's silk is imported from Japan and Japanese-controlled parts of China. Faced with an absolute dead end and no source of supply the Government and the silk dealers yesterday gnawed unhappily on their knuckles and talked wishfully about allocating what is left of silk stock after defense needs, using substitutes, "conditioning American women to errhh-ah cotton and rayon combination stockings."

Discussed tentatively at yesterday's meeting was the possibility of introducing the British method of substituting for silk appeal in times of acute shortage. The British go bare-legged or paint their legs with a special type of cosmetic which passes at 50 paces for stockings but does not stand up under close scrutiny. Harking back to the tattooed lady in the circus and the penchant of sailors for hearts and flowers entwined on the biceps was the suggestion of indelibly "fixing" the legs with stockings.

Acting immediately to protect frantic females against profiteering, Leon Henderson's OPACS has issued an order to all retailers to keep hosiery prices at current levels.

First move toward conserving what is left of the imported legging material will be to persuade the women that stockings with cotton or rayon feet and tops are terribly chic and just as good. "We've had a lot of experience with this sort of stocking in Canada," Roy Tilles, president of Gotham Hosiery Co., said, "and the Canadian women don't seem to mind."

Best guess was that the substitutes will be cotton meshes, rayons, lace, and stockings of heavier fibers made alluring with the use of open-work. For winter wear and everyday running around, brightly colored knitted stockings in fancy stitches and perhaps gaiters will be hopefully displayed.

Late in the afternoon the union leaders stepped into the meeting with the problem of what is to be done with the 110,000 silk stocking workers who may be thrown out of jobs if the industry collapses and will be subjected to serious layoffs at best. The answer at the day's end for the silk workers was a program of transferral to other defense industries employing similar types of skilled labor.

Jury Condemns Attacker of Woman to Death

and "hysterical."

"The police are persecuting an innocent man," Wilson contended, "because they were on the carpet after a crime wave broke out here."

Wilson and his associate, William A. Powell, said the judgment would be appealed.

The jurors added to their verdict of "guilty" the recommendation "with the death penalty" which is binding upon the court.

Beside the rape charge, McKenzie was convicted on a charge of robbery, the maximum penalty for which is 15 years. Still pending is a charge that he robbed Miss Harper.

Judge Davidson will hear the defense motion for a new trial later in the week. Sentence will not be formally pronounced until this has been heard.

The case was the first personally prosecuted by Curran since he became district attorney more than a year ago. He was aided by Assistant District Attorney Bernard Margolius.

Time Table

This time table shows the dramatic speed with which the case was handled by the police and the prosecutors:

June 24—Mrs. Abarca robbed and ravished.

June 25—Miss Harper robbed.

June 26—Both pointed out McKenzie and he was arrested.

June 27—The police announced that Dr. Rosenberg has developed strong circumstantial evidence.

July 8—McKenzie indicted.

July 22—Last preliminary motions disposed of before Judge Davidson.

July 28—McKenzie placed on trial.

July 29—The death verdict.

Dr. R. T. Hill Dies In Dallas at 82; Noted Geologist

Dallas, Tex., July 29 (AP).—Dr. Robert Thomas Hill, 82, principal geologist of the United States Geological Survey from 1886 to 1930, died here last night.

Born in Nashville, Tenn., August 11, 1858, he became famous for his knowledge of the geology of Mexico, Central America and the Panama Canal route. In association with Alexander Agassiz, of Harvard, he explored the strata of the American-Caribbean region.

He was a paleontologist for the Smithsonian Institution in 1885. He was first to explore the canyons of the Rio Grande and made a special investigation for the National Geographic Society of volcanic disasters in Martinique.

MacArthur Urged As Chief of Staff

The Rainbow Division Veterans yesterday made public a resolution which the organization adopted urging the reappointment of Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur as chief of staff of the United States Army.

Gen. MacArthur, who was chief of staff of the Forty-second (Rainbow) Division in France, last week was called back from retirement by President Roosevelt to command America's forces in the Far East. The Senate promptly confirmed his new rank as lieutenant general.

The Rainbow Division Veterans, of which Capt. M. Manning Marcus is national president, praised MacArthur for his "high courage, extraordinary efficiency, superior mentality, boundless energy and power of effective decision, particularly under conditions of war." The resolution urging MacArthur's reappointment as Army Chief of Staff was sent to the White House.

Suspended Senate Cafe Head Indicted for Embezzlement

William W. Arbuckle, suspended manager of the Senate Restaurant, was indicted in the District Court yesterday on ten counts of embezzling Government funds.

If convicted on all the counts, Arbuckle would face a possible maximum sentence of $50,000 fine and 50 years in prison.

Senator Harry F. Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, became chairman of the Rules Committee January 21 and ordered an audit of the accounts. Arbuckle was suspended February 18 and later the matter was referred to District Attorney Edward M. Curran.

The grand jury, which heard the presentation by Assistant District Attorney Evan T. Davis, yesterday accused Arbuckle of ten defalcations, totaling $1,080, in September, 1938.

An auditor's report turned over to the prosecutors indicated 189 withdrawals by Arbuckle in 1938, 1939 and 1940. The total shortage in the account was computed at $5,709.64.

Still pending are other investigations of accounts at the Capitol. Samuel N. Hedges, superintendent of the painting and decorating shop of the Senate wing, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on June 10. He pleaded not guilty to a charge of forging a Government check and was freed on a $1,000 bond.

The Rules Committee on April 21 ordered a suspension of Edward Harvey King, auditor of the Senate Restaurant.

Senator Byrd said bonding companies have been asked to make good the losses.

Commissioners Begin Study Of Police Revamping Today

Investigation of the Metropolitan Police Department today shifts from Capital Hill to the District Building, when the Commissioners begin a study of the House inquiry report, completed last week.

Commissioner Young announced late yesterday that various Police Department heads will be called to a special conference, scheduled for sometime this week.

Walter Fowler, District budget officer and head of the municipal police investigation board appointed a month ago by the Commissioners, is expected to question police officials about their ideas for putting the recommendations into effect.

Commissioner Young said that actual testimony would not be taken until the city heads and Fowler have had an opportunity to examine the report of the House subcommittee in detail.

Considerable attention is expected to be given to civil service requirements for recruiting new members of the force and for police promotions. The subcommittee recommended dropping the civil service requirements, and the House District Committee approved.

Fowler said that his committee will look carefully into all phases of the local police training set-up with a view to complying with the House recommendations for a more intensive course of study for young officers.

He said the local investigators had been sent to Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Baltimore and Cincinnati for information about their police department organizations and training programs.

Commissioner Young said that he would invite Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, who headed the Congressional probe, to sit in on whatever conferences are held.

Major Shifts Due on Senate Committees

A meeting of the Senate Democratic Steering Committee to fill the important Senate Finance Committee chairmanship, a change possibly involving a major shift in Senate Committee personnel, was called for today by Senate Majority Leader Barkley.

Steering Committee members are expected to hear a request from Chairman George, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, that the finance post be left vacant until after Senate passage of the tax bill.

Should George be overruled, the Georgia Democrat would have to choose at once between his chairmanship of Foreign Relations or claiming chairmanship of the Finance Committee, on which he is ranking member.

Several Changes Due

George has headed both committees since the death of Senator Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, former finance chairman.

Regardless of his decision, several committees are expected to change heads as result of Senate vacancies.

Should George relinquish chairmanship of Foreign Relations, Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, strong advocate of the Administration's foreign policy, would succeed to that post.

If George retains his Foreign Relations chairmanship, Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, now chairman of the Senate Naval Committee, would have the first seniority claim to become Finance Committee chairman. If Walsh shifted posts, Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, now Territories Committee chairman, would be in line to succeed Walsh as Naval Affairs chairman.

Also slated to be filled today was the post of chairman of the minor but important Committee on Audit and Control left vacant by the retirement of Byrnes. Administration leaders were said to prefer Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, for this assignment, although a number of candidates were in the field.

Being considered for appointment to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to fill posts formerly held by Harrison and Justice Byrnes of the Supreme Court there were reported to be Senator Lucas, Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma; Senator Hill (Democrat), of Alabama, and Senator Chandler (Democrat), of Kentucky, and Senator Hughes (Democrat), of Delaware.

Guy Mason Sworn in as District Commissioner While Young Is Elected President of Board

GUY MASON IS SWORN IN—In the office of Commissioner John Russell Young (center), Guy Mason, lawyer and former newspaperman, was sworn in yesterday as District Commissioner. Charles E. Stewart (right), of United States District Court, administered the oath of office

Commissioner John Russell Young late yesterday was elected president of the Board of District Commissioners.

His selection as chief "City Father" followed brief but colorful ceremonies at which Guy Mason, attorney and former newspaperman, was inducted as new Commissioner.

Some 200 persons—friends and future associates at the District Building — milled together and mopped their brows as Mason took the oath of office in the fifth floor office of Commissioner Young.

The oath was administered by Col. Charles E. Stewart, clerk of the United States District Court and a close friend of the new Commissioner.

Commissioner Mason is apparently a man of few words. He was introduced to District Building workers by Commissioner Young, who praised him as "a capable and conscientious worker."

Mason, dressed in a white linen suit, blue and red tie and two-tone black and white shoes, stepped forward from behind Young's desk, and said:

"Thank you for those kind words."

He stepped back, and Commissioner Young turned to the group in the room and remarked:

"That's fine. I had hoped there would be no speechmaking."

Among those witnessing the ceremony was Stephen T. Early, secretary of President Roosevelt, and friend of both Young and Mason.

After the induction ceremony, Mason told reporters he "wanted to get acquainted with things before I do or say anything."

Traffic was the only District problem on which Mason would offer an observation. He said:

"I have been an automobile driver since 1918, and have never had a ticket, and as long as I am Commissioner I never will fix a ticket."

After Mason had been congratulated by his future coworkers, Commissioner Young announced that the new board was going to be "one big, happy family."

"I have known Guy Mason since my early cub reporting days," said Young, "and I welcome the opportunity of again being associated with him.

"I am sure the Board of Commissioners as now constituted will accomplish great things."

Present at the swearing-in were leaders of the various District departments, civic organizations and William E. McReynolds, also a member of the President's secretarial staff.

Mason will take over the office and space of Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, who died July 15. He said that there would be no change in the office staff assigned to Hazen.

As president of the Board of Commissioners, Young becomes head of the Police and Fire Departments, as well as other major units of the District government.

These include auditor's and disbursing offices, the Board of Tax appeals, assessor, corporation counsel, Real Estate Commission, office of the tax collector, Department of Vehicles and Traffic, Department of Weights and Measures, and recorder of deeds.

As part of his duties, Commissioner Young also will be president of the Commission on Licensure of the Healing Art, chairman of the District Unemployment Compensation Board, and chairman of the Alley Dwelling Authority.

Commissioner Mason will head the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, the Health Department, Insurance Department, District Pound and purchasing office. He also becomes a trustee of the Columbia Hospital and the National Training School for Boys.

Ruth Burnside, Missionary, Asked To Leave Japan

Miss Ruth Burnside, of Hyattsville, is affected by a recent order of the Episcopal Church urging that their missionaries in Japan take a furlough during the present emergency.

The Right Rev. Charles S. Reifsnider, the Episcopal Church's adviser in Japan and for whom Miss Burnside is acting secretary, issued the order through the national council of the denomination, the Associated Press reported.

Miss Burnside went to Japan in 1923.

Mrs. Waldo Burnside, of 13 Avon Avenue, a sister-in-law of the missionary, said she had received no recent correspondence from the national council or from Miss Burnside regarding her status. The Associated Press report indicated that some missionaries and other church workers might return to America or be assigned to Hawaii, Alaska or the Philippines.

Housing Projects For DefenseNamed

Names for eleven Government defense housing projects in the District and eight States were approved yesterday by Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody.

The District project, for which a site in the Washington Highlands section of Anacostia was selected recently, will be called "Highland Dwellings."

A group of 650 dwellings under construction near Indianhead, Md., will be called "Potomac Heights." The project name was suggested by a Charles County magistrate, Otis W. Cusmond, who lives at Marbury.

D. C. to Be Short of Draft Quota

For the first time Washington's local draft boards are not going to be able to supply their quota requirements of registrants for possible induction into the Army, it was learned yesterday.

District draft headquarters has estimated that it will be shy nearly 100 registrants, principally Negroes, in filling the August quota of 836 men, which includes 271 whites and 565 Negroes to be inducted on August 1, 4, 5, 6 and 7.

Local boards have ample men but they are behind on their classifications. The shortages were mostly caused, it was said, because of the pending legislation in Congress which will defer registrants over 28 years of age. Local boards have been deferring these men tentatively.

It takes a minimum of 22 days after a registrant is notified by his local board to report for him to be physically examined and classified, besides other paper work. Consequently, local boards must maintain a reserve pool of men to provide for quota calls.

A pool totaling 2,200 men had been made available during July. These men were all classified and examined physically. However, 1,236 of these men were made unavailable for the August call because it was found that many of them were over 28 years of age. Additional paper work in connection with registration of the new 21-year-old registrants on July 1 also has slowed local boards down. Local boards will be given an opportunity to complete their August quota on August 29, it was said, which has been set as a tentative extra induction date.

Last night 550 registrants were examined at six local hospitals. These were Provdence, Garfield, Georgetown, Freedmans, Sibley and Emergency.

It was also revealed yesterday by District draft headquarters that of the 119,506 men who have thus far registered for the draft in Washington, 810 had signed by their mark. Of these 60 were white and 750 Negroes. Before legislation was passed on May 14 preventing persons who could not read or write from serving in the Army 34 men had been inducted, it was said.

Local boards have classified 17,227 men during the period from May 14 to July 15, local headquarters reported.

Freight Car Efficiency Group Formed

In a move to bring about more efficient use of freight cars in the interest of national defense, District and vicinity railroad officials yesterday organized the Washington Freight Car Efficiency Committee, and named Henry E. Stringer, vice president of the Hydraulic-Press Brick Co., as their chairman.

In a brief speech yesterday, the new chairman told of the necessity of doing away with waste in transportation.

"This is especially important in Washington, which is defense area number one," Stringer said. "There must be no obstacles to the speedy movement of defense materials."

Warren C. Kendall, chairman of the car service division of the Association of American Railroads, told the group that "freight traffic in the first six months of 1941 was 17.6 per cent higher than in the same period in 1940."

The railroads have been handling approximately 900,000 loaded freight cars per week and that may go to 975,000 cars per week, he told the railroad men. "Despite the increased traffic," Kendall said, "I do not think there need be a car shortage."

Other speakers at the committee meeting, held in the Hotel Willard, were C. J. Goodyear, chairman of the Atlantic States Shippers Advisory Board; M. J. Gormley, executive assistant of the Association of American Railroads, and Homer C. King, assistant director of the Interstate Commerce Commission's Bureau of Service.

N Street Man Held In Fatal Beating

Edwin Cruitt, 34, 2140 N Street Northwest, was ordered held for the grand jury by a coroner's jury yesterday in connection with the death of Leslie K. Mann, 45, 1318 Fourteenth Street Northwest.

Mann died at Emergency Hospital after he was beaten in his apartment last July 9. He refused to identify his assailant.

Police took Cruitt into custody, they said, because he bore marks indicating he had been in a fight and was unable to give a satisfactory explanation.

$12 HollywoodTrip Off, D.C. Boy Back

Eleven-year-old David Herman, son of Vincent Herman, 1629 Columbia Road Northwest, was safely home last night after attempting to fly to Hollywood on $12.

He attempted to buy a ticket for Hollywood at LaGuardia Field, New York, Monday after making the first leg of his journey from Washington by train. Police stopped him and he was returned home yesterday by train.

A patch-work bill intended to give cotton and wheat farmers higher prices for their crops this year won Senate approval yesterday after more than five hours of wrangling and voting.

A major provision of the hotly debated measure, which now goes to the House, would prevent the Government from marketing its loan stocks of 6,000,000 bales of cotton and nearly 300,000,000 bushels of wheat during the present European war.

The loan stocks were acquired by the Government as a result of price-supporting loans to farmers. Senators from the cotton and wheat belts explained that the possibility that the Government might market its stocks tended to depress market prices received for new crops. They said freezing these stocks, or keeping them from normal market and trade channels, would allow farmers to enjoy higher prices as a result of expanding needs of the defense and British-aid programs.

Much of the dispute, which ranged from angry personal exchanges to attempts at humor, centered about an attempt of Senator McCarran (Demomcrat), of Nevada, to remove a penalty of from 46 to 49 cents a bushel on winter wheat produced on excess acreage. (That is average in excess of the amount allotted to farmers under crop control programs.)

The Senate rejected it on a shouted voice vote.

At one point, Majority Leader Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, protested he did not know what the Senate was doing when it added wheat to the order freezing cotton loan stocks.

McCarran protested that Congress had increased the penalty on excess wheat from 15 to 49 cents a bushel after farmers had planted their wheat last fall and winter. He said this was unfair.

Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, then asked the Senate to remove any penalty on excess wheat used as livestock feed or for the farmer's home use. Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, and others protested that this would "destroy the present farm act."

The Lee amendment was agreed to, 34 to 23. A combination of Democrat and Republican Senators voted for it, with Majority Leader Barkley and other supporters of the Administration farm program voting with the minority.

Later the Agriculture Department made public a letter from Secretary Wickard to Chairman Fulmer (Democrat), of the House Agriculture Committee expressing opposition to such a provision. Wickard declared such legislation would make noncompliance with the AAA wheat control program "attractive."

WE'RE IN on the Ford defense job ...and proud of it!

In a few short months, out on River Rouge, the world's largest industrial plant has been enlarged and transformed to take its place as one of the most important "arsenals for Defense" in the country today.

As Ford dealers and good Americans we're four-square back of this National Defense Program—and proud of the important part Ford Motor Company is playing in it. Proud of the $35,000,000 airplane engine plant at the Rouge—proud of the new $47,000,000 bomber plant now building on a 975 acre tract at Willow Run near Ypsilanti, Michigan—proud of the staff cars, reconnaissance cars, army trucks, and bomb service trucks already delivered to the army and air corps.

You, as a car buyer, and we, as Ford dealers, have each in our ways helped create the huge Ford production facilities in Detroit. Your continued preference for Ford cars has made it possible for us right here to provide the facilities for serving your transportation needs.

Right now, along with its big National Defense job, the big Ford plant is working at full tilt to supply the demand for the 1941 Ford—the finest in Ford history. You'll find us ready to help you—to get new cars for those of you who want them as fast as we can—to give you a REAL DEAL on your trade-in right now. There never was a better Ford and . . .

Plans Completed to Greet Sergeant York; Those Trade Previews Rather Fizzle Out; News and Comment Concerning Amusement

SO IT ADDS UP TO THIS. Sergt. Alvin C. York, greatest individual hero of the First World War, will arrive at Union Station this afternoon at 12:30, to attend tomorrow night's premiere of the film based on his life at the Earle Theater. He will be accompanied by Gov. Prentice Cooper, of Tennessee, and Jesse L. Lasky, coproducer with the Warner Brothers of "Sergeant York."

JOAN LESLIE

The party will be greeted upon arrival by Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Maj. Gen. George B. Duncan, United States Army, retired, who decorated York with the Distinguished Service Cross overseas; a Tennessee Congressional delegation that will include Senators Tom Stewart and Kenneth McKellar and the Representatives from the State. Senator Robert R. Reynolds, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, and Leon Lambert, National Commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, also will be present.

Among the organizations attending the reception will be the Tennessee State Society, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, American War Mothers, Gold Star Mothers, Boy Scouts and Sons of American Legionnaires. A group of one hundred Boy Scouts will form a guard of honor.

The United States Marine Band, participating for the first time in a reception to a private citizen; the Veterans of Foreign Wars Band and the Sons of American Legionnaires Bugle and Drum Corps will also be on hand at Union Station.

Tomorrow, the Earle Theater will close its run of Bette Davis and James Cagney in "The Bride Came C.O.D.," in the late afternoon, preparatory to the evening premiere. The Davis-Cagney film will be presented only three times tomorrow, at 11 a. m., and 1:20 and 3:40 p. m.; the stage revue twice, at 12:40 and 3 p. m. Doors will close at 5:15 p. m., and reopen at 8 p. m., for the 8:45 premiere.

"Consent Decree" Previews Lay an Egg

Those "Consent Decree" trade previews of next year's motion picture product, according to all reliable report, are not doing so well. The exhibitors who fought for the privilege of looking at new films, five at a time, with nobody else around, now that they've got it are displaying an enormous indifference to the whole thing and staying away in mobs. And over the country, it probably is costing the producers $1,000,000, give or take a dollar, to put on their shows. Even after they have looked at them, the theater people seem unable to make up their minds which films they want to buy. It has been our view from the beginning—intimated here now and again—that the whole idea is cockeyed, anyhow. They'll find out!

Following her hit opposite Gary Cooper in "Sergeant York," 16-year-old Joan Leslie next will be seen in the part of the younger sister in the Warner picturization of "The Male Animal." This is the role that won Gene Tierney her shot at the fillums. And now look at her. Indeed, look at 'em both.

With official greetings apparently the vogue in the Capital this week, Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, and the entire Texas delegation in Congress will be guests of Loew's Division Manager Carter T. Barron, at the Palace tomorrow night, to see "Blossoms in the Dust," the film story of Mrs. Edna Gladney, one of the Lone Star State's great humanitarians. Mrs. Gladney, as has been chronicled here before, has devoted her life to finding homes for homeless babies and is now superintendent of the Texas Children's Home and Aid Society. She is portrayed by Greer Garson in this Technicolor production, with Walter Pidgeon as her husband, Sam Gladney.

Comes a picture postcard of John "Jeeter Lester" Barton, squatting in his garden at St. James, Long Island, with this legend on the other side: "On the road again next week and hope to have the pleasure of seeing you. Had a wonderful vacation. It's great how us Lesters love the land."

Preserving-the-Eternal-Unities Note

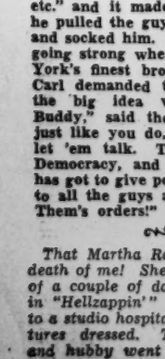
HEDDA HOPPER

Amid the Alien Corn

Hollywood, Calif., July 29. The war's been blamed for many things—falling off of trade in the picture theaters, scarcity of luxuries, in fact, anything that upsets our normal routine and we can't find a handy alibi for, we blame on the war. Well, the war can be blessed for one thng. It's taken all the temperament out of our foreign actors. There isn't a complaint in a carload. They were among the most difficult in days gone by. They wouldn't cooperate for publicity stunts, and this business lives on publicity. Now, I'll be durned if they aren't suggesting things to do to keep 'em in the spotlight. Of all the willing workers, they're now taking prizes, and have just discovered what a cozy place Hollywood really is.



MARTHA SCOTT

Martha Scott is chuckling over her husband, Carl Alsop's last letter. Seems he'd heard a soapbox orator in Times Square, spouting his head off about "Down with the Government, etc." and it made him so mad he pulled the guy off his perch and socked him. The fight was going strong when one of New York's finest broke it up and Carl demanded to know what the big idea was. "Listen, Buddy," said the cop, "I feel just like you do, but we gotta let 'em talk. This here is a Democracy, and a Democracy has got to give police protection to all the guys as are agin' it. Them's orders!"

That Martha Raye will be the death of me! She got in the way of a couple of darts for a scene in "Hellzappin'" and had to go to a studio hospital to have punctures dressed. That night she and hubby went to Ocean Park and came home loaded down with knupie dolls they'd won throwing darts at the balloon concession.

Betty Compton, the former Mrs. Jimmy Walker, is taking a dancing teacher's training course at Arthur Murray's school . . . When a certain actress told Boots Mallory she was going to be married for the fifth time, Boots said, "Oh, you must be suffering from groomatism."

Paramount is doing some hectic angling to get Ann Sheridan for a picture. When they had her, they couldn't see her for their dust—running the other way! . . . Paulette Goddard is practically set for "The Lady Has Plans," a broad comedy dealing with espionage . . . Preston Sturge's son can't leave the hospital until he builds weight up to 6 pounds.

And One of Them Is a Winner!

LUPE VELEZ,

long one of the cinema's most fiery front-runners, endeavors to impart some of her pep to Barrancosa, between scenes of Kay Kyser's new RKO-Radio picture, "Playmates." Barrancosa, one of the nags in Bing Crosby's racing stable, couldn't have a livelier one. If he can't win now, the glue factory!

LEONARD LYONS

New York, July 29.

Jose Iturbi is planning a $100,000 law suit, as a result of the Robin Hood Dell incident and the publicity which made it appear that he had refused to conduct at a Benny Goodman concert. Iturbi says that the true facts weren't revealed. He will not, however, involve Goodman in that suit . . . Sinclair Lewis, following the John Barrymore pattern in "My Dear Children" at the Stony Creek Theater, is ad libbing comments about friends of his who are in the audience . . . Gypsy Rose Lee, the strip-teaser, will entertain at Fort Monmouth, N. J., on Monday night. Miss Lee is inviting "yoo-hooing."

CLARE BOOTHE

Ed Beattie, who covered the foreign capitals for United Press, has completed a book based upon the many visas in his passport—each a reminder of a story he tells about his stay in that country. Some of the chapters are devoted to Beattie's stay in Germany. George T. Bye, his agent, will not offer the book for publication—unless and until America should be involved in the war. The United Press—which still has correspondents in Germany—requested Beattie to hold off publication until then

Cass Canfield, the publisher, sat next to Clare Boothe at a party and listened to a discussion of the Far East crisis. Canfield, who once walked clear across China, heard the guests arguing about a realistic attitude toward the problem. One of them suggested that a few good long-range bombers easily could raze the city of Tokio—to which Miss Boothe replied that this would not destroy the morale of a people already inured to periodic destruction by earthquake . . . "Speaking realistically," a newspaperman interposed, "let's not forget the strange Oriental mind. Remember—that quite often Japanese will commit hari-kari if you just stick out your tongue at them" . . . "As long as we're being realistic," was Canfield's summation, "we can settle all this by sending an army of men with long tongues to stick out at Japan's fleet."

Frank Fay wandered into Lindy's and sighed: "Well, I just cleared up my matters with the Draft Board." When his incredulous listeners who had seen Fay perform at the Palace so many years ago—questioned him about "this Draft Board matter" Frank assured them it was true . . . that as soon as he read of the emergency he went to the board and said: "Well, here I am. Fayzy, with the ta-ra-ta-ta-ta. Y'know. Defense" . . . The chairman asked him: "Are you 36?" and Fay replied: "Easily" . . . Frank ignored the board's next question, which was: "Are you sure you've got the right war?" . . . "What happened then?" asked Frank's Lindy audience . . . "They gave me a physical examination," he reported, "then they called a cab—and sent me home."

Harpo Marx, the practical jokester, will have to restrain himself this weekend, when he'll go to Woollcott's island, where Eleanor Roosevelt will be a guest.

Thorne Family Of 6 ALL Out For Defense

The Thorne family believe in the defense effort and prove their belief with sweat and elbow grease.

They had a hand in the beginning of the aluminum campaign collection and were well up to their neck in its ending yesterday.

Charles "Big Boy" Thorne, jr., 13, leader of the Panther Patrol of Boy Scout Troop 42, yesterday morning turned over to Capt. Floyd A. Truscott, of the Tenth Precinct, exactly 1,082 pieces of assorted aluminum. This act brought to an end his one-man campaign to increase the Government's supply of the precious metal.

"Big Boy" did his part collecting with members of his troop last Wednesday during the official aluminum day drive. But when the day was over he wanted to do something by himself and besides he thought they had missed a lot of people.

He set a quota of 1,000 pieces to be collected. "Big Boy's" father, Charles Thorne, sr., a Marine Corps machine gun instructor during the World War and now an employe of the PWA, built a 6-foot high chicken-wire coop in the front yard of his home at 3117 Hiatt Place Northwest.

"Big Boy's" father helped him carry the pieces home. Into the coop went, among other things, two vacuum cleaners, an old fashioned aluminum radio, a wastub (the largest piece collected) and a thimble (the smallest). Soon the collection overflowed the coop. The quota was reached and passed by 32 pieces.

"Big Boy" thinks there is lots more where that came from, and he points to his pile, which is higher than his own head, to prove it.

Mrs. Thorne is supervisor of a surgical dressing unit of the District Red Cross. Each week, Mrs. Thorne and her three daughters, Murial, 15; Daris, 16, and Barbara, 19, go to the old Walsh mansion at 2020 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest to spend one or more nights sewing bandages.

The District Red Cross was one of the first groups to being collecting aluminum in Washington starting almost a week before the official campaign. The Thorne girls and their mother did their part.

During the last war Mrs. Thorne devoted much of her time being a hostess in the War Camp Community Service which finds its modern counterpart in the United Service Organization

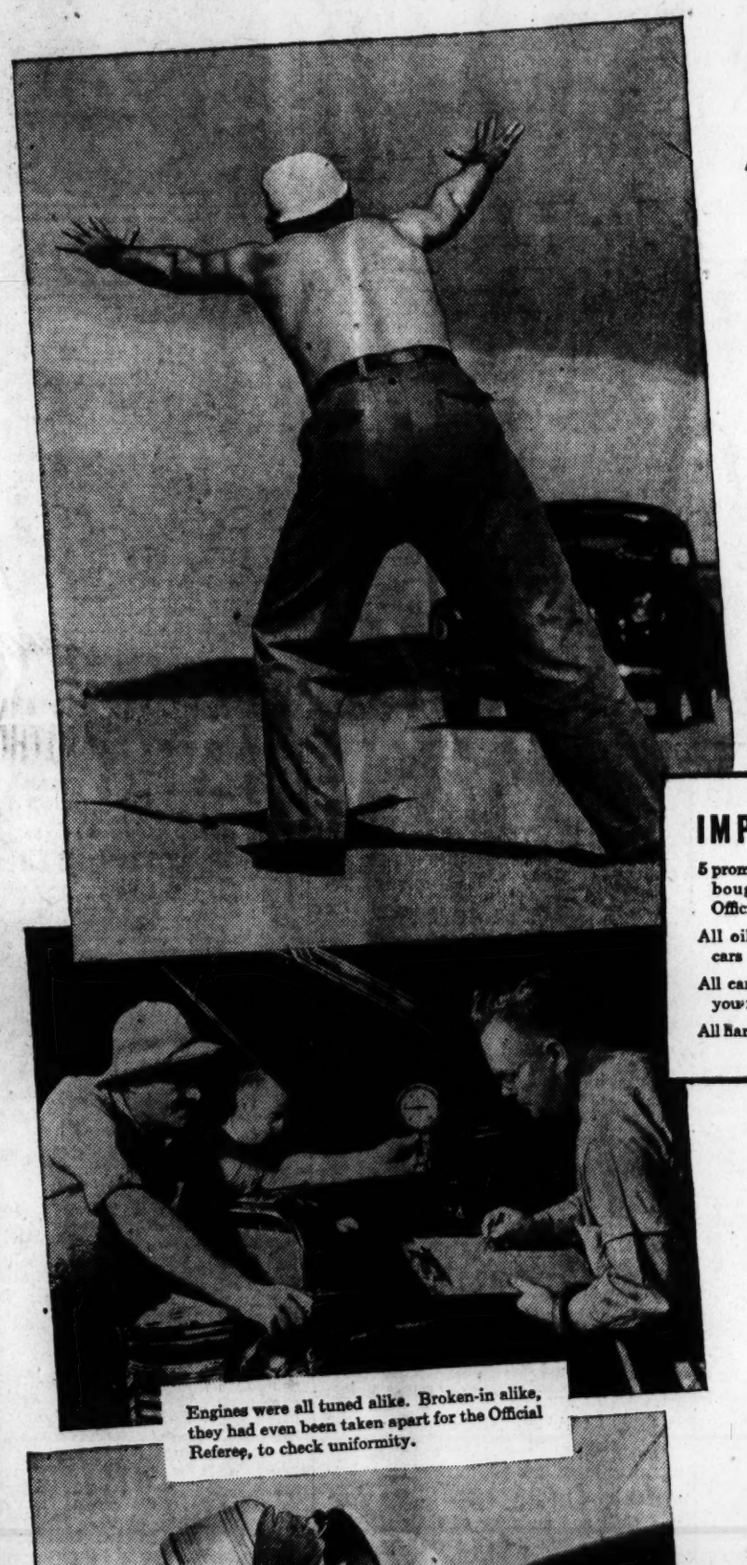
NEW OIL WINS Certified Death-Test IN "THE LAND AFIRE"
5-Quart crankcase fill—none added—lasted 13,398 miles, outlasting 5 rivals by 74% to 161%... Certified


Engines were all tuned alike. Broken-in alike, they had even been taken apart for the Official Referee, to check uniformity.
It doesn't take many miles or minutes to dry up a man in Death Valley. But Conoco Nth didn't dry up fast in that heat.
Big new oil Economy for your car forecast by Certified record
"LAND AFIRE," the redmen named red-hot Death Valley. It gashes deep into Mother Earth—down to 279 feet below sea level. It tops the U. S. A. for extreme high temperatures. It's slain men by drying them up. But only after 13,398 miles at 57 miles an hour—in a car with crankcase under lock—could all the heat of Death Valley dry up a 5-quart fill of the new oil named
CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL—
Outlasted the others in Strictly Fair Test by 5,683 miles or more!
Conoco Nth actually outlasted one big brand by 8,268 miles. Yet all 6 oils tested had exactly the same chance... in 6 new stock cars of the same make and model. All faced the same fate. For not one drop of oil could be added to the strict 5-quart fill locked in each car. And all were to run till wrecked... that's all. So it ended up in the death of 6 cars, with the 5 "also rans" averaging not even half the mileage delivered by new Conoco Nth oil ::: Certified ::: What could make such a difference?
New man-made Economy aid gives You the secret
Conoco Nth motor oil is preserved by a life-giving new synthetic—man-made under Conoco Patent 2,218,132. You know that vitamin synthetics, for instance, are making up for Nature's life-giving elements sacrificed in some modern food processing. Similarly, the latest refining methods steal some of Nature's best life-giving elements from motor oils. But more than making up for that today—in popular-priced Conoco Nth oil—is a new synthetic, called Thialkene inhibitor. It inhibits—checks—the "festering" of foul leftovers that come from the normal firing of every car engine. Check this "festering" and you can check quick spoilage and loss of oil, as Conoco Nth oil plainly proved for you in Death Valley.
IMPARTIAL
5 prominent rival oils bought retail by Official Referee.
All oils allotted to cars by chance.
All cars the same as you might own.
All handled the same.
You'll never Death-Test your Conoco Nth oil in sinister Death Valley, any more than you make your car repeat other proving-ground tortures. As always, you'll still drain and refill at intervals recommended by qualified authorities. But you'll know you're getting the same great Summer protection that made Conoco Nth sustain engine life as much as 161% longer in overheated Death Valley. And your direct cash returns from this impartial certified test will show up every time the gauge-stick says, "Nope, no quart to add yet." That's the test for you! Make it—starting now. Change at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station to this proved-in-advance new Conoco Nth motor oil. Continental Oil Company—Pioneers in Bettering America's oil with Synthetics
AND CONOCO Nth OIL OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE!
Long the keystone of Conoco success, OIL-PLATING comes from another great Conoco synthetic... man-made under the famed Germ Processed oil patent. By magnet-like action, OIL-PLATING is bonded to inner engine parts. Then it can't all drain down—not even overnight—not while you're using Conoco Nth. So OIL-PLATING is on guard against wear in advance!... and helps mileage, as it did in Death Valley. An OIL-PLATED engine is one more economy you get from a change to popular-priced new Conoco Nth oil.
CERTIFIED The Engine Destruction Test in Death Valley, testing Continental Oil Company's new motor oil and five other well-known advertised competitive brands, was closely observed by me and my assistants during the preparation of the test fleet and during the entire period of the test.
The five competitive brands were bought by us at retail and handled only under our observation. Closest possible uniformity was attained in the cars and driving conditions.
I hereby certify that the work and tests were thoroughly and fairly conducted. Engine Destruction occurred in each case at the mileage stated.

New Local Board

Within the last 16 months Washington has acquired an entirely new Board of Commissioners. The swearing-in of Guy Mason as the successor to Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen completes a series of changes that have brought new officials face to face with new municipal problems. In some respects this shift of personnel is a hopeful development. At least it should bring a freshness of viewpoint into the city's governing council. It will give a new group of men an opportunity to struggle with the gigantic forces that are today making Washington a very different city from what it has been in the past.

The responsibility of the governing board of the Nation's Capital is always onerous. In recent months, however, that responsibility has been greatly magnified by the defense program, which is bringing a vast number of new people to Washington. The city's rapid growth calls for new highways and bridges to accommodate the larger volume of traffic. Parking lots must be provided to get automobiles off the street when not in use. Many institutions vital to the health and welfare of the community must be enlarged to carry their additional burdens. This need is particularly acute in some instances because of neglect of these institutions in past years. Zoning restrictions ought to be reviewed in the light of the city's present requirements, and some form of rent control appears to be a growing necessity. To finance these many requirements, of course, new sources of revenue must be tapped.

One special problem about which the public is much concerned at present is the reorganization of the Police Department. The enlarged Capital City demands more effective law enforcement. It is up to the Commissioners to meet that demand. Should they fail to modernize the police force and bring it to a new peak of efficiency, control over this strictly local function would doubtless pass to a Federal bureau.

Overshadowing all other local issues is that concerning reorganization of the District government. Washington has outgrown the cumbersome and undemocratic system imposed upon it since 1874. An entirely new setup is needed to give the Nation's Capital the type of municipal rule it ought to have. This, of course, is a problem for Congress, but the attitude of that body may be determined in large measure by the manner in which the local board meets its current responsibilities. Too often in the past the Commissioners have adhered to a negative policy. Since they are not responsible to the people, a do-nothing policy may often seem to be expedient. But no such guiding principle can possibly serve the needs of a community growing as rapidly as is Washington. The present situation calls for courageous and forward-looking action by the board in all those fields where it has power to meet the city's growing requirements. The demand for a larger measure of home rule will be weak indeed unless the Commissioners wisely exercise what authority they have to protect the public interest in the National Capital during this turbulent period.

Hollywood's Job

Hollywood, we know, has one hard-and-fast concept based on the "pull" of the pictures it produces: when the public lays down its money at the box office, it wants entertainment, not "education." Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, restated this concept the other day when he emphasized that Hollywood's job in the national emergency is to give the public intelligent entertainment for every mood and for every requirement of recreation. This is sound sense and it ought particularly to guide producers of informational "shorts" dealing with the defense effort.

A number of these shorts, some of them prepared under Government auspices, have already appeared, and there are many more in production or scheduled. In the main, it must be admitted, defense "shorts" have failed to grip the public imagination as was intended. One reason for this, perhaps, is that for the most part they have been downright dull. This is less the fault of the subject matter than of the presentation. From the standpoint of mass morale, it is pretty generally agreed, the screen can deal more effectively with living events than can any other medium. But it is perfectly clear that unless producers find a way to enhance the dramatic and entertainment value of defense pictures, audiences will justifiably remain indifferent, thus negating the primary object of the films.

As for full-length commercial features, Hollywood long since discovered that, with few exceptions, grim anti-Nazi pictures failed to draw the big crowds. They were, of course, flagrantly propagandistic—and, since they failed to attract at the box office, they were bad propaganda at that. Now the film capital is concentrating on stories of the American way which, it is hoped, will be more appealing without being less stirring.

Public taste in pictures is changeable, but, through the whole history of motion pictures runs this constant note: significance is not achieved at the expense of entertainment. The American public, which is today the best informed and most alert in the world, has been conditioned in recent years to recognize "propaganda" and to discount it. Yet Hollywood's challenging job now is to tell the message of defense simply, interestingly, and with conviction. If that is "propaganda," it is nevertheless a national necessity. But it will not be palatable to the public without liberal and shrewd doses of creative inspiration.

Subsidized Propaganda

One fact stands out clearly from the debate on Senator Wheeler's franked antiwar card: the franking privilege is being grossly abused. That is not, of course, the impression which Senator Wheeler intended to leave with his audience. He expressed regret that he cannot frank a card opposing American participation in the war to every citizen. But the subsequent debate turned the spotlight on widespread illegal as well as unethical use of the Congressional frank. In effect leading Senators indulged in a general confession of inappropriate and wrongful shifting of postal expenses to the taxpayer.

It was Majority Leader Barkley who, almost apologetically, cited the law forbidding any person entitled to use a frank "to lend said frank or permit its use by any committee, organization, or association." That restriction does not apply to committees composed of members of Congress, but it certainly applies to the America First Committee and similar organizations. The cards sent out by Senator Wheeler were paid for by the America First Committee, and mailed out under the Senator's frank at the expense of the public. He undoubtedly lent his frank for the benefit of a private organization in violation of the law.

One would expect such conduct to bring at least a sharp rebuke from the Senate. But criticism came only from Senator Barkley, and his admonition was the mildest sort of pat on the wrist. The reason for his restraint is not difficult to find. The same sort of illegal farming out of the franking privilege was used in behalf of Senator Barkley in his last campaign, as Senator Clark of Missouri hastened to remind him. "All of us," said Mr. Clark, "have let the Democratic National Committee, or the Republican National Committee, as the case may be, frank out stuff by the hundreds of thousands of pounds under Senatorial and Congressional franks." The practice has been so general that no effective criticism or reform can be expected to originate in the Senate.

Senator Wheeler's effective refutation of Secretary Stimson's overhasty charges growing out of this incident of the antiwar cards should not be permitted to obscure the real issue that has been raised. Mr. Wheeler carelessly lent his frank to the America First Committee to propagandize a million Americans. The fact that two or three cards reached drafted men appears to have been incidental. Instead of hurling unwarranted epithets, Administration leaders should have struck at the source of the trouble—the abuse of the franking privilege. In effect, Congress now permits the subsidization of propaganda of any stripe that may win an adherent in that body. Continuation of this special privilege has no relationship to freedom of speech or of the press. In fairness to itself and to the public at which this special pleading is aimed, Congress should see to it that organizations with axes to grind, political or otherwise, stand on their own feet.

Philippines' Defense

The creation of a new Army component to be known as "the United States Army Forces in the Far East" automatically revives the perennial debate: Can we successfully defend the Philippines? Plenty of military—and armchair—strategists have said we cannot. Only a year ago Commissioner Francis B. Sayre and President Manuel L. Quezon stated publicly that an invader—meaning Japan—could not be repelled. Moreover, a great many of our military authorities in years past have warned that in fighting Japan we should have to figure on the loss of the Philippines. Almost alone among our higher officers holding the opposite view has been Lieut. Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur, who since 1935 has been military adviser to the Philippine Commonwealth.

Of special significance, therefore, is his appointment as commander of the combined United States Army in the Philippines and the entire Filipino forces. Unquestionably he knows better than anybody else the weaknesses of island defense. In 1939 he said that an invasion would cost the Japanese at least half-a-million men and five billion dollars. Whether he has since revised his estimate is not known, but it is perfectly clear that in the interim Philippine defenses have been greatly strengthened, not only by the Filipinos themselves but also by our own Army and Navy. Planes, guns and troops in ever-increasing numbers have been sent to bolster the Philippine Department of the Army. The Navy has increased its base facilities in the islands, has transferred submarines and patrol planes, particularly, from Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and is spending some ten million dollars, mostly for air fields. Since fleet units have been detached for service in the Atlantic, the Navy has sent more and more planes to Pearl Harbor. This has been necessary in order to offset the departure of warships. The Army has likewise dispatched more planes to the Hawaiian Department.

If the emergency warrants it, some of these planes, especially Consolidated patrol bombers and flying fortresses, will doubtless be sent on to the Philippines via the string of island air bases which are an integral part of our Pacific defense system.

Regardless of our admitted ability to strengthen Philippine defenses, we are scarcely likely to overcommit ourselves so long as the Battle of the Atlantic claims our prior attention. The Japanese know this, of course. And the realization probably affords them considerable comfort. While no informed person believes that Japan has immediate aggressive designs on the Philippines, neither of our armed forces takes anything for granted, least of all Japanese policy. Yet about all that can be done now is to hasten war preparations in the Philippines and to perfect plans for rushing reinforcements there. This is in itself a mighty undertaking. And it is already farther advanced than is generally supposed. Whatever the Japanese impression about the Philippines in the past, it will obviously be subject to change now that this country has made its Far Eastern policy crystal clear. For the plain truth is that from the standpoint of military expediency, now, if ever, is the logical time for Japan to attack the Philippines. Six months or a year from now, considering the anticipated increase in Philippine military and naval effectives, may well be forever too late.

Churchill's Warning

Russia's remarkable resistance has given rise both in Great Britain and this country to a mood of optimism which may easily develop into dangerous complacence. There can be no doubt that Germany's failure to repeat in Russia the striking successes she achieved in France a year ago is cheering news to all of Hitler's enemies. But the war is very far from won. It is much too early even to assume that the German war machine will indefinitely be held up by the Red army. That is why Churchill's latest warning to the British to be prepared for more trouble is very much to the point. The British people, he said, should be encouraged by "the magnificent strength and courage of Russia." The increasing strength and offensive capacity of the R. A. F. and the attitude displayed by the United States are further reasons for rejoicing. But, he added, "it is madness to suppose that Russia or the United States is going to win the war for us . . . The worst is not over. The vast mass of destructive munitions which they (the Germans) have made or captured, the courage, skill and audacity of their striking forces, the ruthlessness of their centralized war direction . . . the resources of many lands which may to some extent become available to them, forbid the slightest relaxation." Mr. Churchill went so far as to warn his people not to rule out as a possibility an attempted invasion of England in September. And while, with each week that the war in the East continues, such a likelihood becomes fainter and fainter, the necessity facing the British of being forever on their guard deserves the emphasis the prime minister gave it.

JULY, 1941

Awestruck, the cherubim and seraphim
Their anxious, wondering glances flashed around;

The four majestic beasts that guard the Throne

Pricked unaccustomed ears at the soft sound
That echoed strange through Heaven's lofty halls;

With eyes averted seven angels swept
Great wings to form a shield; and sheltered thus

The maid, St. Joan, bent low her head—and wept.

Road to the Bay

Everyone knows we need a good 4 or 6-lane dual highway to the bay and tens of thousands would be willing to pay a toll for a safe and quick ride each way.

Yesterday with thousands who had enjoyed a perfect day in the water and on the beach, we found the return trip blighted by long delays caused by numerous wrecks and grade crossing intersections. The only safe road with the rough riders who plague our highways is a foolproof dual highway with grade separated intersection, well policed. Because our gasoline tanks hold enough for a round trip, the State of Maryland does not receive much revenue from many of us who use their highways to the beaches. Hence we could and should pay a toll for a good, safe highway.

The revenue from such a toll road would amortize the bonds covering cost in a short time. When the bonds have been retired the road should be free of toll.

More About Ukrainian Drama

In The Post of July 17 I read an article by Andre Visson, "Ukrainian Drama—The Uneasy Status of Carpathian Ukraine." Frankly, I cannot find words strong enough to protest against such inaccurate and tendentious writing.

It is useless in these days to fight back at all the notorious misinterpreters and observers of the Ukrainian problem. But it is humanly impossible to remain still while someone, who—as it is clearly evident—does not really know what he is talking about, tries to tackle the "Ukrainian Drama" from the wrong angle, deliberately or otherwise. We are cursed with writers who, having read a book or two on Ukraine, or once spoken to some unidentified Ukrainian "leader," consider themselves authorities on that subject. More than often cafe-inspired, perverted information, that circulates like cheap counterfeit money, forms basis for fantastic stories passed to the readers as authoritative knowledge.

Such writers only frustrate the American efforts to help in a just solution of the European ills, by painting a wrong picture of conditions there. They do disservice to the sincere writers and, what is very important, in many cases serve certain unholy causes. Those who are touched with the idea of solving the national problems of the world by herding some of its peoples like cattle into somebody's else stables, should leave the field where the fate of countless millions of human beings is being decided. And there is no doubt that Mr. Visson is imbued with such an idea regarding the Ukrainian people, since he does not show the slightest respect for their just and natural rights and aspirations to freedom. Instead he cloaks them in a swastika marked drapery and howls "sick him!" every time he perceives a genuine Ukrainian nationalistic effort.

Mr. Visson's account of the Carpatho-Ukrainian period of 1938-39 is an absolutely false presentation of people and events. Everywhere he sees nothing but Hitler's and his Gestapo's hand. Subcarpathian Ruthenia (not "Russia," as Mr. Visson puts it) was promised autonomy by the Czechs after the last war. Everybody knows that its people are Ukrainian. Their leaders waged a long yet unsuccessful struggle with Prague for carrying out that promise. Meanwhile the country remained poor and "backward" because the Czech government, like the Hungarians in the past, cared nothing of lifting its standards of life. Artificial anti-Ukrainian trends were fostered in order to suppress the growing Ukrainian consciousness. Not until the turbulent days of 1938 did Prague finally carry out its long overdue obligation and nominated Father Woloshyn premier of Ruthenia, which then assumed the proper name of Carpatho-Ukraine. Semimilitary "Stitch" units were formed of young mountaineers who left their huts to serve the country.

But Mr. Visson wants us to understand that all this was Hitler's doing, that no Ukrainian national spirit ever existed there.

Fortunately, I happened to be in Carpatho-Ukraine in those very days, and can tell Mr. Visson some more accurate things on that subject. I saw with my own eyes how Father Woloshyn's government was developing its activity, and how the "Sichoviky" were organized and trained. I met Premier Woloshyn on more than one occasion and knew well all the people, and many more, that Mr. Visson mentions. I met there quite a few American and English newspapermen, some of whom, like Anne O'Hare McCormick, of the New York Times, later gave very true accounts of happenings there. And I traveled in that little country quite a bit, but did not see what Mr. Visson wants us to see. I can also tell him something about what he calls the "Galician Fascists," because I not only met them but actually worked with them. I can tell him that by their true name and ideology they are the Ukrainian Nationalists, whose aim is not what fascism or naziism stand for, but sovereign freedom and full liberty of all Ukraine (not only Galicia) and her people.

What Mr. Visson failed to emphasize is that even in those times no small European nation could escape German attention and forceful attempts to interfere internally.

But the main point is this: Carpatho-Ukrainian affair has been forgotten. In our days the entire Ukrainian land again bleeds under the hammering of two sinister titans. Why does Mr. Visson now drag an old skeleton out of the closet and, having painted it in devilish colors, present it to the American public? Of course, there must be a reason for that. It is not a blow at the nonexistent Carpatho-Ukraine, but a blow aimed at Ukraine and the Ukrainian independence movement in general. Not long ago Mr. Visson had another article on Ukraine in The Post and there, too, he busied himself only with stressing the "Germanic angle" of the Ukrainian issue. Evidently he believes that Hitler is going to set up a puppet Ukrainian state and, like all others opposed to Ukraine in principle, cries "wolf" in advance by warning America that Ukraine and the Ukrainian movement are German inventions. It happens that today such cries come simultaneously from all those who never conceded the Ukrainians' right to be free, beginning with Russians of Kerensky's and monarchist types, ending with the Communists. But this warning is as fabricated, as it is unnecessary. For the world need not fear. The Ukrainians had suffered enough to know what they want, and what may be just a disguised continuation of tyranny. They are after a real, sovereign independence. And if America uses more common sense and listens less to such "wolf" cries, she will have a real friend in Ukraine once that becomes independent. Especially so, if now she shows some realistic appreciation of Ukraine's aspirations.

Enforced Saving

The greatest postwar danger, economists warn us, is that of inflation. Certainly, Government experts are aware of this and are considering measures to cushion the inevitable shock. The present shortages of many commodities, they contend, will not prevent people with increased purchasing power from using their money in other channels, and I believe that is so. People with money want to spend that money and will find a way to do so.

It seems strange, therefore, that not more attention has been given in this country to the system the British adopted nearly a year ago: a system of enforced saving. British taxes are high; and British people, with bombs dropping on their homes, can understand better than most Americans why this must be so. But, in addition to paying these outright taxes, the English have allowed their government to collect additional amounts to be held in escrow and returned after the war.

Couldn't this be done in the United States, either through a system similar to that in England or through compulsory purchase of defense savings bonds? Part of the reluctance to save may be traceable to the people's distrust of their financial institutions, following the bitter experiences of 1929. But the majority of the people does have faith in the integrity of the Government and will not resist a movement to protect the American future. NORMAN A. KAHL.

Anglo-Saxon Code

What is the United States of America going to do about it? Having put the question I shall attempt the answer.

A quarter of a century ago a mad German prince was stalking the world and today another, a dictator is at large. He is hostile to democracy, arrogant to the Christian religion, persecutor of the chosen people and only recently through his controlled press a besmircher of fraternity. Rational beings, free men note with alarm this mad man who rejects equally religion, democracy, freedom, justice and fraternity. The past is prologue. Then my attempt to answer the question everyone is asking must be in accord with the Anglo-Saxon code.

Remember that little party who sailed across the Western Atlantic 300 years ago? In a little ship, a cockleshell boat, the Mayflower, they left their homes, kindred and country for the sake of God, justice, liberty, fraternity, and turned their backs, as they thought on Europe forever. Today these very same people, will be returning, sailing back across that Western Ocean, back to Europe for precisely the same cause; God, justice, human freedom. The whole world today looks to us, the Anglo-Saxon race, to bring back to the whole world those principles for which we have ever fought."

Canada's War Effort

Why is the United States in greater danger than Canada, unless our present Administration has put it there?

I wonder how many of our people are aware of the amazing fact that up to now Canada has had only 30 days of compulsory military training, that overseas service is limited to voluntary enlistments, and that Canadian war materials are sold to England only for cash, no "lend-lease" flimflam.

It is only we gullible Americans that are having indefinite conscription rammed down our throats and are allowing ourselves to be fed daily propaganda about our "all-out" patriotic duty to defend the British Empire.

The Post Impressionist

American Town

Except for a railroad station frequently referred to as "the deppo," except for a few gasoline filling tanks and a hard-surfaced road, Hudson, Ohio, has not materially changed in 100 years. As for the road, it once was the main highway, connecting Cleveland with Akron and points beyond, but a bee-line drive was built and inhabitants are no longer startled by the honk-honk and swish-swish of modern juggernauts.

Hudson is the hub of the Western Reserve, and all spokes lead to a rim of aloofness; and the Western Reserve is even more refined and cultured than that segment of land in New England where a Lodge speaks only to a Cabot and a Cabot speaks only to God.

No hotel is in Hudson to urge a stranger bide a while. During daylight hours he must transact his little business with the half dozen stores, then be on his way. In two little tea rooms, presided over by little ladies, wafer-like sandwiches are served, together with homemade pie and cake and beverages brewed from leaves brought from China and berries from Brazil. No pool room tempts young people, who never are really young; they spring from diapers into clothing patterned for adults.

Way back in the 1880's Western Reserve College was central in Hudson and students of studious mien would occasionally stroll through the village streets as late as 9 o'clock. When on other pleasure bent they would visit Cuyahoga Falls or Akron. Following an initiation Alpha Delta Phi held a banquet and hard cider was quaffed from yellow thundermugs. The scandal was not put to rest for several weeks. Soon thereafter the college became a unit in Western Reserve University at Cleveland.

The inhabitants of Hudson are affable and courteous; they even extend hands in welcome, but the accompanying smile is patronimical. A frown may pucker a brow when a visitor comments upon the attractiveness of another place, and when the comparison reflects adversely upon their exclusive domain the pucker will deepen into a near-angry frown.

No industrial plant is in Hudson to disturb air currents by the whiz of machinery, or befoul the atmosphere with acrid smoke. Occasionally an anvil chorus comes from a smithy because horses must be shod. The village is not inhabited by a farming community; the residents enjoy incomes handed down by generations of forebears, together with "God-bless-our-home" mottoes done in embroidery, albums sprinkled with tintypes; kaleidoscopes and their ancient double pictures, whatnots which stand in corners even as they did before the Civil War; wax flowers under glass, shells and other souvenirs burden their shelves. Four-poster beds, pictures which are dwarfed by broad gilt frames, crazy quilts and piece quilts that bespeak many nours, days, yes, years of patient toil, also are seen.

Spinning wheels, looms, andirons, coal scuttles, shovels, tongs and grandfather's clocks are in Hudson homes; so are spinnets and melodions, while occasionally the skeleton form of a hoopskirt is brought from a closet, to be shown an admirer who ejaculates mildly while observing relics of days of the long ago.

When handling such articles the touch of the Hudsonite is reverential and words spoken in explanation are low, indicating perhaps that louder tones might disturb bones, dust or ashes of the departed.

The one church in Hudson holds pews that are occupied by the same persons year after year.

The one bank—The First National—never will experience a run; should depositors become anxious they would walk. The public library occupies a room in the dwelling occupied by the librarian. There is no village weekly, hence the stores do not advertise their wares.

When other places discoursed upon standard time and daylight saving Hudsonites stood pat on chicken time. Voters inherit their political principles.

The ladies of Hudson make hook rugs and they are patient when telling visitors how hook rugs are made. Their bridge is one they cross when visiting Akron for a day's shopping. Gentlemen do not smoke in the house; on the street they puff cigars or pipes; cigarettes are not in harmony with surroundings.

Hudson is proud of its underground railway system and the descendants of old-timers love to tell how replicas of Uncle Tom and Eliza were aided while on their way to Canada and freedom.

The old homes in Hudson are restful to gaze upon, so are the trees. It is a little town nestling in a virgin forest. A wealthy tire manufacturer declares that Hudson is the only place in the world where one can enjoy a night's sleep.

Hudsonites rarely visit folks in other places. They mildly welcome anyone who comes to their village, but do not urge him to linger.

Hudson is sufficient unto itself; to be a resident thereof is an honor.

Freezing Of Credits

By Ernest Lindley

A Last Warning To Japan

THE OCCUPATION of southern Indo-China is probably the last major step the Japanese can take, to the southward at least, without coming into military conflict with the British-Australian-Dutch combination aided by the United States.

LINDLEY

Many officials here are not yet convinced that Japan will take the next step. There is still a chance many of them think—that wiser counsels will prevail in Tokyo. To the extent that they do, the freezing of credits may be relaxed. But the burden of proof definitely has been put on the Japs.

Unless modified, the freezing of credits would work as an embargo on trade between the United States and Japan. The Japanese would not get paid in yen for exports to this country and would have no exchange with which to buy American products. Barter deals might be devised, but almost certainly would not be used in the face of official disapproval.

THE corresponding actions of the British, Canadians and Dutch does not leave the Japanese much room for foreign trade except with Latin America. There a beginning has been made on closing the door by trade agreements between the United States, Brazil, Bolivia and Mexico. The exportable surpluses of strategic raw materials from these countries have been cornered for American defense needs. Similar arrangements are being negotiated with other Latin-American nations.

Slots can be cut in the credit-freezing near-embrace on Japan by licensing transfers of funds for specific purposes. Dispatches from Tokyo indicate that the Japanese are eager to find out if this will be done, and to what extent. The answer probably will not be given quickly. But they know that the door has not been locked.

JAPAN'S ambition to control all the Far East and Oceania is well Know. As an ally of Nazi Germany, Japan should launch the attack on the British and Dutch possessions when it will serve the Nazi purposes. Almost any time up to, and including now, would have been satisfactory to Hitler. One of his constant aims, in the opinion of our officials, has been to get a war started in the Pacific which would involve us.

But according to one version of Hitler's timetable, he now expects the Japanese to take the plunge this fall. This would be after the Germans expected to have disposed of Russia and would coincide with a great pincers movement against the British position in the Middle East and Mediterranean. The western arm of the pincers would go through Spain and Portugal and into North and West Africa. Further to divert us, some pro-Axis revolutionary coups would be attempted in Latin America, and an effort made to block the Panama Canal.

Well-informed officials think Hitler was promised the Japanese Siberia east of Lake Baikal, in a deal similar to the Nazi-Russian partition of Poland and the Baltic states. But the Japs might have more trouble taking eastern Siberia than the Russians had in occupying eastern Poland. The Russian forces in the Far East are still strong, and limited transportation facilities probably would prevent the movement of more than part of them to the European front even if they were badly needed there.

PRIOR to Nazi attack on Russia, officials here were confident the next Japanese move would be into Indo-China, as the military dispositions for this already were partly made. But military observers doubt that the Japanese will go farther in this direction until they have made a try for eastern Siberia. If the Russian regime were collapsing according to the Nazi timetable, this would come in late August or early September. Then both the Nazis and the Japs would be ready for a big push southward stretching most of the way around the world.

The Nazis seem to be falling behind schedule in Russia, however. While some military observers still cling to their original prophecies that the Russians would be cleaned up in Europe by mid-September, others are weakening. As neither the British nor ourselves have military observers near the battlefront on either side, the layman's appraisal is about as good as the professional man's. At any rate, as the outcome of this war is not yet clear, the plans of all other armed powers, including the Japanese, must be kept flexible.

UNTIL now it has been a cardinal point in our policy that the Nazis were a more serious threat to us than the Japanese. And it has been, apparently, a cardinal point in Japanese policy to avoid war with the United States. The strengthening of the British and Dutch defenses in the South Pacific, the progress of our own defense program, and the resistance of the Russians, which probably has relieved Great Britain of the threat of invasion this year, all enable us to show a stronger hand in the Pacific.

But we are not seeking war there. The Japanese know that. What they have received is in the nature of a last warning, couched in terms more impressive than words.

Elastic Draft Act

THIS little incident of the elastic draft law ought to be a lesson to all of us, but more likely it will be no such thing, for George Spelvin, American, is mentally lazy and careless and uses headline impressions and catchwords in lieu of information on matters of vital importance. Specifically, if you should ask Mr. Spelvin today to state the meaning of the Selective Service Act he would reply that this was the one that required all the young fellows to spend a year in the Army and learn to shoot and march. He still thinks it limited that service to one year, you know, like in France, before the crash—only in France maybe it was two or three years or whatever, but, anyway, everybody had to do it and we have got so many people that we don't only need but one year.

Of late Mr. Spelvin has begun to learn that there was a kicker in the law which permits Congress to keep the one-year men beyond their time in case of emergency and he is pretty sore about that and suspects trickery or sharp practice.

BUT STILL, Mr. Spelvin hasn't read the law which was published in many of the papers at the time and, not to pretend that I have, this is by way of admitting that this Spelvin, who should have studied it carefully as a duty in his line of work, hasn't yet glanced at a copy.

Moreover, I have just finished a conversation with another Mr. Spelvin, an editor, who is supposed to keep himself thoroughly informed and who, furthermore, has a son in the armed forces, but hasn't read the law either. Like millions of others, he thought it was a flat one-year service law with no trick clauses or fine print and he thinks the reason why the catch, or reserve clause, escaped his attention was that all of us were thinking about the Presidential campaign at the time, which may be so, but might not be. Probably very few of us would have read it through, anyway.

ONE CRITIC has blamed the American free press for failing to examine and discuss the whole bill and, on the basis of that the press owes the public careful, efficient service in return for its freedom, he is right. The press apparently booted one in this case and should have given Mr. Spelvin the neglected facts in jolting headlines in recognition of the fact that he comprehends only those things that he is belted over the scalp with, day after day. However, I should like to point out that this very failure by the papers, whatever the excuse, proves how necessary it is for the press to function as a sort of voteless third house of the legislative branch and present to the people arguments for and against various big issues.

The people do not hear the Congressional debates or read the Record which not, only lacks intentional funnies and other ticklers with which we surround and season the facts of life in the papers but also runs dryly on and on in the oratorical vein which is hard reading.

THE PEOPLE must and do rely on the press for such debate and this instance of failure to emphasize and reiterate not only puts us on warning to be more watchful but justifies us in discussions which sometimes are regarded as nothing but heckling of great and good men in the public service.

There is no doubt that this American Government known as the New Deal is tricky and sly, although the draft law is not an example of its cunning. The psychology of the New Deal and its morality have been slick almost from the start in 1932 and the papers have done a fair job, I think, of discovering marked cards, sometimes after the hand has been dealt and bets have been in order.

OUR NEW DEAL statesmen will disguise issues and mask intentions and the people may sometimes resent being told that their Government is trying to slip something over on them, but if the objections are raised and properly emphasized for the public attention that is the end of our responsibility. Congress then decides and takes the praise or blame.

In the case of the draft act everybody was drowsing and George Spelvin has been no more startled than the editors to discover the rest of its meaning.

Farmers' Benefits

By Mark Sullivan

An Explanation Of Parity, Price

BEGINNING this week, the country will hear much of what is called "parity price." The term will emerge in connection with the Administration's price control measure, and also in connection with certain developments having to do with Triple-A. Indeed "parity price" is the basis of an idea now incubating for universal price-fixing, and an industrial and social system based on universal price-fixing.

SULLIVAN

Of all who hear or read the term probably not one out of 20 will understand just what it means. Today this column undertakes to explain the term—to explain it, but, so far as practicable, avoid the infinite controversies that center round it.

"Parity price" means a certain price for farm crops—the term does not apply to any field outside agriculture. Those who devised the term "parity price" set out to find a price for crops which would be satisfactory to farmers. Surveying a long period of years, they decided that the period 1909-14—was one in which farmers did well. So they chose 1909-14—they call those years the "base period." And the return which farmers received for their crops during those years is what is meant by "parity price."

Observe I have used the word "return"—the "return which farmers received." It is not the actual price, in dollars and cents, that the farmer received during 1909-14. Parity price is more complex than that. If in those years a farmer received a dollar a bushel for wheat, that is not parity price.

Those who devised the term "parity price" made an intricate calculation. They inquired, first, just what the farmer received in dollars and cents. Then, second, they inquired just what the farmer had to pay for what he bought, for farm implements, for example. A computation based on these two (with some other factors) is parity price. Parity price aims to put the farmer in the same position in which he was during 1909-14—with respect to what his crops would buy for him.

IF I seem awkward in striving to express what parity price is, those who devised the term had the same difficulty. Their official definition, as expressed in the 1938 Triple-A statute, runs:

"That price for the commodity which will give to the commodity a purchasing power with respect to articles that farmers buy, equivalent to the purchasing power of such commodity in the base period; and . . . which will also reflect current interest payments per acre on farm indebtedness secured by real estate, tax payments per acre of farm real estate, freight rates, as contrasted with such interest payments, tax payments, and freight rates during the base period."

OBSERVE that this statutory definition takes the whole farmer's outgo—the cost of what he buys, plus the interest payments on farm indebtedness, plus taxes, plus freight rates. Taking all these factors into account, the parity price statute declares that the farmer today shall receive such a price for his crops as will put him in the same position as he was in during 1909-14.

For the sake of simplicity I have spoken as if 1909-14 was the base period for all crops. It is the base period for all except two. Those who devised the parity price formula apparently found that while most farm crops did well during 1909-14, there were two that did not. The two exceptions were tobacco and potatoes. So, one infers, the devisers of the parity price idea looked about for a period during which tobacco and potatoes sold for a good price. They found such a period—it was from 1919 to 1929. So, for tobacco and potatoes, 1919-29 is the base period.

AT this point, obvious criticism arises about the whole idea of parity price. Occupations other than farming, makers of shoes, for example, ask, why not pick out a past period during which they did well; and a second past period in which, for example, patent leather shoes did especially well. But this criticism has been raised over and over. It is mentioned here merely for information.

At present, by several successive statutes, the last one enacted in June, farmers are in effect guaranteed parity price for every crop they raise, including fruits and vegetables. Devices for assuring them parity price are in operation. One device is to loan the farmer on his crop 85 per cent of parity price, with the proviso that he need not repay the loan unless the current market price for the crop is equal to the loan he has received. This loan, plus certain cash gifts, or other devices, in effect guarantees that the farmer shall receive the 1909-14 parity price for his crops.

IT will be observed that parity price is a variable thing. If the prices of what the farmer buys goes up, then parity price goes up. Actually, prices of what the farmer buys are going up. Among other reasons, wages which enter into the prices of what the farmer buys are going up. This, if it goes on, would become an upward spiral, ending in inflation. Actually, an upward spiral is now beginning, and presents a problem the country must face.

Welles Tells Of Victory

Plot Reported Nipped

The United States claimed a first victory yesterday over Nazi-Fascist intrigue in Latin America, while the highest Government officials hastened to repudiate a suggestion by Senator D. Worth Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, that the United States "take over control" of Latin America and Canada, perhaps by setting up puppet governments.

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, asserted that publication recently of a "blacklist" of 1800 firms in Latin America had thwarted subversive plots and had helped to nip in the bud "dangerous plans of totalitarians."

President Roosevelt, disturbed by the Idaho Senator's suggestion, said he hoped that none of our friends in Latin America would take seriously Clark's proposal or his assertion that the Good Neighbor policy has been a failure.

Formal Reply By Welles

Supplementing the President's remarks, Welles issued the following formal answer to Clark:

"I feel that all that it is really necessary for me to say is that the statement as such seems to me to be unbelievable, and I am quite sure it does not reflect the views or the opinions of the American people. I am positive, of course, that it is not shared by any responsible authority in the Government. It is a point of view utterly at variance with the policy that has been pursued by this Administration in its relations with the other American republics during the past nearly nine years, and the benefits of this policy, I think, have been appreciated so fully not only by the other American republics but by the people of the United States as well as to make any serious comment from me unnecessary."

Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, promptly said he was sure no one in the Western part of the country would support Clark's suggestion, which he termed both fantastic and imperialistic.

Welles, commenting on progress against the Axis offensive in Latin America, said that the chief effect of the blacklist "is to deny the benefits of inter-American trade to persons who have hitherto been using large profits to finance subversive activities, aimed at undermining the peace and independence of the Western Hemisphere."

This has been accomplished by transferring agencies for American products out of the hands of "undesirable" commercial representatives with German or Italian connections.

Declaring that recent events are evidence of totalitarian plans to disrupt this hemisphere, Welles said that "swift action" by the American republics has nipped such plans in the bud. The issuance of the blacklist is but one such step in this direction, he stated.

The blacklist will be amended, enlarged and abridged from time to time, he said. He issued several deletions and changes yesterday.

Nazis Say U. S. Instigated Seizure of Mail Bags

By International News Service

Berlin, July 29.—Charges that the American Government's Dies Committee was the instigator of an Argentine plot in which three German diplomatic mail pouches were seized from an American-owned commercial airplane, and that the United States planned to seize political domination of Latin America were made by authoritative German sources today.

The Berlin raido announced that sensational charges against the United States would be made by official quarters within a few days proving that "United States dollar imperialism" was trying to exploit South America for its own ends.

Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung charged that international Jewry has seized political control of Bolivia and that the United States has bought political domination of the country by purchasing Bolivian production for years ahead.

Called Forgery

This statement was contained in an article claiming that a letter purporting to have been written by Maj. Belmonte, Bolivian Military Attache in Berlin, to the German Minister to Bolivia and allegedly revealing a plot aiming at the overthrow of the Bolivian government was a rank forgery.

Dienst Aus Deutschland, authoritative Nazi news service, declared that the German foreign office has warned all Latin American nations to beware of American machinations aimed at cutting them off from Europe, their natural commercial partner.

In regard to the looting of German diplomatic pouches, the Berlin radio stated that the pouches were stolen from the plane with the connivance of the pilot and rushed to Buenos Aires.

The seizure was arranged by the Argentine counterpart of the American Dies Committee, at the suggestion of the Dies Committee, and has been disavowed by the Argentine government, said the radio.

Through the efforts of the government, the three mail pouches were returned to the German Embassy, but only after they had been opened and their contents examined.

Berlin yesterday filed formal protest with the Buenos Aires government concerning this admitted break of diplomatic courtesy, the radio said.

Battle Of Russia

By Barnet Nover

Has Hitler Been Stopped?

"OPERATIONS on the Eastern Front continue according to plan." That, with variations, has been the burden of most of the communiques issued by the German high command since the fighting in Russia began.

NOVER

The impression which such pronouncements obviously seek to convey is that Hitler and his military entourage had worked out the Russian campaign in advance to the last detail, that they had anticipated all contingencies and were proceeding on schedule. In other words, the world was given to understand that in this campaign as in all others the German army constituted an irresistible force moving relentlessly ahead.

THIS IMPRESSION the events of the past five and a half weeks have tended to weaken if not to destroy. For while the German high command has, for the most part, been reticent and unrevealing in its communiques it has, from time to time, made definite assertions capable, in time, of being put to the test.

Thus, on Sunday, June 29, it was officially claimed that the Luftwaffe had not only won "air mastery in the East" but had also "administered a destructive defeat to the Russian air force." On July 13 the German communique declared that the Stalin line had been "broken through by bold storming at all decisive points." Remembering what had happened in France, it was hardly surprising that "authoritative quarters" in Berlin declared that day that the Red army was already defeated and that its final capitulation or annihilation was only a question of time.

PURSUING this theme the high command stated on July 17 that: "Soviet leadership is throwing the last reserves into battle . . . On entire Eastern front a tremendous struggle for a decision is being waged . . . Great successes are in the making." Even going further, the communique of July 22 declared that: "Breakthrough operations of the German armed forces and their allies have torn the Soviet frontier defense into disconnected groups. Despite stout local resistance and stubbornly conducted counterattacks, uniform leadership of the enemy is no longer apparent."

If all these claims were true, Russia should by now have been placed hors de combat. For with her air force knocked out, her reserves used up and any coherent system of defense against the German assault no longer possible, Russia should have succumbed to the fate of France.

IT IS OBVIOUS that the claims of the German high command have been exaggerated, to say the least. Its communiques did certainly achieve a high degree of veracity in the fighting on the Western Front last year when events overtook and made good even the most exaggerated claims of the D. N. B. or "authoritative quarters" in Berlin. But the fighting in the East, though it followed, at first, the pattern established in the West, has developed into an altogether different kind of struggle. There appears to be fighting not only at the points where masses of German and Russian troops are in contact but behind the amorphous lines as well. In inception a true blitzkrieg, it has developed into something different, part war of movement, part war of position, part indescribable melee, with its final outlines still very much in doubt.

The one certainty is that despite repeated assertions that everything is proceeding according to plan, the Germans have met unexpected resistance. That is probably why, in the German communiques, there are references, from time to time, to "strong local resistance," "bad weather," "difficult roads."

IT IS STILL far too early to assume that the German war machine has at last met its match, that something like a stalemate is developing along the far-flung Eastern front. The slow progress which Hitler's legions have made in Russia during the last few weeks is in decided contrast to what happened in Poland, Norway, the Low Countries, France, the Balkans, Crete. But the possibility cannot be ignored that the German armies will sooner or later be able to resume their march.

Whether the Germans take Leningrad, Kiev and Moscow, whose imminent fall German spokesmen proclaimed weeks ago, is very much less important than whether the Nazis can smash the Russian army. That they have failed to do so in six weeks of fighting is clear. This is of great significance. For if the Russian army can remain in the field, whether before or behind Moscow, the possible gains which Hitler will be able to derive from his Russian venture will be limited.

ASIDE FROM the Battle of Russia, which still hangs in the balance, Hitler has won every battle of the war except two. These two are the Battle of Britain and the Battle of the Atlantic. It is because he failed to win over Britain that he was forced to go into Russia. If he wins in Russia, he has still to win in the west. And the longer it takes him to win the Battle of Russia the less likelihood there is that he will win the next and final round in the Battle of Britain. If, on the other hand, he loses the fight on Russia, and a stalemate there would be equivalent to a defeat, he will have lost the war. But it is still the counsel of wisdom, as Winston Churchill pointed out in the House of Commons Tuesday, to avoid drinking too deeply from the fount of wishful thinking. Russian fighting ability and valor have provided Britain with a respite. But that respite may not be of indefinite duration.

Campaign Opened To Convert Old Autos Into Cannon

The Office of Production Management announced yesterday a campaign to convert millions of junked automobiles into scrap iron and steel for defense production.

Officials said that one car contains enough scrap for a light cannon, and that 20 contain enough for a tank.

About 2,500,000 cars are scrapped annually and millions are parked now in "auto graveyards," officials said. Normally the cars remain in such yards for years until all saleable parts have been disposed of, but OPM is endeavoring to get auto wreckers to employ additional labor, strip all cars immediately, and prepare the bodies and engine blocks for scrapping.

The campaign will open today with a meeting of auto wreckers and scrap dealers in Columbus, Ohio. The meeting is expected to be followed by similar conferences in other parts of the country.

River Journey Necessary To Reach Strategic Saigon

To reach the busy rice-shipping port of Saigon in Southern French Indo-China, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society, vessels must sail 34 miles up the Saigon River from the China Sea. Cap St. Jacques, at the entrance to the river, is one of the coastal points where Japanese naval units have been reported.

"Batteries from the French military station at Cap St. Jacques command the delta where the many-channeled river flows into a bay," the bulletin adds. "Near this cape, too, is the last high land seen by ships moving south along the Indo-China shore. Three hills rise about 800 feet above the sea.

Plane Bases Flank City

"In going up the river to Saigon, ships pass the important oil depot of Nhabe, where storage tanks line the shore. Nearby is the hydroplane base of Cat-Lai on a tributary of the river. Just beyond Saigon to the northeast is Bienhoa, where another airport is situated. In normal times Saigon is a commercial airline center. It is about 700 air miles north of Britain's vital naval base at Singapore, and is less than 500 miles from the Natoena Islands, nearest of the rich Netherlands Indies.

"A French naval arsenal along Saigon's waterfront is equipped to repair ships. The harbor itself can berth 40 or 50 large vessels, besides the innumerable flat-bottomed barges and junks hauling heavy loads of rice. Cochin-China, the province of which Saigon is the capital, is one of the world's greatest rice-producing regions, and its exports center in this city. Nearly 2,000 ships visited the port in 1939.

10,000 French Live There

"In some respects Saigon resembles a French provincial city transplanted to a tropical land of the Orient. About 10,000 Frenchmen normally live there. But most of Saigon's 110,000 residents are Annamites, Cambodians, or Chinese who follow their native customs, although the homes and dress of many may be westernized.

"Larger than Saigon is its neighboring city, Cholon, which serves as an industrial complement of the port. About half of Cholon's 145,000 people are Chinese. Rice mills, cigarette and lumber factories turn out products which are shipped from Saigon along with cotton, silk, fish, pepper, copra, and spices from the rich hinterlands of Indo-China."

51% Favor Draft Extension in First Returns; Sending Selects Out of Hemisphere Opposed

Princeton, N. J., July 29.—First returns of a Nation-wide survey of public opinion show a slight majority of voters in favor of the extension of the draft which is being debated this week in Congress. Out of every 100 voters polled, the early returns show, 51 think the men in the draft camps should be kept in active service for longer than one year, while 45 think they should be released and the rest are undecided.

Despite the language of the Selective Service Act with its proviso for longer training under certain emergencies, a substantial number of Americans apparently took the act to mean a promise by the Government that the men would be drafted for only one year's active service in the camps. The chief reason given by voters who oppose keeping draftees for longer than one year is that the Government should not "go back on its promise."

As to whether draftees should be sent outside the Western Hemisphere—a request made by Gen. George Marshall, Chief of Staff—a poll completed last week indicates that the country is opposed to such action at the time the survey was made. Because further discussion and explanation by the Army will undoubtedly have an effect on opinion concerning this issue, the Institute will continue polling on it to measure the trends, if any.

Complete returns of the draft extension survey will be ready by the end of this week. Returns to date show the following:

"Do you think drafted men should be kept in active service for longer than one year, or should they be released at the end of one year?"

Should be kept	51%
Should be released	45
No opinion	4

The survey on sending draftees outside the Western Hemisphere showed the following results:

"The Army has asked Congress to change the law which says drafted men cannot be sent outside the Western Hemisphere. Do you think Congress should give the Army power to send drafted men to points outside the Western Hemisphere?"

Yes	37%
No	50
No opinion	13

Today's test would indicate that at this point in the discussion, the public is more convinced by the Army's arguments for extending the term of draft training than it is by the arguments for the right to send selectees outside the Western Hemisphere.

While opposition to the extension of the draft training period is based chiefly on the idea that the Government should keep its promise of one year, voters on the other side argue that the national emergency demands keeping the men in training for a longer period, and that the Army cannot be made into an efficient fighting force if the men have only one year's active training.

Nazis Using Last Reserves, War's End Nearer, Czech Says

Copyright by New York Times

New York, July 29.—Col. Cenek Hutnik, of the Czecho-Slovak general staff, who arrived in Canada four weeks ago on a military mission from London, today asserted his belief that Germany is using her last reserves on the Russian front and that the war will end sooner than has been expected.

During an interview at the Czecho-Slovak consulate here, the colonel declared:

"I believe that Germany is drawing on her last reserves and her campaign against Russia is the beginning of the end. It is difficult to foretell when the war will end, but without question it will end much sooner than we believed possible a year ago. This is of supreme importance to us because our people at home suffer horribly and are being systematically exterminated."

Col. Hutnik said that the purpose of his trip to Canada is to "organize Czecho-Slovak military units there" and continued to discuss the state of former Czecho-Slovakia.

"No one can imagine what life was and is like at home under the rule of the Germans," he said. "It is well-nigh impossible to describe the crimes and actual conditions. Our people at home have been at war against Germany since the moment when German hordes crossed the Czecho-Slovak frontiers. Our people are united and indefatigable in their resistance to the Nazis. They believe the war will end with victory for us and that the Czecho-Slovak republic, a bastion of liberty and democracy in Europe, will exist again."

The colonel concluded, saying that the Czecho-Slovakians are engaged on two battle fronts, "the one at home where we fight with passive resistance, sabotage and all means which tend to weaken Germany and on a second front, side by side with our allies."

British Destroyer Sunk, Rome Says

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Rome, July 29.—A British destroyer was torpedoed and sunk by one of Italy's Mas-boats (motor torpedo boats) which was returning to its base after the attack on Malta on July 26, according to the high command's communique today. The loss of two Mas-boats in that action was admitted.

It was reported here that British planes flew low over Sicily yesterday, inflicting some casualties but causing little damage. One of the planes was shot down in flames, it was said. The communique also said an Italian submarine sank a 7,000-ton tanker in the Atlantic.

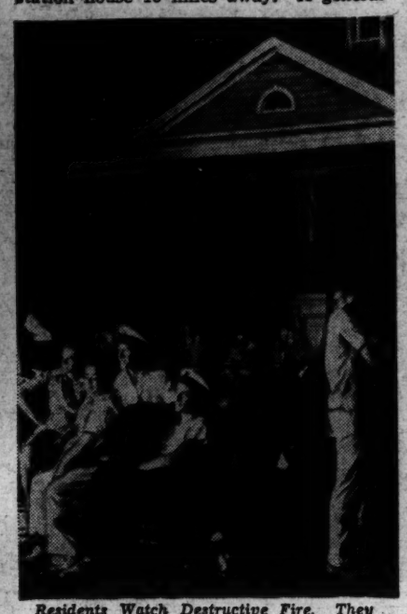
Prince Frederick Folk See Need For Firefighters

People of Prince Frederick, Md., regarded the smoldering ruins of a $200,000 fire yesterday—the town's second disastrous blaze in 60 years—and discussed the necessity of forming a fire department in their small Calvert County community.

Smoke still rolled from the ruins of four buildings, covering an area the size of a city block, destroyed in the fire which started shortly before midnight Monday. Totally ruined were the Prince Frederick Department Store and a barn behind it, an A & P Store, and a building housing the law offices of John B. Gray.

The blaze, believed to have started in a trash pile near the A & P Store, was discovered by two youths, Thomas Parran and Martin O'Neil.

The nearest volunteer fire department at North Beach—Calvert County's only fire-fighting unit—was summoned from its station house 15 miles away. A general alarm also brought companies from Mechanicsville, Galesville, La Plata, Upper Marlboro and West Annapolis.



Residents Watch Destructive Fire. They Carried Belongings from Homes as Precaution Against Spreading Flames

Goodman Goldstein, owner of the department store, exhausted by efforts to save his property, was ordered to bed by a physician yesterday.

William W. Duke, publisher of the Calvert Journal and a country trial magistrate, was locked in the blazing department store for several minutes when he went inside to phone for help. Goldstein rushed out, locking the door behind him, unaware that Duke was inside. His poundings led Goldstein to unlock the door.

Duke said he was launching a campaign in his paper for a Prince Frederick volunteer fire department. "I've run a good many editorials before on the subject," he said, "but this time I think the people will be aroused."

Easy Exercises Will Help Keep Thighs Shapely

This Measurement Is 'Achilles Heel' Of Bathing Beauties

This is the second day of Ida Jean Kain's 10-Day Summer Slimming Diet to Lose 5 Pounds, which appears at the end of this column daily. Clip for your files.

By Ida Jean Kain

NOW THAT the season for shorts and swim suits is in full swing, it is obvious that the thigh measurement is what keeps most girls out of the bathing beauty class. Practicaly all of them make a better appearance in slacks or skirts.

The skinny girls' thighs bow in and the fat ones bow out. If you are thin, you are probably inclined to despair of those ugly hollows as something beyond your control. And if you are too plump, you may expect a diet—when you get around to it—will take care of everything.

What's needed is exercise of a special order. Since the weather is hot, you'll be relieved to know the exercises are not particularly strenuous. By doing the stint according to instructions, you should be able to get by nicely with just a few minutes every day.

As Easy As It Sounds

Lie on your back on the floor with knees flexed and soles of feet on floor near buttocks. Very slowly and forcibly separate the knees in a V, hold for a second, and bring together. Continue for 10 counts.

Then roll over on the side with legs straight down, one on top of the other. Keep the knees straight and raise top leg from the hip, up and back. That's harder to do than merely raising the leg straight up, but it gets both inner and outer thigh muscles. Repeat 10 times, rest, and preform on other side.

Stay in that same position and raise the top leg from the hip in wide circles, up in front and around in back. And repeat that one 10 times, each leg.

After that, relax completely for a minute, then stand up to do the next thighliners.

The Chorus-Girl Kick

Do a chorus-girl kick over he seat of a chair. Have the chair a strategic distance away, and swing the right leg up and over, then back before setting foot to floor. Repeat five times, then with the left leg.

Now turn the chair around so that the back is toward you and rest the hands on it for support while you swing the right leg back and forth like a pendulum between you and the chair. Swing from the hip, cross over the left leg, and swing back out to the right side. Repeat same number of counts, with the other leg.

Isn't that an easy routine? But it is surprisingly effective. You should be able to notice an improvement within three weeks.

New Knitwear Will Enhance Fall Silhouette

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

IF YOU LOVE hand-knits and haven't the time to make them yourself, you'll be enamored with the machine-knits for fall. Some of them look as if they came right from the hands of an expert knitter.

The best news to our ears, however, is that for the first time in many a moon, knitwear will fit right into the silhouette for fall. With the trend toward an easier look, supple bloused tops, longer waistlines and simplicity, knitted frocks are right in their element. All of which means that with exaggerated diaphragms and overaccented busts out of favor, you do not have to own a Venus de Milo figure to wear knits.

The biggest surprise will come, however, when the salesgirl tells you, "Just hand your knits on hangers like your rayon and cotton dresses." But that isn't all, the better knits—even though they are lighter and softer—really do not sag. Not more than five years ago salesgirls advised turning the plain skirts of two-piece knit outfits around, changing the dernier to the front, to prevent sagging after each wearing.

Along with the nonsag, nonstretching qualities of the new machine-knits, there is also the advantage that they are far less expensive. If you cannot afford a real hand-knit, you'll find the simulated ones more practical, as well as more economical.

For a technical bit of information, there are two machine-knit type fabrics—the firmly knit fabric, cut and tailored like woven material, and the simulated hand-knits. As for stitches, the machines will "purl two or knit two" with the greatest of ease. They even give you flat stitches, single and double ribs with more dexterity than human hands.

Girl's Petulance With Fiance Leads to Broken Engagement; Now, She Is Sorry, While He Seems Indifferent; Should She Beg Another Chance?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I shall be going home soon, several hundred miles away, for my annual vacation. While I have friends and relatives to visit there, the primary object is to try to get back on a friendly basis (at the very least) with my former fiance. To give you the story—we became engaged after two years' courtship, when I was 19 and he was 24. We decided to wait a year to announce it, because he wanted to save money for the future; because our parents objected to our being serious; and, also, because we lived so far apart,—he in the "home town" with his family, and I in Washington with my parents, who are temporarily located here.

While I loved him after a fashion, at the time, it was not with my whole heart. I took small details too seriously. For instance, I made a big issue of his taking his parents to Cleveland on his vacation, the first summer we were engaged. I thought he should have come to see me, since I always made a point of putting his interests first, and always spent my vacations near him. This dispute was the beginning of the end.

I acted so cool after the trip to Cleveland and cut our correspondence down to such an extent that, four months after becoming engaged, we decided to call the whole thing off. However, because I did not want to give him up entirely, I offered to continue as friends. I realized he was very hurt, but he took it like a man—as I knew he would. (He is very sensible and also very sensitive). At Christmas, he sent me a gift, which I acknowledged with a curt thank-you card. Several months later, I received a note from him, enclosed in a book he was returning. He expressed the hope that we (my family) were well and happy. Irked by his noncommittal attitude, I retorted by charging him with being "the perfect specimen of a poor sport."

During the next year, I went about and had my share of fun, but when Christmas came, I sent him a card, apologizing for my shortcomings and wishing him well. I received no reply. Then, during the last year's summer vacation, I was again visiting the town where he lives, and on one of my last evenings there, I telephoned him to ask if I might drop by with one of my girl friends to see him. Although he was full of polite conversation,—asking about my family, whether I had married, etc., etc.—he discouraged me from calling. He said he wasn't dressed, had a date later, and asked how long I would be in town. To be independent, I said I was leaving the next day, thinking perhaps he would check up on me. Apparently he didn't take the time; and he never mentions me to any of our friends.

Before going back to his town for the Thanksgiving holidays, I wrote him to say I was coming and if he had any spare minutes he didn't value too highly, I would be happy to share them. I heard nothing from him, either by mail or during the visit. At Christmas, I sent him a card; and again, no reply. Then, last April, I heard he was being drafted, and I wrote him a really nice letter—asking for his friendship, making it plain that I realized my mistake and repented it from the bottom of my heart. I told him I would do anything in future to make up for the past. I received no word from him, but later I heard he had been deferred by the Draft Board.

I want to piece our life together somehow and make him happy. I can't help feeling that he isn't, and hasn't been, happy since the engagement was broken. And while I have met plenty of men and had lots of fun in these two years, I have met none to compare with him. I do not have my heart set on marriage, nor is it a case of wanting to prove to myself and my friends that I can win him back. It is only that I will always have a soft spot in my heart for him, because he has yet to say an unkind word to me, and I know he loved me very much. That I was a baby and acted as such, I now realize; but I continue to hope that some of his feeling for me still remains.

Now, I would like your opinion as to whether I should leave things as they are; or whether I should pocket my pride and make one last effort to reach his heart. If you favor the latter, how should I go about it? I feel certain his mother and sister have influenced him against me. He is the baby of the family and an only son, and his mother's wish has always been his command. (I am not offering this to excuse myself; but merely as a fact that may have some bearing on the case). I would like your answer within the next few days, as it is my desire to reach a final decision before leaving on vacation. Sincerely, VIVIAN V.

Don't Play the Part Of Unmitigated Bore

DEAR V. V.: In my opinion, you would be not only humbling yourself to no purpose, but, what is worse, acting the part of an unmitigated bore, if you were to make any further aggressive effort to "reach the heart" of this young man—which appears to have turned to stone, so far as you are concerned. It is axiomatic that "actoins speak louder than words," and his actions, for more than a year, clearly and consistenly indicate that he just isn't interested in you, any more. Indeed, his failure to acknowledge your wheedling missives of last Thanksgiving, last Christmas and last April—coming on top of his pointblank (though diplomatically worded) refusal to see you when you were visiting his town last summer—suggest that he has washed his hands of you, for good and all.

It is entirely possible that he was just about as half-heartedly in love with you, at the time of getting engaged, as you were with him (though less wilful in revealing it). As a matter of fact, he may have been more relieved than sorry when it was mutually agreed to "call the whole thing off." The combination of family opposition, enforced separation, and your hoity-toity attitude (once you felt sure of him) may have extinguished his first tentative romantic yen "to have and to hold" you, some time before the breach was declared.

You speak of your reaction to his trip to Cleveland as marking "the beginning of the end." But that may be getting the cart before the horse. The fact that he would choose to go vacationing with his family, rather than come to you, during the first summer of his engagement, suggests that you may have had warrant for challenging the quality of his devotion to you. Granted that it was tactless of you to behave as you did, nevertheless, it appears that in so doing, you merely exposed a lack in the relationship that would have done it to death, sooner or later, in any event.

Of this you may be sure—he would want to see you, and he would arrange to see you, if he still cared (even a little) for you as he once did. The truth about men is that they never nurse sentimental memories of dead romances to the extent that women do. For them, to be once thoroughly disenchanted with a lady—as this chap came to be, with you, after you had charged him, spitefully, with being "the perfect specimen of a poor sport" is to want to forget everything that had to do with the jarring episode; and to suit their actions to their desire.

So my advice to you is to dismiss all hope of resuscitating this romance. And, also, to refrain from spending your vacations in you "home town," for a few years (or until you have found someone else to take this man's place in your heart)—if your primary purpose in going there would be to try to wangle an interview with him. M. H.

Exercise to Reduce Hips

VISIONS of yourself in slacks crash to earth if you have big hips! Your rear view in the mirror shows you look not smart and young—but ponderous and matronly!

The answer is right exercises. Nowadays with automobiles and easy chairs we don't exercise hip muscles nearly enough. Even walkers only exercise their hip joints in one direction—backward and forward. Unused muscles grow flabby, fatty pads develop at hip joints.

But give those lazy muscles a workout and they'll grow firm, fatty pads will melt away. Here's one of a series of exercises that soon slims your hips.

Get down on hands and knees, keeping head up. 1—Pull right knee up to chest, then straighten knee and swing leg back as high as possible. 2—Swing right leg forward to position under chest, bending knee. Repeat 4 times. Then do 4 times with left leg and rest. Do 16 to 24 times altogether.

Perhaps, too, you'd like more shapely legs, a slimmer waist and firmer bust line to go with that stunning new bathing suit.

Our 40-page booklet, "Beauty and Health Through Simple Exercises," has exercises to beautify neck, arms, shoulders, bust, waistline, hips, thighs, legs; to correct aching back and feet; to relieve nerves, constipation, to improve posture.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Beauty and Health Through Simple Exercises, to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 100 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of booklet.

How to Be an Organizer

(Mrs. Aurelia Puffer-Swagg, famous authority on "front," is substituting in this column for Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, president of the Do Something About It League, who is on vacation. Today Mrs. Puffer-Swagg continues her series on how to be important).

Q. How can one be active in war, relief, charitable and civic work—without actually working?

A. By becoming known as an "organizer."

Mrs. Puffer-Swagg

Q. How does one become an organizer?

A. One may automatically become an organizer by possessing wealth, social position and a "name."

Q. Then if a woman is not socially prominent and very wealthy, she cannot become an organizer?

A. If she has only a moderate amount of wealth and standing, she can in time become an organzer by practicing the tricks of the trade.

Q. What is the first trick of the trade?

A. Never to do any work herself she can possibly get anyone else to do.

Q. How does she get other women to do the work?

A. By flattering them and having them to tea or cocktails.

Q. What should the embryo organizer always remember?

A. That virtually every socially prominent woman leader has several hacks in the background to attend to the detail.

Q. Where will she find these hacks?

A. She should look around for capable and hardworking social climbers who want "contacts."

Q. But what if she hasn't any great social position herself?

A. She can always find other women a little lower in the social scale.

Q. Where else will she find these hacks?

A. There are always a few serious minded drudges around who are content to wait for their reward in Heaven.

Q. How should the would-be organizer start organizing?

A. Her best bet is to start a new society of some kind in which she can be the queen bee.

Q. How is this done?

A. By calling together a group of women for tea and telling them they have been selected as "leading" or "representative" or "influential" women and the right type to sponsor the movement.

Q. What does the organizer then do?

A. Selects a hard-working but nonglamorous vice chairman, appoints committees, and then announces that she is leaving at once for Palm Beach, Nassau, Newport, New York or elsewhere and that the others can carry on until her return.

Q. What does she do on her return?

A. She starts "improving" and "reorganizing" the group.

Q. How does she do this?

A. By establishing headquarters of some kind with secretaries, assistants, etc., and summoning officers and committee members to "confer."

Q. What should be her technique in dealing with these conferees?

A. First, to keep them waiting as long as possible—a technique used effectively by all "big" doctors, dentists and career women.

Q. What else should she do?

A. Appear as rushed as possible and be answering innumerable mysterious telephone calls while she is trying to confer.

Q. What should she do after conferring?

A. Rush off again to Bermuda, Honolulu, or Bar Harbor.

Q. What natural assets should the aspiring organizer possess?

A. She should be photogenic and should have a supply of photographic props, as silver fox furs, Great Dane dogs, etc.

Q. How should she handle the press?

A. She should have its members in to cocktails or luncheon to "talk over" the publicity.

Q. What is the ultimate reward of the organizer?

A. To be called on to "reorganize" better and bigger organizations than her own, to hold numerous conferences with men "big shots," and to appear busy and important in the eyes of her socialite friends who are also loafing—but without benefit of title.

Traveling to Europe A Major Undertaking

An American Diplomat Sends Trunks Over on Different Ships, Hoping One At Least Will Escape Being Sunk

By Dudley Harmon

Sign of the times: in a local bookshop is a huge stack of volumes titled "My Trip Abroad." Beside them is a notice saying "One-third price."

The days when going to Europe was a pleasant way of spending a summer holiday seem so long ago that one wonders if people actually ever did casually book passage abroad. Nowadays just getting a passport is a major undertaking, all but impossible if one isn't on a diplomatic or newspaper mission. Then, providing you do get a passport, there's the knotty problem of baggage. It would seem easier to leave with just a toothbrush, except that clothes are almost impossible to buy when you get to your destination.

One State Department member about to leave for England is taking no chances. Robert Coe, who will join the staff of the American Embassy in London, is sending two trunks on two different ships. If one vessel is sunk, perhaps the other will get there.

Mr. Coe will leave today for Cody, Wyoming, where his father, William R. Coe, has a ranch, and after a few weeks of vacation there, will head for England.

Mr. Coe will leave today for Cody, Wyo., where his father, but it is reported that there is a chance he may make the trip by bomber. He has relatives in England attending Oxford, and blitz or no blitz, he is looking forward to his new tour of duty.

Howes Entertain For Mr. Coe

The traveler is being speeded on his way by a number of farewell parties which are enlivening an otherwise rather stagnant and hot week. Last night Mr. and Mrs. George Howe gave a dinner in his honor at the house near Olney, Md., which Mr. Howe is remodeling for a friend and where they are going to live for a year and a half. On Monday evening, Mr. Coe was honor guest at a subscription dinner given by a group of friends at His Lordship's Kindness, the historic old Maryland home which an enterprising young couple have bought and turned into an attractive place to dine.

Among those in the party at His Lordship's were the First Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Hoyer Millar, the Secretary and Mrs. Anthony Rumbold, Miss Rebecca Wellington, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Howe, Samuel Reber and, from the State Department, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cumming, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Eric Wendelin, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Page and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pell.

Mr. Coe's house in Foxhall Road has been leased to the Howard Cushings, a most attractive couple from New York and Newport. Mr. Cushing, whose wife is a famous beauty, is on duty at the Navy Department. They have frequently visited Washington and have many friends in the Capital.

While American diplomats assigned to leave for European posts puzzle over baggage problems and clipper reservations, the Greek Minister here heaved a sigh of relief yesterday over the fortunes of some of his diplomatic friends. The Japanese liner, Tatuta Maru, which has been hovering nervously near San Francisco since the crisis with Japan flared, is, it is understood, to be allowed to put into port. On board are a delegation of Greeks from that country's legation in Moscow, including the Minister's nephew and his wife, and Peter Depasta, brother of George Depasta, minister-counselor of the Washington legation.

The group is headed by the Greek Minister to the Soviet, Cristos Diamantopolous, and his Denver-born American wife. Moscow ordered them to close their legation early this summer as a gesture toward the Germans. The party was already en route to the United States when the Germans turned on Russia, and the Greeks suddenly became the Soviet's allies.

As soon as the Japanese vessel lands, the party is expected to come at once to Washington. The legation said yesterday that they will probably remain here "for the duration," or at least until further orders from the Greek government. Getting back to Greece is, of course, out of the question for the party.

Signora Rosso On Board

Another Denver woman on board the Tatuta Maru, whose presence must have made some complications for the Greeks, was Signora Frances Rosso, wife of the Italian Ambassador to the Soviet. It is interesting to speculate whether the two women got together at all during the voyage; in the light of Italy's wanton but ignominious campaign against Greece, the answer is probably "no."

Signora Rosso said a long goodby to her Washington friends after a visit here last spring and set out to rejoin her husband in Moscow. She sailed from the West Coast and planned to travel via Siberia. But while she was en route the Russo-German war broke out, and it looked as though getting to Moscow would be an impossibility. So in Japan, Signora Rosso boarded the Japanese ship to return to the United States. Where she will go from here is a problem—perhaps she will fly to Lisbon and from there go on to Italy to join the husband whom she left some eight months ago.

Washington is particularly interested in the adventures of Signora Rosso for both she and her husband were at one time leading members of local society. He was the handsome and popular Ambassador from Italy and she, as Mrs. Wilkinson Bunker, was a well-known hostess.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

ALL IS hustle and bustle in Saratoga, with hotels crowded, boarding houses and private homes overflowing and the otherwise quiet streets thronged. There are many other beautiful race tracks in the country, but none has taken the place of Saratoga, which draws the most enthusiastic race fans in America.

Many from the Virginia hunt country will arrive at the famed resort this week to be on time for the opening night of the Yearling Sales, beginning on Monday. Colin MacLeod, jr., is en route by motor after shipping his yearlings and will join his parents, the Colin MacLeods, of Boston, at the house they have taken.

Mr. MacLeod, jr., will sell seven grand yearlings, three by Belfonds, three by Pilate and one by Milkman. Last year was his first season of sending yearlings to the Saratoga sales and he was delighted when they turned out to be 100 per cent winners. One of them, Home Wolf, equaled the track record at Aqueduct June 14, his second time out.

"Sandy" MacLeod's sale this year includes a gray colt by Belfonds—Home Time, a full brother to Home Wolf; a gray colt by Belfords—Love Match; bay colt by Belfords—Galanterie by Gallant Fox. The three by Pilate include a chestnut filly out of Litany; chestnut colt out of Movie Lass and a chestnut filly out of Dona Juana, and a chestnut colt by Milkman—Question, a Fair Play mare.

• • • •

WILLIAM H. LIPSCOMB, of Raspberry Plain, near Leesburg, will sell five colts at the yearling sales on the evening of August 13. These grand looking colts are from five outstanding bloodlines, Fair Play, Rocksand, Ultimus, Teddy and Sweep. Mr. Lipscomb's colts always cause great interest and bring top prices at the annual Saratoga sales. This year his crop are out of Teddy, Sweep and High Time mares, and include a chestnut colt by Dunlin out of Ready, a High Time mare.

Mr. Lipscomb, his daughter, Miss Helen Lipscomb, and his son, Ross, will leave Raspberry Plain next week to motor to Saratoga. Mr. Lipscomb has had many visitors to his breeding establishments lately as his friends come to look over his colts.

• • • •

GORDON GRAYSON arrived at Blue Ridge Farm, Upperville, early Sunday morning, having flown from Rio de Janeiro. He landed in Washington and was met by his mother, Mrs. George L. Harrison, and his two brothers, Cary T. Grayson, jr., and William Grayson, who are spending the summer at their Virginia estate. The family will go to Saratoga tomorrow to look after the four fine yearlings which Blue Ridge Stud is sending to be sold next Tuesday.

A list of Rockridge Farms yearlings owned by David N. Rust and of other fine Virginia yearlings will be given at a later date.

Miss Nicholson and Mrs. Dunham Leave

Miss Dorothy Nicholson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, left yesterday with Mrs. Geneva Dunham for Mrs. Dunham's Natural Bridge Ranch, at Big Timber, Mont.

They will go on from there for a visit with Mrs. Josephine Swindlehurst at her ranch, which is at the entrance to Yellowstone Park, near Livingston, Mont.

They will return to Washington about the middle of September, in time for Miss Nicholson to start her last-year courses at the National Law School.

Georgetown Girls Club Under Way

By Lucia Giddens

Georgetown girls flocked last night to the opening of the Girls Club for that community, with rollicking games giving them a foretaste of the recreational program.

The rally, initiating the Girls' Club movement in the District, was held in the headquarters loaned by the Board of Education in a one-room annex of Curtis School on O Street Northwest near Wisconsin Avenue.

Roy Klomparens, president of the club; Mrs. Victor Rotnem, director, and Mrs. Camille Craig.

Mrs. Rotnem stressed the democratic organization laid out for the club, with the girls themselves forming groups and planning their own activities, with the guidance of older leaders.

A WPA "hill billy band" played for the Virginia reel, the grand march and recreational games, directed by Mrs. Rotnem and Mrs. Craig.

Opening of the club was made possible through contributions by citizens and through efforts of the Georgetown Lions Club, the Neighborhood Council and other organizations.

The one large room which serves as headquarters has been equipped with piano, phonograph, tables and chairs. For outdoor activities, badminton, shuffleboard, darts, horseshoes and volley ball have been provided.

mailed to 13-to-21-year-old

Nearly 500 invitations were Georgetown girls and registration of members will continue throughout the week.

Called the Georgetown Branch of the Girls Club of Washington, the club is the forerunner of similar units which are being discussed for possible organization in other sections of the city.

The club will be open for crafts, sports and other activities from 4 to 9:30 p. m. from Monday through Thursday, with Friday and Saturday set aside for special events such as outings, Mrs. Rotnem said.

Cartridge Plant Agrees To Settlement

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Confronted with clear indications that their vital defense plant was on the verge of being taken over by the Government, the management of the Western Cartridge Co. yesterday agreed to proposals for settling their long drawn out labor dispute.

The East Alton (Ill.) munitions and powder concern accepted certain of the Defense Mediation Board recommendations and agreed with the A. F. of L. Chemical Workers Union involved to negotiate on other points at issue.

The agreement was one of three announced yesterday by the board. The others marked the end of strikes at the Gulf States Utilities Co., Baton Rouge, La., and Air Associates, Inc., Bendix, N. J.

Commenting on the Western Cartridge Co. case, a board official declared that the management had unmistakable intimations that its rejection of board recommendations would be followed immediately by moves for Army occupation and operation of the factory.

Obstacle Overcome

An authoritative board source explained that the normal process in board cases progressed from bargaining between company and union, to negotiations first with the board panel, second with the full board, and finally, if there were still failure to agree, the matter would be referred for action to the executive branch of the Government—presumably the White House.

In the Western Cartridge case, where the company's management has been privately characterized as the most "recalcitrant" to come before the board, this process had been completed, after weeks of conferences, through the stage of full board consideration and issuance of public recommendations. Repeated refusal of the company to accept a settlement formula had provoked discussion of Government occupation.

A last-minute hitch in a settlement developed yesterday when the company indicated to the union that it was unwilling to accept board recommendations for a maintenance-of-union membership guarantee, the principal issue in the dispute. On Monday, the company had "raised no question" about this proposal, according to Charles E. Wyzanski, chairman of the board panel considering the case.

Wyzanski explained at a press conference that he and Graham met with company representatives yesterday afternoon. In the course of the meeting the company withdrew its opposition to the maintenance-of-membership clause, and signed a statement accepting certain parts of the board's settlement formula. The other issues, relating to wages and vacations, are to be negotiated out directly, by mutual agreement between company and union, Wyzanski said.

The company, which holds several million dollars of defense contracts, employs 525 workers in its smokeless powder division, where the dispute over union recognition centered.

Settlement of the Air Associates, Inc., strike, which has paralyzed production of vital aircraft parts since July 14, will be followed by reinstatement of the 24 employes who were discharged, allegedly for union activity, Graham announced.

He said that all strikers will resume their jobs, beginning today, as swiftly as renewed operations permit.

Under terms of the settlement, the company and the C. I. O. United Auto Workers Union will negotiate directly. If no agreement is reached by August 9, the board recommended arbitration, and if this is not acceptable to both parties, a special board represenative will make investigations and final recommendations for terms of a collective bargaining contract.

The special representative, who was also recommended as abitrator, is Harry Shulman, holder of one of the most famous and distinguished legal teaching posts, the Sterling Professorship of Law at Yale University.

Terms of the Gulf States Utilities settlement were not immediately made public, pending ratification by the members of the A. F. of L. electrical workers union involved. Board officials, however, said they believed that the 200 strikers would return to their jobs today after a stoppage of 20 days.

Bostonian Named As Mediator

CHARLES E. WYZANSKI, of Boston, has been appointed one of three members of the National Mediation Board representing the public. Wyzanski, formerly an alternate member, will replace Clarence A. Dykstra, who becomes an alternate member

Eddie Leonard, Last of Great Minstrels, Dies

By Martin Kane
United Press Staff Writer

New York, July 29.—Eddie Leonard, 70, the last of the great minstrel men, who for 50 years sang about "Ida, sweet as apple cider," was found dead today in the old Hotel Imperial which had been his favorite stopping place in the days when he was a Broadway star.

He had been missing since yesterday afternoon, when he left his wife for a stroll. In his pockets was a stub for the Lyric Theater, now a grind movie house in the broken-down theatrical section of Forty-second Street. It had been a celebrated legitimate and vaudeville theater and Eddie had starred there in the days of his greatness.

Death seemed due to natural causes, perhaps a heart attack, according to physicians. When found, he had in his hand a gold life-time pass to the Polo Grounds, home of the New York Giants. He must have been looking at it and thinking how he became a song and dance man, for it was John J. McGraw who made a minstrel man of Eddie.

McGraw was manager of the Baltimore Orioles in those days and Eddie wanted to be a ballplayer. He tried out for the Orioles and struck out three times in succession.

"As a ballplayer," McGraw announced, "you're a fine actor."

So he introduced Eddie to George Primrose, the minstrel great of the day, and that night Eddie went on the stage. He sang "Just Because She Made Them Goo-Goo Eyes" and his mates of the Orioles out front just about tore down the theater.

From then on it was easy. He sang "Ida" thousands of times. Another favorite was "Roly-Poly Eyes" He topped his blackface numbers with a soft-shoe dance that rivalled Primrose's own.

His wife, the former Mabel Russell, to whom he was introduced by Nora Bayes in 1907 and married the following year, thought little of it when he did not return from his stroll yesterday afternoon. She felt he must be visiting old scenes with cronies and would return that night. She reported his disappearance to police today but they might not have found him had not the hotel manager recognized the face of the dead man in the hotel room. He had registered as Joseph W. Leonard.

Eddie was born in Richmond, Va. His right name was Lemuel Toney.

Heart Attack Fatal To James Stephenson

Hollywood, July 29 (INS).—James Stephenson, 52, an obscure English actor who scored a smashing success in the recent movie, "The Letter," died today after a heart attack at his home.

He had just returned from a vacation with his wife and year-old-son, Peter, and was celebrating his fifth wedding anniversary when he was stricken. Born in England, Stephenson was a captain in a British army mechanical transport division during the first World War.

He became a cotton broker after the war, but friends persuaded him to enter amateur theatricals. Subsequent success on the professional stage sent him to Hollywood.

Old-Time Minstrel Is Found Dead

Charley Murray, Film Star, Dies

Hollywood, July 29 (AP).—Big bluff Charley Murray, whose Irish roles made him a stage and screen favorite nearly a half century, died today of pneumonia at 69.

MURRAY

At his bedside was his wife of 35 years, Nellie Bee Murray.

Murray joined a circus at 13 as a clown and bareback rider. Six years later he and the late Oliver Trumbull formed the vaudeville team of Murray and Mack. They played together 21 years.

Murray started his long film career in 1911. He achieved his greatest screen popularity as Kelly of "The Cohens and the Kellys" series with George Sidney.

Murray had been ill six months. Funeral services will be held Thursday at the Little Church Around the Corner in Inglewood. Burial will be there.

Delivery Boy Reports Holdup

A bandit held up a delivery boy for a Kennedy Street market yesterday in an alley near North Capitol and Bryant Streets and robbed him of $35, the boy told police.

Leslie Smith, Negro, 1400 block U Street Northwest, said that he stopped his truck in the alley to count money he had collected. He said a man suddenly approached him, gun in hand, and demanded the money. The bandit, he said, then fled down the alley.

In another holdup, Morris Hall, a janitor at 4211 Second Street Northwest, told police a man wearing dark glasses, held him up in his apartment at pistol point and robbed him of $139 and a gold watch. He said he had just answered his telephone and when he turned around he was confronted by the bandit.

2 Police Arraigned In Assault Case

Two Tenth Precinct policemen were arraigned in Police Court yesterday charged with assaulting Lisle T. Lipscomb, 24, at the precinct station on June 26. They were Detective Harry E. Hamilton and Private Calvin N. Green, both of whom pleaded not guilty and asked for a jury trial.

Lipscomb was arrested on traffic charges and when taken to the precinct station he said he was severely beaten in a fight with policemen. Police Court Judge Neilson on July 12 found Lipscomb and a companion guilty of disorderly conduct growing out of the fight. However, he accused the officers of having taken part in a "disgraceful spectacle."

128 in Forest Service To Be Transferred

The transfer of 128 employes in the seventh regional office of the Forest Service to Upper Darby, Pa., probably will be announced officially within a few days, an Agriculture official said yesterday. The office is located at 724 Ninth Street. The actual move, the official said, is planned for October. Meantime, other department plans to decentralize its Washington staff have been postponed pending Congressional action on the proposed 35 million dollar War Department Building. If the War building is voted the decentralization threat will be lessened. Agriculture had planned to move 2,300 of its employes from here to Beltsville but Congress refused to appropriate money for new construction at the nearby Maryland town where they could be housed.

The Library of Congress needs good stenographers and typists. Preference will be given those with college training. Civil service isn't required. George Pugh is acting director of personnel at the library . . . The Maryland leagues of women voters are putting the heat on Senator Radcliffe for sponsoring the amendment to the second deficiency bill that denied civil service to 18,000 Farm Security employes.

The 7,500 temporary Census employes are indignant. The recent Executive order doesn't give them full civil service status. Yet the effect of the order is to give hundreds of former Census employes who were separated because of their low efficiency ratings a chance for merit status. Many of the employes who were fired got themselves defense jobs through the replacement list. The more efficient Census employes were retained on their jobs and are denied status. It's well to remember that before any employe appointed from the replacement list can obtain merit status he must be recommended for it by the agency where he is employed.

Leave for Draftees

A bill is on the President's desk that would pay draftees and other Federal employes called to the Federal service for their accumulated annual leave. Final Congressional action was taken yesterday in the Senate. Federal employes called in the Naval Reserve were paid their leave but the law forbade similar payments to draftees and Army reservists.

Milo Perkins, surplus marketing chief and key Agriculture policy maker who has been gravely ill, is recovering . . . Oscar Cox, the Treasury attorney who did most of the writing on the Lend-Lease Act and who was rewarded by being appointed general counsel of Lend-Lease administration, is also general counsel of the Office of Defense Aid Reports and the Office of Emergency Management. He has only a seven-man staff helping him.

Representative Victor Wickersham, of Oklahoma, yesterday complained in the air-conditioned House chamber that Federal employes were released from their jobs Monday because of the heat . . . President Roosevelt said yesterday that a merger of the power agencies under Interior Secretary Harold Ickes is being studied. He indicated a conclusion would be reached within two to three weeks. Any consolidation would need Congressional approval unless Congress should give the President broad powers to reorganize Federal bureaus. Affected in the proposed plan would be REA, TVA, Federal Power Commission and Interior's Reclamation Division.

Surplus Marketing may have to lay off some of its employes. Its 1942 budget was cut $390,000 . . . Defense agencies report a need for good cost accountants. Hundreds of cost accountants are being hired to audit Army, Navy and Maritime Commission contracts . . . A. J. Sarre, Federal Works personnel director, is back on the job at Federal Works. He had been on loan to OPM.

Army Spares Tiny Feet

Fort George G. Meade, Md., July 29.—The Army is taking particular pains to see that Sergt. Ralph Barnes does little marching. The Army doesn't want him to wear out his four pairs of civilian shoes, because he wears size 2½ and the Army issues none smaller than size 4. He is on a special detail.

Rag Time Hits D. C. Clocks

Approximately 400 clocks in the new Municipal Building were stopped for 30 minutes for adjustment because three apparently got their signals mixed. One of the clocks had lost three minutes and two others one minute each. All then were synchronized with the master clock.

D. C. Chiefs To Oppose Road Plan

Commissioners To Testify Today Against Proposal For Borrowing Funds

A proposal, originating on Capitol Hill, that the District finance major projects of the $44,500,000 Whitehurst highway improvement program by borrowing in anticipation of gasoline tax receipts will be rejected by the Commissioners in testimony today before a House subcommittee, it was learned last night.

The Commissioners and other District officials have been asked to appear at 10 a. m. before the Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee that is conducting hearings on legislation to finance the highway program by raising the gasoline tax 2 cents a gallon.

Representative Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, subcommittee chairman, disclosed that they have been asked to give an official opinion on a proposal to issue debentures against gas tax receipts and also to state whether they now believe a 1-cent tax increase to be sufficient to pay for large-scale highway improvements proposed by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director.

Greater Than Receipts

Hunter pointed out that several projects embodied in the program, particularly the proposed South Capitol Street bridge and the Georgetown by-pass, would require expenditures in a single year greater than gas tax receipts available for improvements. He recalled that several members of the subcommittee have suggested at hearings that the money needed be acquired through issuance of tax debentures.

Though the commissioners have publicly announced their indorsement of a tax rise of 1 cent, legislation to raise the levy 2 cents was submitted to Congress by the late Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

With two exceptions, witnesses at a subcommittee hearing yesterday opposed increasing the gasoline tax by any amount. The exceptions were Washington I. Cleveland, District manager of the American Automobile Association, who recommended that the program be financed by a 1-cent increase and a larger Federal appropriation, and W. F. Wilmoth, appearing for the District Chapter of the American Road Builders Association, who was willing that the present 2-cent tax be doubled as the "only effective means" of financing the project.

"A substantial portion of the expanding program of streets and highways," Cleveland declared, "is occasioned by the needs of the Federal Government in serving its personnel in the District of Columbia."

Auto Club Opposed

"The Keystone Automobile Club opposes the proposed increase in the District's gasoline tax," declared George E. Keneipp, club manager. "Our position will be continued until we have a better understanding of the specific purposes for which the additional revenue would be used."

The club, Keneipp said, feels the Whitehurst program clearly shows the need for "long-term planning for expansion of the local highway system," but contends the District motorists will not be the sole beneficiaries of the program and should not bear the entire expense.

For the Capital Transit Co., said J. E. Heberle, its vice president and controller, a 2-cent increase would mean addition of $120,000 a year to operating expenses.

Judges to Get Day on Court Merger Plan

Eight Municipal, Police Jurists to Be Called Tomorrow; Controversy Grows

District legislative leaders last night agreed to give Municipal and Police judges a chance to be heard on a bill to consolidate their courts after members of the District Bar Association linked criticism of the courts with a charge that proposed changes in the measure constitute "sabotage."

Representative Dan R. McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairman of a subcommittee in charge of the legislation, disclosed that he was asked by Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee, to invite the judges to appear as witnesses. McGehee said invitations would be issued today.

It was last-minute introduction of a bill by Randolph, at the request of an undisclosed sponsor, that brought more than a dozen association leaders strongly protesting before McGehee's subcommittee yesterday.

Wood Assails Plan

The measure, declared Harlan Wood, chairman of the association's committee on relations with Municipal Court, "sabotages and wrecks the voluntary labor of years by members of the bar and many judges."

The bill, he added, "shows lack of study, foresight and appreciation of the needs of the people of the District of Columbia."

Sefton Darr, former association president, joined the attack with a declaration that "there can't be any doubt that the citizens of the District have a right to complain of the manner in which their courts (Municipal and Police) function."

Some judges, Darr charged, come to work just long enough to handle a particular case and then "go home early," leaving other members of the court to handle accumulated business.

"This bill apparently is an effort to maintain the status quo," Darr declared. "By its silence (on major reforms proposed in a bill backed by the association) the measure expresses satisfaction with conditions. The bill desires to continue present practices and says they are good practices."

Introduced by Randolph

The bill under fire at the hearing was introduced by Randolph Monday. It would eliminate major provisions of a bill prepared by members of the association in conjunction with justices of the District Court and representatives of the Department of Justice. These provisions would empower a chief judge of the consolidated court to assign cases to nine associate judges and otherwise administer the court's business and would establish an intermediate appellate court.

Randolph reiterated yesterday that he has no preference for either measure and introduced the second bill because he had "faith" in its sponsor and wanted the proposal to be given a hearing. He remained adamant in his determination not to identify the sponsor.

A public attack on provisions of the original bill by Police Judge Hobart Newman brought from Wood a charge that "Judge Newman lacks familiarity with this bill and he lacks judicial temperament."

Judges, said Wood, are unable to sit around a conference table and agree on handling of cases, so they could not be expected to agree on assignment of cases. Had Judge Newman attended conferences on the original bill "he would have been a little better informed," Wood added.

Wants "Time Clock" Plan

"Judges now go on vacation mostly at will and work at will, and no cumulative record is kept of their work." Wood said in support of the provision constituting an administrative chief judge. "There is no way to show who is working and who is not. To strike down this provision of the bill would be to strike down one of its most vital parts."

Lawrence Koenigsberger, speaking for the association, declared that a "dictator is what you need in some situations . . . to tell those other judges what to do and when to do it."

"Just from glancing over the (second) bill, I should say that it doesn't seem workable to me," commented McGehee. "I wonder where the bill came from?"

Judges to Get Inning

Yesterday, McGehee said he was ready to close hearings and revise the association-backed bill in line with suggestions of witnesses. Last night, to meet Randolph's request, he said he would hold the hearings open for an hour at 10 a. m. tomorrow to give eight judges of Municipal and Police Courts a chance to testify.

Police Judge Walter Casey was the only one of the nine judges to appear at a hearing. He testified last week. Randolph said he believed it would be "advisable" to invite the others to appear.

D. C. Wife Wins Prize for Novel

ELOISE LIDDON

Eloise Liddon (Mrs. George Albert Soper), of 2707 Adams Mill Road Northwest, was announced yesterday as the recipient of honorable mention and a silver medal for her novel, "Some Lose Their Way," in the Thomas Jefferson Southern Award novel contest sponsored by E. P. Dutton Co. and the Virginia Quarterly Review of the University of Virginia.

The first priez of $2,500 and a gold medal went to Mrs. Elizabeth Lee Wheaton, of Texas City, Tex., for her first novel, "Mr. George's Joint," a story of Negro life in Texas. The selections were made from 289 manuscripts submitted by Southern writers.

A native of Alabama, Miss Liddon is the author of two mystery novels, in addition to the one for which she was given the award.

U. S. Releases Relief Funds To District

Although the Social Security Board yesterday released $66,704 in District relief funds, municipal welfare officials said it will be "several days" before the money will go into checks for Washington's needy families.

Oscar M. Powell, executive director of Social Security, announced that the funds had been released following receipt of assurance from the District Commissioners that they will move to bring speedy compliance with Federal welfare regulations.

Conrad Van Hyning, acting welfare director, said that it will take several days to forward the checks, drawn against the newly released funds, to the Washington families eligible for the welfare payments.

The payments include aid to the blind, old age assistance and aid to dependent children.

Powell had told District welfare officials that the funds were being withheld because of the city's failure to comply with Federal regulation for public assistance administration.

Commissioner John Russell Young, soon after he was elected president of the District Board yesterday, said that the issue of complying with the Federal rulings would be brought up probably at the next board meeting Friday.

Hotel Deal Profitless, Inquiry Told

Newman Testifies On Dupont Circle Leave; Denies Wires Were Ever Tapped

Categorically denying charges of coercion and spying, Harry L. Newman, president of the Dupont Circle Hotel management, yesterday defended the leasing of the building to the Government as an act devoid of profit for himself and other officers or stockholders.

He told the House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee, which is investigating the deal, that tenants were not forced to move out, telephone wires of recalcitrant leaseholders were not tapped and that a previous witness' charge of "camouflaging" is without foundation.

Newman's testimony, which monopolized the third day of the public hearing, was frequently interrupted by caustic questions.

When the witness denied that any Mr. Davis had accompanied Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, on an inspection of the building in June, Representative McGregor (Republican), of Ohio, asked:

"Wasn't his name Charles Sawyer, and isn't he Democratic National Committeeman for Ohio?"

Contradicted by Tenant

Newman admitted it was and he is.

At other times in the course of his two hours in the witness chair, where he will return this morning, he was requested to speed up by Chairman Lanham and Representative Elliott, of California, and audibly contradicted by George E. Reedy, seated a few feet away.

Reedy, a member of the Washington bureau of the New York newspaper PM and most articulate of the Dupont Circle's lease-holding tenants, told the committee last week that his telephone conversations had suffered eavesdropping and the management attempted to force tenants out by making things uncomfortable.

It was Reedy who also testified that three visitors to his apartment one day in early June, during his absence, had been identified by a hotel employe as Senator Tydings, Newman and a Mr. Davis.

Point to Be Cleared Up

Newman said Dupont Circle, Inc., signed a lease on July 3, turning the 12-story downtown building over to the Government for conversion to office use.

No testimony has been presented thus far, however, that the lease also has been signed by the Government, though a few offices already have been moved into the building. Clay J. Guthridge, chief of planning and space control for the Public Buildings Administration and the official with whom Newman negotiated on the lease, may clear up this point today or tomorrow.

Former Horse-Car Conductor Celebrates 82d Birthday

William H. Zell, 3326 N Street Northwest, one-time horse-car conductor in Washington, last night turned the ball game off the radio, lighted another cigar and awaited his guests.

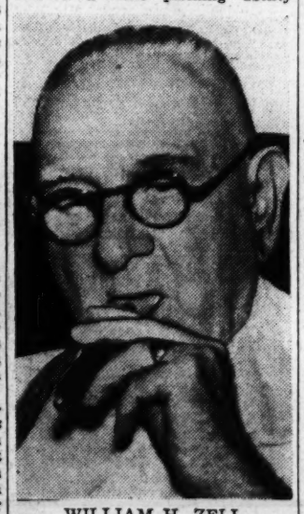
Zel, 82 years old, was having a birthday party. That's why he had on his new white shoes, his striped trousers and his natty green suspenders.

Sixty-eight years ago Willie Zell left grammar school and got himself a job as "hill boy" with the Capital Transit Co. His work was to hitch the horses to cars that ran from Thirty-sixth Street to the Navy Yard. A few years afterward he was graduated to the job of conductor on the horse-drawn cars, and as time went on became a conductor on the electric cars.

He retired 14 years ago, after 54 years of service, and he will tell you proudly, "I was never one minute late in all that time, and I never had an accident."

The white-haired gentleman's only regret is that he can't dance anymore. But he gets great enjoyment from the radio, and likes to listen to jazz.

An enthusiastic baseball fan, he showed a little pitching ability himself, when he tossed a match into an ashtray at the far side of the room.



WILLIAM H. ZELL
Smokes a Birthday Cigar

His likes and dislikes are quite definite. "Roosevelt's my favorite President—Teddy, I mean," he says. "But I guess the other one's all right, too," he adds.

Zell has lived all his 82 years in Georgetown, and doesn't intend to move. He stays with his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bartley Knabe, who arranged the party last night. Present were a small group of old friends.

Wounded Boy Attends Rites For Mother

George Kalavitinos, 18-year-old victim of a shooting last Friday night, sat dry-eyed and stony-faced at the funeral of his mother yesterday and watched as his four sisters were led away from the coffin after each gave a last kiss to the one whose death had orphaned them.

George was one of three youths shot last Friday night by a special officer when they tried to crash a crab feast at 610 H Street Northeast. With a bullet wound in his leg, he was admitted to Casualty Hospital as were the other two boys. At the same time, his mother, Mrs. Jennie Galavitinos, lay at Emergency Hospital suffering from a kidney disorder and an ailing heart. Because of her condition, George asked that she not be told he was injured.

He was discharged from the hospital early yesterday morning, sooner than would otherwise have been the case, so that he might attend the funeral of his mother, who died on Monday morning. He arrived, leaning heavily on a cane.

Nick Caponiti, 17, who also received a leg wound, was discharged from the hospital yesterday. The third youth, Peter Cattucci, 18, is still in Casualty with a serious wound in his back. His condition was said to be fair.

The funeral service for Mrs. Kalavitinos was conducted by the Rev. Thomas Daniels at Saints Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church, Sixth and C Streets Southwest, and burial was in prospect Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Kalavitinos, who was 57, lived at 1003½ Third Street Northeast. She entered Emergency Hospital on July 19.

Military Wedding

Like their gun-toting buddies, the Army press relations writers are ready for any emergency, even the wedding of the colonel's daughter. An Army Press Release from Fort Lewis, Wash., yesterday had this to say about a recent wedding:

"Setting off her deep tan, the bride's gown with white chiffon velvet bodice and full net skirt was charming. She completed her costume with a full-length illusion veil held by a halo of gardenias, and a bridal bouquet of cascading gardenias.

"The bridesmaids, in long dresses of ice blue marquisette paneled with lace, wearing Juliet caps of pink larkspur, lavender sweet peas and pink roses and carrying bouquets of the same flowers, formed a dainty picture . . ."

2 District Men Sentenced on Narcotic Charges

They were Edward D'Argenlo, New York, sentenced to seven years and fined $3,000; Julius Eisenberg, Washington, sentenced to six years and fined $1,000; George and Louis Presto, brothers, New York, each sentenced to four years and fined $2,000; Kenneth V. Wooldridge, Washington, sentenced to five years and fined $1,000.

The defendants were accused of selling heroin hydrochloride, conspiring to sell, or aiding and abetting sales of the drug.

Seventh Starlight Concert Is Curtailed by Thundershower

C. C. Cappel and the National Capital Parks Service present the Gordon String Quartet (Jacques Gordon, Samuel Weiss, William Lincer and Fritz Magg) and Robert Guyn McBride, clarinet, on Tuesday night in Meridian Hill Park. Program: Quartet in F major, Op 18, No. 1 (Beethoven), "La Oracion del Torero" (Turina), "Wise Apple Five" (McBride), Quartet No. 2 in D major (Borodin).

No constellations or galaxies glittered above the "Starlight" chamber music in Meridian Hill Park last evening, when the seventh concert of the series was abruptly curtailed by a thunder-shower. Fortunately the interruption came close to the end of the program, and all that the listeners missed was the final movement of Borodin's D major quartet.

BROWN

During the first half of the concert, flickering lightning and gusty breezes presaged the coming of the storm, but musicians and auditors were unperturbed. In an effort to outrace the inevitable, the usual intermission was set aside and the program was carried on without pause.

Apprehensive listeners began to depart at the intermission time, but the faithful remained to hear all that the elements would permit them. After the second movement of the Borodin work, C. C. Cappel came on the stage, whispered to Jacques Gordon, and announced that because of the threatening downpour the remainder of the quartet would be postponed until Friday night. Cries of "No" came from the auditors, and Mr. Gordon remarked: "I didn't want to postpone it." Thereupon the musicians went on with the third movement, but the fourth was not reached.

That admirable organization, the Gordon String Quartet, was never in better form than on this occasion. One enjoyed with the deepest satisfaction the plasticity and balance of the playing, the perfect synchrony of attack and phrasing, and the remarkable consentience in interpretation. One can take pride in the fact that so polished and artistic an ensemble is American in origin and in reputation.

The concert began with Beethoven's F major quartet from his first set of six. In these days when a composer puts forth one quartet at a time, one looks back with a kind of wonder to the period when writers were so prodigal with their talents as to publish six at once. Haydn and Boccherini both did this before Beethoven, and the practice was quite general in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries.

Folowing the eloquent and persuasive reading of Beethoven came Joaquin Turina's impressionistic sketch, "La Oracion del Torero," which sounds much more poetic in Spanish than "The Bullfighter's Prayer." Genuine poetry is the warp of this interesting music in which one's imagination hears the supplication of a popular hero, who is about to risk his life in the arena, and the sprightly Iberian rhythms which represent the festivities outside the church.

The novelty of the evening was Robert Guyn McBride's "Wise Apple Five," for clarinet and string quartet in which the young American composer played the wind instrument. This is indeed what Mr. McBride calls it, "a quintet of today," for it utilizes elements of jazz and swing, and is as up to date as the newspaper you are now reading. Witty in phrasing and humorous in the application of our popular styles, the work contains a jolly tune and a great deal of clever writing.

Certain traditions of chamber music having already been broken in Meridian Hill Park, the Gordons smashed another by adding as an extra number a fine arrangement of a contemporary song by one of Broadway's most successful composers. It was Jerome Kern's "I Dream Too Much," and as the Gordons played it, with as much care and tenderness as though it had been a Schubert lied, it proved its worthiness.

Talent in the Second Division

As anticipated, this department has been challenged on the statement that a team capable of beating the Yankees over the stretch of the season could be assembled from the four second-division clubs in the American League. "Where," demands our correspondent, "are you going to get enough good ball players?"

POVICH

We'd say that with the pick of the Detroit, Philadelphia, Washington and St. Louis clubs at our disposal we could formulate a team that could win the pennant, even in a year when the Yanks are a superclub. It could be a team without a weakness, a club that would outhit the Yankees, contain more good pitchers and be at least the equal of the Yanks defensively.

Our team could struggle along very nicely with either Dick Siebert, of the A's, or Rudy York, of the Tigers, at first base. Either one would outhit the Yankees' Johnny Sturm by 50 points and give you that long blow, and Siebert, at least, would be the better fielder. In fact, there isn't a club in the first division that owns as capable a first baseman as Siebert who for some reason has not been given his due as a ball player.

The Yankees, with their Joe Gordon, would have the edge at second base over any man we might name out of the second division clubs, but it wouldn't be too formidable a bulge if we named Bennie McCoy, of the A's. McCoy, the flop of 1940, has been a fine ball player this year. He does not have Gordon's fielding skill but he is consistently a better hitter than the Yankee second baseman.

Travis at Short, by All Means.

At third base, too, the Yanks would have something of an edge with their Red Rolfe, but in Harland Clift, of the Browns, our club would have no drawback. Rolfe is fading and Clift is an improved fielder who swings a home run bat, and can steal a base for you. But we aren't exactly restricted to Clift. Our ball team could abide such as Buddy Lewis at third base, in deference to his hitting.

We'd be definitely out in front of anything the Yankees boast when we install Cecil Travis at shortstop. The Yankees own, in Phil Rizzuto, one of the prize rookies of the year, but he scarcely rates with Travis. That is the easiest choice on our club—Travis at shortstop. With his .370 batting average and his clever game at shortstop, there isn't a man on any first division club to challenge Travis for the standout shortstop performance of the year.

Frank Hayes, of the Athletics, would be our catcher, although Birdie Tebbetts, of the Tigers, might be preferred. In any event, no apologies would be necessary. Either man would have an edge on the fading Bill Dickey, of the Yanks, and Hayes will give you that occasional home run.

Our outfield would do as well as the Yankees, even with their Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller. The latter for all his run-production is not hitting .280 and we'd have a host of .300 hitters available. We're thinking of such as Roy Cullenbine, of the Browns; Bob Johnson and Sam Chapman, of the Athletics, and Bruce Campbell and Barney McCosky, of the Tigers. In that group, you'd have an outfield that adds up to grief for pitching.

Pitchers Could Pack a Wallop

It's in the pitching, though, that we'd have the bid edge. We'd struggle along with Buck Newsom and Tommy Bridges, of the Tigers; Dutch Leonard and Sid Hudson, of the Nats; yes, and even Johnny Niggeling, the knuckle-baller of the Browns. We'd take Elden Auker off the Browns, too, and from the A's we'd draft their only good pitcher, who happens to be the best relief pitcher in baseball this year. His name is Tom Ferrick.

This is the club we think would beat the Yankees over a 154-game season. In one sense it would be the greatest club ever assembled. We mean in the pinch-hitting department. The lucky guy who managed the club could call on a half-dozen .300 hitters for pinch-hitting purposes in any game.

One reason we've gone into all this is because it's one argument we can't lose. We can't win it, either, because such a test as we have outlined could never come to pass. But we think the idea serves a purpose, if it does no more than emphasize the fact that there are a lot of good ball players on second division clubs.

Hoyas Offer to Play Grid Game for USO

Schwagel Says G. U. Would Play Nov. 1; Rep. Fish Endorses Plan; Marines Sought

By Jack Munhall

Setting a precedent that is almost certain to be followed by the Nation's colleges generally, Georgetown University yesterday volunteered its football team for a charity game against a United States service eleven. The date would be November 1, which is open on the Hoyas' schedule.

Announcement of the proposed game for benefit of the USO was made by Rome F. Schwagel, newly appointed graduate manager of athletics, with the approval of the Rev. Father John J. Kehoe, faculty moderator of athletics, and Head Football Coach Jack Hagerty.

SCHWAGEL

The Quantico Marines will probably be the Hilltop's opponent, for less than an hour after Schwagel's announcement Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), of New York, pledged his support and said he would discuss the proposal with Maj. Gen. Louis McCarty Little, commanding the nearby Marine base.

Representative Fish, former all-American football player at Harvard and a noted hero of World War I, endorsed the plan as a "generous and patriotic gesture" and added that "any camp team should be glad to cooperate."

He told The Post that he would be in Quantico today and would immediately take up the matter with Gen. Little.

Two Big Reasons

Schwagel, informed of Representative Fish's desire to cooperate, declared that there were two powerful reasons why Georgetown would like to play the Marines. First, he said, Georgetown had some old scores to even with the Leathernecks, who have defeated the Hoyas three times in four previous games, and, secondly, that playing with the Marine team would be several former G. U. football greats.

Now at Quantico, said Schwagel, are Francis "Reds" Daly, a local boy, and Joe McFadden, of Allentown, Pa., and scheduled to report there in September is Lou Ghecas, of Danbury, Conn. All three were regular members of the 1939 Georgetown eleven which compiled the school's first undefeated and untied

Medwick's Hit in Ninth Knots Count

Darkness Halts Fray; To Be Played Off Thursday; Cards Hold 2-Game Lead

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 29.—The Cardinals and the Dodgers fought bitterly for 3½ hours in sultry temperature today for nothing—the game on which the National League pennant may depend being called after 12 innings on account of darkness, with the score tied, 7 to 7. It will be played off Thursday.

After 5½ innings Brooklyn led, 6 to 1, the Cardinals appeared shaky and the game all but decided.

Then, in the last of the sixth, a St. Louis surge brought in six runs and a 7-to-6 advantage.

Both teams muffed opportunities in the late innings.

Wasdell Scores Tying Run

With two out in the Dodger half of the ninth Jimmy Wasdell singled. Dolf Camilli walked. Joe Medwick (once a Cardinal) singled to left, scoring Wasdell with the tying run, but Camilli overran second and was out on the throw from the outfield, losing a possible chance to score the winning run.

In the twelfth, Johnny Mize opened with a double, and speedy Eddie Lake was rushed in to do the running. Enos Slaughter was purposely passed. Jimmy Brown forced Slaughter at second, Estel Crabtree was sent in to bat for Martin Marion and also was passed to set up a play at any base. Walker Cooper bunted, and Lake was out at the plate. Pinch Hitter Coaker Triplett popped to Manager Leo Durocher to end the game.

Durocher Is Goat

Durocher, a spark plug of the old Cardinal Gas House Gang in the pennant-winning days of 1934, put himself into the game in an effort to bring victory. And it almost worked. Durocher got three hits in six times up, including a twelfth-inning double. But he also made a wild throw in that big Cardinal sixth which let Johnny Hopp score the tying run.

Kirby Higbe's inability to locate the plate led to his downfall in that big sixth. After one was out, Martin Marion singled and Higbe walked three men in a row, forcing in a run. Terry Moore got a single off his former teammate, Curt Davis, who replaced Higbe, scoring Cooper and Don Padgett, who had walked.

Mize Clouts Home Run

Frank Crespi, trying to reach third from first, was out, Medwick to Lou Riggs. Hopp then tripled to center—his second of the day—scoring Moore and came home on Durocher's wild relay to Riggs. Mize, who had hit two flies and struck out with men on base his three previous times up, hit the light standard high above right field

Fritzie Zivic Loses Crown To Cochrane

By the Associated Press

Newark, N. J., July 29.—Freddie Cochrane, a rugged redhead with a left hand that works overtime, won the world welterweight championship from Fritzie Zivic tonight in a rough-and-tumble 15-round brawl at Ruppert Stadium. Zivic weighed 145. Cochrane 142½.

The husky little redhead, who learned his A B Cs of fighting as a neighbor of Mickey Walker, took everything the highly favored Zivic had to offer and then charged back for more as he bounced left hooks off Fritzie's face all evening and then served up an occasional right.

Before an estimated crowd of 10,000 that contributed to a gross gate of about $20,000, Cochrane won the decision of Referee Joe Mangold and the heart of every fan by the way he stood off Zivic's closing rush to protect his lead. There are no judges in Jersey and the referee has the whole say.

The bout was as close as it was rough. At the finish the Associated Press score card showed each fighter with seven rounds and one scored even.

Rough Action

There were low blows, head butts, hitting on the break, backhanding and whatever else you can think of. But it was give and take in this respect, with no holds barred and the score about even. Cochrane was penalized with loss of one round, the fourth, for a punch south of the legal border.

Though a 4-to-1 underdog, Red marched right into the vaunted Zivic grins which had ended gallant little Henry Armstrong's career last November and had cut up Bummy Davis less than a month ago and was the aggressor all the way.

He wound up with a gash at the corner of his left eye, from a long right Fritzie tossed at him in the twelfth, and he was tired as a soldier after an all-day forced march at the finish. But he was still taking Fritzie's Sunday shots and swinging that left.

Red started off like a ball of fire and piled up a margin over the first three rounds. Zivic, making only his second defense of the 147-pound crown, looked dull and didn't seem able to "get off" with his punches, despite the pleadings of his corner which started as early as the third heat and kept right on through the remainder of the bout.

Fritzie stepped up the pace through the middle rounds, but the 26-year-old redhead, who has been boxing professionally seven years, stepped right along with him. The Pittsburgher with the flat nose just

Cobb Outplays Ruth, 3 and 2, In Golf Final

By the United Press

Detroit, July 29. — Tireless Ty Cobb, the "Georgia Peach" of baseball, downed perspiring Babe Ruth, the old home run king, 3 and 2, today over the sporty 6,900-yard Grosse Ile Country Club course in the third of their golf series.

BABE RUTH

Cobb, as deliberate on the golf course as he was reckless on the diamond, rolled up a four-hole advantage at the turn, and, as dusk settled, clinched the four-hole match on the sixteenth green.

Cobb, putting brilliantly all afternoon, downed an 18-inch trap on the sixteenth to halve the hole with a bogie 5 and win the match. Ruth, wilted by the sweltering temperatures, congratulated Cobb and both of them posed for photographers.

"Mighty Proud"

"I'm mighty proud to have won," said Cobb, "and I'm very glad we put up such a good match in the town where I used to play ball."

A crowd of 2,500 trailed the former baseball stars in their rubber match. Cobb captured the first match at Boston last month, 3 and 2, but Ruth squared it two days later at New York with a 1-up victory in 19 holes.

Cobb stroked the par 36 first nine in 42, while Ruth needed 46. On the seven holes of the second nine, Ruth was eight over par, Cobb nine.

The once-mysterious John Montague and veteran Walter Hagen played along with Cobb and Ruth and finished with 70, one under par and 74, respectively. In an official side match, Montague and Ruth downed Hagen and Cobb also by a 3 and 2 score.

Proceeds of the match will be turned over to the United Service Organizations.

Wood Vs. Ghezzi To Be Match Play

Girard, Ohio, July 29 (INS).—Match play will replace the originally scheduled medal play in the $2,500 winner-take-all battle between National Open Champion Craig Wood and P. G. A. Titlist Vic Ghezzi, it was announced tonight.

The change in plans was made after Wood stated he "preferred" match play. The golfing duel will take place Saturday and Sunday over a 72-hole route at the Mahoning Valley Country Club.

Pesky Browns And Niggeling Beat Bosox, 3-2

By the Associated Press

Boston, July 29.—The pesky St. Louis Browns contiuned their jinx over the Boston Red Sox today, taking the first game of their present series, 3 to 2, behind the six-hit pitching of Johnny Niggeling, who chalked up his third triumph of the season over Boston.

Mickey Harris opposed Niggeling on the mound and it was his own generosity which spelled defeat for him. Mickey issued seven bases on balls and two of the recipients completed the circuit to give the Browns their margin of victory.

In the second he walked Walt Judnich, who scored from first on Roy Cullenbine's double. In the fourth, Cullenbine reached first on Jim Tabor's low throw and John Berardino drew a pass. With two away, Niggeling singled past Joe Cronin to score Cullenbine and Don Heffner's double to right sent Berardino across the plate.

Boston's only scoring came in the third when Ted Williams drove his twentieth home run of the year into the rightfield stands, scoring Cronin, who reached second when Cullenbine muffed his hoist to deep left.

Jeffra Beaten By Giovanelli

By the Associated Press

New York, July 29.—Harry Jeffra, 127¾, of Baltimore, former bantam and featherweight champion, made his first appearance in New York in four years tonight, and dropped a close but unanimous 10-round decision to Patsy Giovanelli, 130¾, of Brooklyn before a crowd of 3,000 at Queensboro Arena.

Jeffra outboxed the Brooklyn boy through the early rounds and opened a cut over Giovanelli's left eye in the third. But Patsy turned the tide in the seventh with a hard right uppercut. He scored heavily from then to the finish.

In the semifinal six, Phil Cardy, 127½, New York, won on a technical knockout over Bernie Manhoff, 130¼, Philadelphia, in 1:04 of the fourth.

Half Time Takes Detroit Feature

Detroit, July 29 (AP).—Miss Mary Hodge's Half Time, an outsider in a field of seven, outfooted his rivals all the way to win the $1,000 Idle Hour Farm purse, the 6-furlong feature at Fairgrounds Park today.

Finding the deep mud to his liking, the elderly son of Time Maker took full command from the gate and at the finish was only under a mild drive to win by two lengths. The time was 1:13 2-5.

Sarah Lorraine, forced to race wide to the last turn, closed ground steadily to take second, a head in advance of High Plaid. The winner paid $17.80 straight.

2 Pitt Stars Take All-Star Invitation

Nats Shoved in Cellar As Indians Win, 5-1

Al Smith Holds Cramer, Lewis, Travis Hitless; Ken Chase Exits in Third

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Plop! The Nats just fell back into the cellar; in fact, they were pushed. They got a shoving-around from the Cleveland Indians yesterday and lost a 5-1 ball game at Griffith Stadium.

With a chance to gain on the league-leading Yankees who were taking a beating from the Tigers up in the Bronx, the Nats made up no ground in their pennant fight and remained 27½ games out of the league lead. The Indians, meanwhile, were cutting the Yankees' lead to 10½ games.

Al Smith, a 32-year-old left-hander rescued from the minors by the Indians a couple of years ago, put a stop to the Nats' two-game winning streak with a nine-hit pitching job. Smith won his game by holding such as Roger Cramer, Buddy Lewis and Cecil Travis hitless throughout the afternoon.

Ken Chase, who used to beat the Indians with some regularity, was a beaten pitcher yesterday before three innings were over. By that time he had pitched the Indians all of their five runs and he failed to last out the third inning.

Neither club scored after the third inning. Some clever relief pitching by Arnold Anderson proved very futile. Anderson, attempting to keep the Nats in the ball game by hurling four innings of shut-out ball, was working in a hopeless cause what with Smith being very chary with hits.

Walker an Asset

Gerald Walker, who used to play for the Nats, was no drawback to the Indians yesterday. He collected four straight hits, drove in one run and scored two. All told, the Indians accumulated 12 hits off Chase, Anderson and Alex Carrasquel.

It wasn't Jimmy Bloodworth's fault that the Nats were licked. He contributed three of the Nats' nine hits. Anderson, in addition to his relief pitching, swatted a triple with one out in the fifth, but it was wasted.

Chase had no success whatsoever against the Indians. They rocked him for two runs right off the bat after he had walked lead-off man Boudreau in the first inning. Walker banged a single to left and a bit later Keltner and Grimes duplicated that blow and the Indians had a 2-0 lead.

They came up with three more runs in the third inning into which they packed four hits and a base on balls. After Grimes walked to fill the bases, Roy Mack, supposedly a weak-hitting second baseman, slapped a single to center and two runs were home. Hemsley fetched home a third with a single to right and it was Anderson who eventually got the side out.

Archie's Double

George Archie inspired the Nats' only run when he doubled down the left-field line with two out in the second inning, and Jimmy Bloodworth got it home. Bloodworth singled to left, but the uprising died suddenly when he tried to take second after seeing Walker boot the

Tigers Said Seeking Dykes

By International News Service

Chicago, July 29.—Manager Jimmy Dykes, of the White Sox, can boss the Detroit Tigers next year if he desires, the Chicago Herald-Examiner stated today.

Dykes will be offered the Detroit managership at a salary of $35,000 a year, the paper said, adding that Walter O. Briggs, owner of the Tigers, is looking for a manager more fiery than Del Baker, present chieftain of the Tiger flock. Baker, according to the report, would be invited to coach the Tigers provided Dykes chooses to become manager.

The Herald-Examiner said further that Dykes' contract as White Sox skipper expires at the end of this season, and that Mrs. Grace Comiskey, president of the team, had offered him another two-year term. Dykes has not accepted, it was said.

Chalky Wright Signs for D. C. Fight in August

Archibald Sought for Title Bout

Featherweight Fight Would Be Held at Ball Park August 17 or 24 Over 15-Round Route

Enterprising Ray Alvis yesterday reentered the boxing promotorial field locally when he announced the signing of Chalky Wright, outstanding Negro featherweight, to box Joey Archibald, National Boxing Association champion, in a scheduled 15-round titl ebout on either August 18 or August 25.

Alvis announced that Wright already has accepted terms and signed articles and will entrain for New York today in an effort to close out with Manager Al Weill for Archibald.

Alvis declared that he had offered Weill $7,500 and a privilege of 37½ per cent of the receipts, but that Weill was holding out for $8,500 and the privilege. He expects to adjust these differences after a conference with Weill today.

Unbeaten Here

Archibald, undefeated here since making his debut as a preliminary boy, won his title from Mike Belloise in an out-of-town ring; lost it to Harry Jeffra in Baltimore, and regained it from Jeffra in a return bout here.

A product of Providence, R. I., the colorful and pinwheeling Joey caught on quickly locally, and has gained a degree of popularity locally never exceeded by any other fighter of any weight.

In the event Archibald is signed for Wright, as is expected, it will mark the third world's featherweight title bout featured here. Petey Sarron wrested the championship away from Freddy Miller several years ago; Archibald regained his crown from Jeffra at Griffith Stadium only a relatively few months ago, and new the sharpshooting Wright will be conceded a good chance of turning back Archibald.

This will be Alvis' first promotion since parting company with Mike Jacobs following the promotion of the world's heavyweight title bout between Joe Louis and Buddy Baer last May 23. It will be the first of a series of outstanding bouts to be introduced locally under his auspices, Alvis declares.

Wright, stablemate of Henry Armstrong at a time when Armstrong was champion of three divisions, has been considered the uncrowned king of the featherweights for the past year. He is a terrific puncher, a good boxer and pleasing fighter.

In the event Alvis signs Archibald for Wright he will have made a match that is in demand throughout the East.

Archibald Ordered To Meet Wright

New York, July 29 (INS).—The New York Boxing Commission today ordered Al Weill, manager of Featherweight Champion Joey Archibald, to negotiate contracts within a week for a title match between Archibald and Chalky Wright, California Negro.

'Archibald's Manager Asks $8,500 'Take'

New York, July 29 (AP).—Al Weil, manager of Joe Archibald, today received an offer from Promoter Ray Alvis, of Washington, for the featherweight champion to defend his title against Chalky Wright, of Los Angeles, either August 18 or 25.

Weil said Alvis offered him $7,500 with an option of 37½ per cent of the gate and he countered with a proposal of $8,500 and the same percentage.

Yanks 'Walk' Tigers To a 6-3 Victory

Four New York Pitchers Issue 13 Passes as Pacesetters Bow; DiMaggio, Rolfe Hit Homers

By the Associated Press

New York, July 29.—Four New York Yankee pitchers gave the Detroit Tigers 13 bases on balls today and caused the American League leaders to drop a 6-to-3 decision for their second straight defeat.

Today's loss came on the heels of the Yanks' setback by the Chicago White Sox in the second game of a double-header Sunday and was the first time since June 17 that they had lost two in a row.

Hal Newhouser and Schoolboy Rowe combined to hold New York to six hits and all the Yankee scoring came on a homer by Red Rolfe in the third and Joe DiMaggio's twenty-fourth circuit clout with one on in the sixth. This extended Joe's new hitting streak to 12 games. He has been held hitless only once in the last 69 games.

The Tigers made only seven safeties themselves, but the passes gave them all the help they needed.

Tigers Rally

Atley Donald started for the Yanks and let the Tigers fill the bases without scoring in the fourth on two walks and an error. Then in the fifth Barney McCosky doubled, Pinky Higgins walked, Bruce Campbell doubled, Charley Gehringer walked and Billy Sullivan singled for a total of three runs.

In the sixth the Tigers again loaded the bases on a single and two walks, but Charley Stanceu relieved Donald and kept Detroit from scoring.

Then in the seventh, with the score tied, the Tigers got five more walks for two runs without a hit. Stanceu passed the first two men he faced, got two outs on a sacrifice and a strikeout by Rowe, pinchhitting for Newhouser, then walked two more. He made two more wide pitches to the next batter before Norman Branch was rushed onto the scene and finished filling out the pass.

In the eighth another walk by Johnny Murphy and singles by Frank Croucher and Rowe gave Detroit its final run.

Rain Helps Pirates Beat Braves, 5 to 3

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, July 29.—Jupiter Pluvius scored a timely assist today as the Pittsburgh Pirates polished off the Boston Braves, 5-2, for the tenth bucco victory in their last 11 games.

Halted briefly by a shower, the game finally was washed out in the eighth after Frank Demaree's single and a walk to Varvel Rowell had placed the tying runs on the bases for the Braves with only one out.

The Pirates went out in front to stay on a four-run second inning started by Maurice Van Robays' single.

Lefty Joe Sullivan received credit for his fourth straight pitching victory since he joined the Pirates although he was relieved by Bob Klinger in the sixth.

Cox Meets Fraley At Turner's Arena

Plenty of dynamite is due to come out of tomorrow night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena, for Promoter Joe Turner made it known yesterday that the grapplers who make the most impressive showings will be used on a big card to be staged next month at the ball park.

Those two headliners, Joe Cox, the Kansas Krasher, and Pat Fraley, of the Pacific Coast, will be shooting for one of the feature berths. Fraley headlined shows on the Coast for 13 straight weeks, and holds a victory over none other than the durable Nebraskan, Ernie Dusek. Cox was disqualified some months ago at the arena in a headline bout against the same Dusek. Plummer engaging Roy Clements.

Tomorrow night's card finds Lou of Texas, in the semiwindup. Maurice LaChappelle, the French master, will take on Angelo Savoldi; Ace Freeman will meet Angelo Leone and Tommy Rae will collide with Fred (Legs) Grobmier.

Washington Printers Top Boston, 13-1

Mosedale Gives 5 Hits; Team Meets Undefeated Detroit Outfit Today

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, July 29.—Detroit remained tonight as the only unbeaten contender in the thirty-first annual Union Printers Baseball Tournament as New York and Boston took their first setbacks and Minneapolis-St. Paul was eliminated.

Detroit gave the New Yorkers their first beating, 12 to 7, battering home seven runs in the first inning and coasting to victory.

St. Louis eliminated Minneapolis-St. Paul, 8, to 3. The tournament is being played on a two-defeats-and-out basis. Dandridge went all the way for St. Louis, allowing only five hits.

Washington, the defending champion, continued its heavy hitting and blasted out a 13-to-1 victory over Boston. Mosedale held Boston to five hits and had a shutout until the eighth inning.

Tomorrow Detroit will risk its perfect record against the champion Washington nine, which has two victories and a defeat. St. Louis (2-1) will meet New York (2-1) and Boston (2-1) will clash with Chicago (1-1).

5-Run Rally In 5th Wins For Reds, 7-4

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, July 29.—The Cincinnati Reds wrapped up a five-run fifth inning today to send the New York Giants reeling to their sixth defeat in seven games in the West, 7 to 4.

Led by Mel Ott, the Giants raided Elmer Riddle for all their runs in the first three innings. Ott drove in the first run with a double in the opening stanza and hit his nineteenth home run with one on in the third. But after that Gene Thompson held New York scoreless on five hits to get credit for the victory.

The Reds broke Bob Carpenter's spell in the fourth with two runs on a double by Lonnie Frey and singles by Frank McCormick and Ival Goodman, who returned to the line-up after a month's illness.

In the fifth they received four walks, four hits and two passed balls to score five times and quit with the bases still loaded. After the second passed ball let in one run, Hank Danning replaced Gabby Hartnett behind the plate for New York.

Billy Soose 7-5 Favorite Over Abrams

GEORGE ABRAMS

By the United Press

New York, July 29.—Middleweight Champion Billy Soose tonight was the 7-to-5 favorite to lick Georgie Abrams, a member of the U. S. Naval Reserve, for his first time tomorrow night in a 10-round nontitle fight at Madison Square Garden.

These men have met before—twice in Pittsburgh—and each time Abrams sustained early round knockdowns and defeated the man who was eventually to become champion.

But, even though he should make it three straight, Abrams probably would be destined for the time being to be merely an "outstanding challenger." Soose won the title on May 9 from Ken Overlin, who happens to be a member of the Chris Dundee Stable which also controls Abrams.

Soose is committed to give Overlin a return match and, should Overlin win, then Abrams would have little chance of getting a title match with a man from his own "team."

Cubs Blast Phils, 12 to 4, On 14 Hits

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 29.—The Chicago Cubs bombarded five pitchers with 14 well-timed hits today to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies, 12 to 4, in the first of their four-game series.

The Phils knocked Starting Pitcher Bill Lee out of the box in the third with their third and fourth runs, but the Cubs tied the count in their half of the third.

The Cubs have won 10 of their last 12 games.

Smith and Simmons Battle, Dykes Acts As Peacemaker After Game Is Over

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 29.—Jimmy Dykes, who usually is one of the principals, acted as peacemaker today in a fight that broke out between Southpaw Edgar Smith, of the White Sox, and Al Simmons, of the Aathletics, after Smith had shutout the A's with four hits, 1 to 0.

Simmons, who pinch-hit in the ninth, had lined out to center field to end the game. He and Smith came to blows on the first-base line as both were returning to their respective dugouts. The White Sox manager rushed from the dugout and pulled the players apart. Simmons, who had been coaching at third base until he was called upon as a pinch hitter, previously had been warned by the umpires to quit "riding" Smith.

The victory gave the White Sox a tighter grip on fourth place. To climb into the first division the A's now must win the next two of the three-game series.

Phil Marchildon also twirled a four-hitter for the Mackmen, but with two out in the fourth Taft Wright singled and came home on Luke Appling's triple. The A's loaded the sacks with one out in the second and had two on with none out in the sixth, but Smith worked out of both jams.

Before the game Earle Brucker, Athletics coach, was hit over the eye by a pitched ball. Four stitches were required to close the cut.

Nat'l Amateur Golf Entries Close Friday

The National Amateur championship entry deadline is only three days away and local simon-pures with handicaps of four and under are urged to send their entries to the U. S. G. A. to increase the field for the Middle Atlantic sectional qualifying rounds.

Although the forty-fifth annual tournament is being played well over a thousand miles from here, in Omaha, Nebr., there are several of the local amateurs who really want to make the trip, including Earle Skinker, Bobby Brownell and Ralph Bogart. Thus the more entries from this section the more places for the sectional qualifying rounds Thursday, August 14 in Baltimore.

Unknown Land, Paying $4.50, Wins Feature Race at Bel Air

Scootie 2d, Erin Girl Finishes 3d

8,000 Enjoy Coolest Weather of Meeting; Thrilling Dead Heat Marks Second Race

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Bel Air, Md., July 18.—Unknown Land, a 3-year-old daughter of Discovery, was no secret to the favorite players today and they celebrated by collecting at the rate of $4.50 for each $2 invested after the filly had turned back her opposition in the Abingdon Purse, featuring the program.

Despite breaking sideways as the field left the gate, Unknown Land finished a length and a half in advance of C. M. Feltner's Scootie in the test of 7 furlongs, which drew nine starters. Third money went to Mrs. H. S. Clark's Erin's Girl.

Jockey Wayne Weber rode Unknown Land while wearing the silks of Mrs. Veader Leonard. The winner was the second horse saddled for Mrs. Leonard by Trainer Don Yates, of Baltimore, who also sent the speedy Mightily out to win here last week. Unknown Land was clocked in 1:27 1-5 over a fast track, four-fifths of a second over the track mark for the distance, held by War Scare. A crowd of 8,000 saw the day's action and the weather was the coolest of the meeting.

Scootie was first to show in front. Jockey A. F. Martinez drew out to a clear lead in the run to the first turn. Unknown Land, however, was under a slight grip and closest to the pace. When Weber asked the filly for speed, she responded to take command and was going away at the end.

A thrilling dead heat marked the running of the second race. Galt Davis' Exhort and Mrs. P. G. Simms' Lil's Daughter came into the wire as a team, and the judges said the picture showed them all even. The dead heat came on the closing end of the daily double, which had to be split. Eddie Johnson's Vale Dove won the first race at $37.90. Those who had Vale Dove with Exhort collected $67.40, while those with the first-race winner and Lil's Daughter took down $159.90.

The day's steeplechase race proved a romp for J. H. C. Forbes' Lone Gallant. The son of Gallant Fox was the favorite and paid $4.90, while winning by 15 lengths. Justa Bud was second and Golden Coin was third. The winning time of 3:42 was a new track record for the short course.

LIL'S DAUGHTER bothered KENNER in the opening furlong, took an open lead and held on with good energy in the closing drive. EXHORT was steadied in the first flight, came out to improve position, took command between calls and just lasted for dead heat. KENNER was bothered early, was in close quarters on the rail at the far turn and weakened in the final drive. CANROCK closed with good energy.

Daily Double, VALE DOVE and EXHORT, Paid $67.40, and VALE DOVE and LIL'S DAUGHTER, Paid $150.90.

LONE GALLANT moved up boldly after a mile, opened a long lead when FLYCATCHER fell and was in hand at the end. JUSTA BUD was in a contending position when he made a bad landing at the tenth fence, the rider lost his stirrups, but held on well to the end. He lost his rider while being pulled up after the finish. GOLDEN COIN raced well while close up and held on gamely under pressure.

BRAZEN HUSSY, closest to the pace of BUTTERMAN from the start, took command when asked and held on with excellent courage in the closing test. MISS BUZZARD, off slowly, came between horses boldly to reach serious contention and hung right at the close. CLAY HILL saved much ground and closed willingly. CHANCER moved up menacingly in the stretch run and then tired suddenly.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:36. Winner, Mrs. Veader Leonard's b. f. (3), by Discovery—Oroya. Trained by D. Yates. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:27⅘.

UNKNOWN LAND broke to the outside, was rushed to contention and wore down SCOOTIE to win going away. SCOOTIE was first away, saved ground while setting the pace and held on gamely. ERINS GIRL saved ground for the half, came out for racing room and closed willingly. PURPORT was far back early and closed full of run on the inside. FEEDPATCH was bothered by the winner leaving the gate.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3 and 4 year olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:07½. Winner, S. W. La Brot's b. c. (3), by Happy Time—Rocket Glare. Trained by C. Sutphin. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:40.

SANTIAGO took command at once, was always far out and was not threatened while winning handily. PEPPERY was well placed from the start and came gamely in the closing stages, but was no match for the winner. WORTHOWNING was hard ridden and had no excuses. BRIGHT GEM was snatched up after a half and was not a factor thereafter.

Selections at Bell Air

I guess I put the jinx on the steeplechase riders with that little piece yesterday. Jockey L. Goines broke several ribs and Jockey R. Hayhurst suffred a broken collarbone in falls yesterday. The most talked of race of the meeting, as far as the press box was concerned, was yesterday's dead heat in the second event. Opinion was divided as to the winner and there were various arguments about one or both of the horses being disqualified. The weather had cooled off so the boys had to get hot about something. The picture that decided was a dud. It showed Exhort on the outside with his nose on the wire but Lil's Daughter's head was behind that of the other horse. The judges did about all they could do under the circumstances and called it an evenstephen affair. The mutuel department took a beating on the race. In addition to there being a late scratch in the first half, they were forced to divide due to the dead heat. The photo finishes in the first and second races, plus the accidents in the steeplechase, put the program far behind. In fact, that three-hours for eight races stuff seems to be forgotten. Although it is a good thing to get the programs over early, you just can't run a race track on a train schedule. Received a letter from Earl A. Merryman, who used to cut capers with Art Brown on WOL. He inclosed a season pass for a dog track near Memphis where he is an officer in the Army. Earl says (quote) the meeting has two more months to go but I have had enough. If you want to, give this pass to Brown, (unquote). Jockeys S. Dewain and R. Root have been suspended for the remainder of the meeting and their cases referred to the racing commission. They were accused of unfair tactics in Monday's sixth race. Root was on J. Hal and Dewain was on Chide. They are alleged to have shut off Nick, ridden by Jockey Skeets Holland. See you on the rail.—BILL.

First race—PIMLICO POLLY should make the most of the inside post position. Just missed last out and deserves the call. GENERAL ELECT has been played in recent races and should be close. CHIEF TEDDY is a possibility.

Second race—BEACON QUEEN seems well placed in this field. Will appreciate a change in track conditions, however. WHITE COCKADE is the class, but has gone back. WAUGH SCOUT for the minor award.

Third race—WAR PORT always manages to lose one way or another. However, if he stays on four feet, he should beat this kind. The entry of HAREM HONEY and FLEMAR is due respect. BLENNY ran a good race last out.

Fourth race—GRAEME CRACKER needs only to get into action here. The veteran is ready to run back this kind. Feather weight gives IDA TIME a good chance. SNUGGLE to take care of the others.

Fifth race—MARDI GRAS was a winner at Hagerstown and seems to have something on these. LEONARDTOWN is in light and will be a keen factor with a share of the racing luck. BALKANESE for the minor money.

Sixth race—BLUSTERING needs only to run back to that second behind WALTER LIGHT to beat this kind. SHAILLEEN closes with good energy and will be a keen factor. DIZZY DAME will be a factor if the track is soft.

Seventh race—WELSH LAD was badly bumped last out and had little chance. With better racing luck this one should score. MATCH POINT is consistent and sharp. SUNNY ROSE won last out impressively.

Eighth race—WALE SIGNAL gets my call in the day's finale. Needs only the right handling. TROSTAR and CURVES to take care of the place and show awards.

Best bet—BLUSTERING.

Should Ball Players Be Held Over in Army?

Writer Undecided, Asks That Readers Give Their Opinions

Greenberg, Mulcahy Lauded as Examples Of Model Soldiers

I myself—and I mean the writer—am a guy who said back there when Hank Greenberg, an agile, able and opulent outfielder of the Detroit Tigers, was rumored about to draw a bye from his draft board because his dogs, or feet, were plan'ti grade like a bear's, that he ought to be passed right on into the service and that if he couldn't stand on those flat feet, they could let him sit down. There were reasons of two sorts. The first came under the heading of common horse sense; the second soared upward into the idealistic sphere of our several types of duty as Americans.

Cunningham

GREENBERG

Under the horse-sense department, our Nation had registered its manhood from 21 to 35 years of age and had tapped certain among them for military service in the fairest lottery possible. Greenberg was among these. It chanced that he was a great major league baseball star, possibly the most valuable, and commonly selected as the be the highest salaried, of the lot.

He is unmarried. He has no dependents. Ruling him out as physically incompetent seemed the height of farce. Whether his feet are flat, round or square, he played a running game where the running crops out most—in the outfield—so exceptionally well that he had just been voted the most valuable player in the American League.

This seemed prima Facie evidence that he was sound enough for any soldiering.

As an American, in a land where special privilege is not supposed to, and should not, exist, especially when the Nation issues a call for defenders, a baseball star rates no more, nor any less,

Hunt Upset in Southampton Tennis

Hippenstiel Turns Back D. C. Player

6th-Seeded Hunt Bags Seven Aces in Row In First Set but Bows, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3

By the Associated Press

Southampton, N. Y., July 29.—Robin Hippenstiel, a soft-spoken Californian with a dynamite-laden racquet, survived a stormy first set today and then went on to blast out a 2—6, 6—2, 6—3 upset triumph over sixth-seeded Gil Hunt, of Washington, in the second round of the fifty-first annual Meadow Club Invitation Tennis tournament.

Hunt unloaded seven successive service aces at the 25-year-old San Bernardino youth in the first set, but Hippenstiel, playing in the fourth grass tournament of his career, sharpened the sights on his tremendous volleying game in the second and third sets and hammered Hunt into submission.

Hunt, the second seeded entry to make his exit, had a strong backhand to match his service in the first set. But when Hippenstiel made his net stand, Hunt's backhand drives barely passed the barrier as the Californian converted them into damaging sideline placements.

The other seeded players moved ahead with only occasional difficulty. Bobby Riggs, of Clinton, S. C., romped through Bill Vogt, Philadelphia, 6—4, 6—3, while Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., had a few anxious moments before eliminating Earl Cochell, Los Angeles, 7—5, 6—4. They were joined in the third round by Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla., a 6—3, 6—3 victor over Veteran Fred Baggs, of New York.

Schroeder Wins

Fourth-seeded Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, Calif., won two matches to reach the third round. His victims were Victor Seixas, of Philadelphia and George Judson, of Phoenix, Ariz., the respectve scores being 7—9, 6—4, 6—3 and 6—2, 9—7. Another in the round of sixteen was Bitsy Grant, of Atlanta, who took care of Harris Everett, of Miami, Fla., 6—3, 6—2.

Billy Talbert, of Cincinnati, defeated Ed Moylan, Trenton, N. J., 8—6, 6—1, after Moylan had reached the second round with a 6—4, 4—6, 6—4 decision over George Ball, El Paso, Tex. Little Francisco Segura, champion of Ecuador, defeated E. Blair Hawley, New York, 12—10, 10—8, and repeated against Dick McKee, of Miami, 6—3, 3—6, 6—4.

Charles Mattman, of New York, defeated David Johnsen, the lone Washington entry, 6—1, 6—8, 6—3.

Seymour Greenberg, Chicago, defeated Ronald Edwards, San Jose, Calif., 6—4, 6—3.

Wasdell's third home run of the season with Pete Reiser on base put Brooklyn ahead, 2 to 0, in the first.

Camilli hit his seventeenth home run in the fourth and his eighteenth in the sixth, in which inning the Dodgers scored three times. After the home run Medwick reached third when Hopp dropped his easy fly and scored on Herman Franks single. Higbe sacrificed Franks to second from where he scored on Riggs' double.

Rain delayed the start of the game 45 minutes.

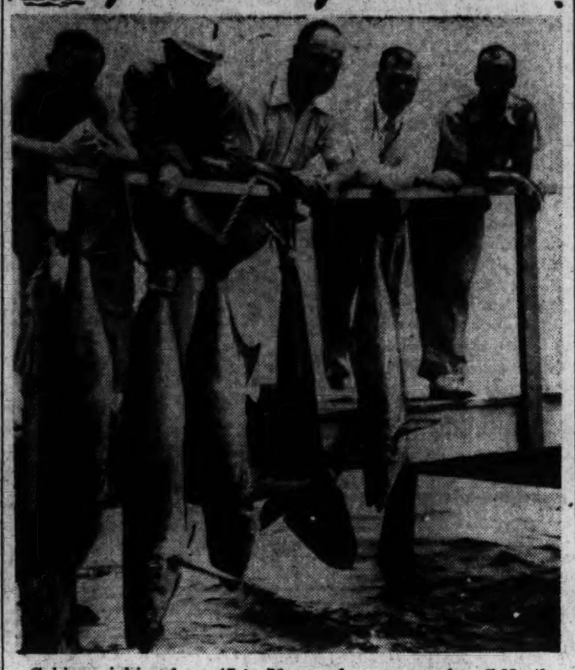
Fishing with JACK BELL



Cobia weighing from 47 to 72 pounds were caught off North West Middle Buoy by (left to right) Dr. G. Simms, C. Lowery, Edward Easley, Marvin E. Bray and George Spots

The Cobia is a most interesting fish, for its is very lively when hooked, and doubly so when taken an live bait. When a Cobia seizes the bait he invariably makes a run of about 75-yards. It is then that the angler must be very careful and have iron nerves. When the Cobia stops and still has the bait, you can be sure he has it well in his mouth, and is easily hooked.

This fish is an inhabitant of warm seas, ranging in summer as far north in the Atlantic as Cape Cod. It is not uncommon from the Chesapeake Bay southward. It is also known as sergeant fish, crab-eater and coal fish. It reaches a length of 4 or 5 feet, and it's flesh is edible, tasting much like fresh pork.

JACK BELL

Mrs. Bray, wife of Marvin (Buddy) E. Bray, of 1365 Sheridan Street Northwest, had an interesting experience last week. Monday off the wharf at their beach place below Solomons Island, she saw some fish breaking, the size and number frightened her so she would not allow the children near the water, not knowing what they were. She called Buddy on the phone in Washington. He tells us his wife is not easily frightened and from her excitement he felt he had better investigate, and Tuesday morning, in company with his fishing cronies, drove down. They were met by Capt. Slantaus Willoughby with his boat, Shirley Temple. They cruised around slowly, looking for the school of big fish. Near the northwest bouy they located the fish breaking water. Two were boated after losing eight, due to the small hooks they used. Wednesday, after getting a new supply of large hooks, they soon located the school again. Fishing with live trout or hardheads hooked in the tail, they landed three more, also losing six. Buddy is back again looking for the school. Buddy's angling friends were Dr. G. Simms, G. Lowery, Ed Easly and George Spots.

The time is very close for all who wish to attend and compete in the National Capital Fishing Rodeo t oget set and make reservations. The rodeo will be held at Solomons Island, Thursday, August 7.

Here is an opportunity for newcomers to Washington to go fishing under the most enjoyable conditions and become acquainted with many anglers.

The rodeo will begin with fishing boats leaving dock at 3 p. m., which gives everyone an opportunity to drive down there after lunch. Anyone not having a car and wishing to go, transportation will be found or him if he calls us or Mr. Frank Mulkern, Hobart 3448.

Marlin fishing quite a spurt last week at Ocean City, Md., 12 being boated on Tuesday, and 9 more up to Saturday, making a total of 50 for the season.

Great numbers are seen, but they are somewhat choosy, making competition among the anglers very keen.

Thursday a 147-pound mako shark was caught by a Baltimore angler. Mako shark are unusual at Ocean City, but it seems the unusual is becoming more frequent there.

Washington anglers catching marlin this past week at Ocean City: Tuesday, M. A. Marks, a 46-pounder, fishing with Capt. C. Carpenter on the Nelson; Lieut. C. N. Walker, a 75-pounder, fishing with Capt. Bee Sanderson on the Hobo; Wednesday, Mrs. C. L. Parker, a 49-pounder, fishing on her cruiser, Marlo; Thursday, Paul Drury, a 61-pounder, fishing with Capt. B. L. Raymond on the Lev-Lou.

Potomac River above Seneca Creek mouth was milky over the weekend and bass anglers did not find conditions to their liking. However, with the rise of nearly 18 inches and a few days without rain, it should be very good.

The north and south forks of the Shenandoah River at Front Royal, Va., are clear. Jack Morgan, of Front Royal, caught a small-mouth bass that went over 3 pounds, over the weekend.

Monocacy Creek, above the bridge crossing the highway from Washington to Frederick, is clear as gin. The Monocacy will furnish good fishing when it is clear, and many anglers take advantage of it when it is. We heard of a 6-pound small-mouth taken there this past week. However, we have been unable to have it verified as yet.

couldn't get out of the way of that left through the first ten rounds.

In the tenth Zivic started to move, but Cochrane, sensing victory, kept rushing in. From thence on, the action had the fans standing on their chairs and roaring as Zivic slugged in desperation and the husky carrot-top pitched with him to save his margin.

In the fifteenth round they stood head to head for seconds on end just banging away.

Thus Red made history repeat, for Fritzie pulled a rabbit out of the hat last fall when, as a 4-to-1 shot, he punched Armstrong's eyes shut and put the crown on his own head. In his lone defense, he made this victory stick over an Armstrong who was far from the great little buzzsaw of his hey-day.

Going into tonight's tilt, they were writing Red's ring obituary, figuring him no better than an even money shot to stall off a knockout. He had been beaten five times by Tippy Larkin, a Jersey lightweight; he had been knocked out once in his career, by Pedro Montanez, once a welterweight contender.

Mayor James F. Kirk of Elizabeth decided to declare a half-holiday for the local boy who made good, and in Hillside, where Red operates a drinking emporium (not soft), the officials lifted the 3 a. m. curfew.

Charley Wright, promising Newark Negro heavyweight, flattened Babe Ritchie, of Lubbock, Tex., in the second round of one of the feature preliminaries. Wright, weighing 188 to Ritchie's 192, floored the Texan with a right hand early in the second and then dropped him for the full ten with a smashing left hook at 1:08 of the same heat.

Mickey Adamick, 135, New York, and Gus Vargo, 138, Orange, N. J., went four rounds to a draw.

Oscar (Dynamite) Daniels, 123, Newark Negro, walked right out and put Vinca Fazzaro, 125, Trenton, N. J., away in 52 seconds of the first round of their six-rounder. Fazzaro was on the floor three times.

Vinnie Vines, 150, Schenectady, N. Y., punched out a six-round decision victory over Bunky Wall, 152, Morristown (N. J.) Negro. It was Vines' second win over the Jerseyite.

Sammy Parrotto, 130, Pittsburgh, outpointed Johnny Rudolph, 133, Morristown, N. J., in another six.

Victor Too Excited To Feel Any Hurts

Newark, N. J., July 29 (AP).—Freddie (Red) Cochrane, the Jersey boy who made good before the home folks tonight by winning the world welterweight title from Fritzie Zivic, was too excited in his dressing room to know if Zivic hurt him.

"I'll tell you later when I get a chance to check up," he promised.

Zivic blamed his defeat on staleness due to constant training for months, and announced he'd take a month's vacation in Minnesota.

"Then I'll take on Red in a return match and knock him out," the Pittsburgher predicted. "You know, there's a clause in the contract calling for a return match in 60 days."

Second Baby Boy Born To Wife of Publicist

Dave Herman, the popular sports publicist, was twice a papa yesterday following the birth of an 8-pound-4-ounce baby boy at the George Washington University Hospital at 12:02 p. m.

Mrs. Goldie Herman and child were reported to be doing well. The Hermans were already the parents of Stanley Allen, aged 3 years and 5 months.

Miss Bundy Tops Stanton In N. Y. Tennis

By the Associated Press

East Hampton, N. Y., July 29.—For the second successive day Dorothy May Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., had a fight on her hands to stay in the running for the Maidstone Club women's invitation tennis title today.

The defending champion, No. 3 on the seeded list, was extended all the way before downing Jane Stanton, of Los Angeles, 6—4, 6—4. The victory put Miss Bundy in the quarter-finals with the other ranked contenders—Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, of New York, No. 1, who beat Judy Atterbury, Locust Valley, N. Y., 6—0, 6—1; Pauline Betz, Winter Park, Fla., who turned back Barbara Bradley, of Los Angeles, 6—3, 6—2, and Virginia Wolfenden, of San Francisco, 6—3, 7—5 winner over Katherine Winthrop, of Boston.

Louise Brough, of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Hope Knowles, of Philadelphia, advanced in the upper half of the draw with Mrs. Cooke and Miss Wolfenden. The California girl put out Nellie Sheer, Miami Beach, Fla., 6—1, 6—0, and Miss Knowles upset Nina Brown, of London, 6—1, 6—2.

Surviving with Miss Bundy and Miss Betz in the lower half were Mary Arnold, of Los Angeles, on an 8—6, 6—3 conquest of Mrs. Helen Pedersen Ribhany, of Boston and Stamford, Conn., and Shirley Catton, of Alameda, Calif., who first beat Valerie Scott, of London, 6—0, 6—2, and then ousted Mrs. Marta Barnett Andrare, Montauk, N. Y., 7—5, 6—4.

Lieut. Stein Named M. C. For Banquet

Lieut. Elmer F. Stein, veteran fireman from Engine Co. No. 16, last night was appointed as master of ceremonies for the Police-Fireman's banquet tomorrow night at 6:45 at the Harrington Hotel in connection with the field day scheduled Saturday, August 23, at Griffith Stadium.

Stein hails from a family of firefighters, and has been an active worker in the annual field day.

Lieut. John J. Agnew, general chairman and athletic director of the field day, also announced that the banquet would be in the form of a testimonial to Inspector William G. Stott, who oddly enough, retires tomorrow night officially from the Police force after 37 years of service.

Stott created the idea for the field day, and also organized the Police Retiring Association, which with the Firemen's Relief and Retiring Associations, are sponsoring the annual show. Stott also was the first president of the association.

High ranking Police and Fire officials will be among the guests, while District Commissioners Guy Mason and John Russell Young will rub shoulders with sports writers, newspapermen and radio commentators from the local stations.

At the banquet Lieut. Agnew will reveal his plans for the field day which has won for itself a reputation of being the outstanding event of its kind in this section.

season. Daly, a '39 graduate, played end, while Ghecas was a halfback and McFadden the quarterback.

Georgetown and the Marines first met in 1918 and Georgetown won in a 81-0 rout, but from then on the Leathernecks dominated a series famed for its closeness and brilliance of plays by winning in 1922, 1923 and 1924. The respective scores were 9-6, 14-3 and 6-0.

Likely Foe

Quantico would apepar the best possible foe for Georgetown since wits its attractive offer of a commission in two months to any college graduate able to pass the tests, that branch of service is luring many prominent athletes. Among the former college grid stars known to be there is Jack Padley, Dayton University halfback.

Georgetown's proposal of the game followed by only a few hours a prediction Monday by Asa Bushnell, president of the Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, that there would be many college service grid games in the next three years.

Addressing a meeting of the association at Miami, Bushnell said a study was being made of rules interpretations and other problems likely to arise in the event of games between college and service teams. He said several such games would probably be played next fall, and many more in 1942 and 1943 when the colleges begin to draw up new schedules.

Senate Meets Standard Linen At Ballston

Senate Beer's softballers will be heavily favored to annex the Merchant Night League championship tonight at 8:30 when they meet Standard Linen in the second game of a best two-out-of-three series for the title. The Beermen won the series opener Monday night, 12-3.

Veteran Abe Rosenfield, who set the Linenmen down with only three safeties Monday, is slated to go back to the mound for Senate tonight, while Benny Rubin, who started against the Beermen Monday, will try again for Standard.

Senate raked Rubin and Kushner, his relief man, for 16 safeties in Monday night's game, but it is hardly likely that there will be a repetition of that slaughter. The Linenmen know they must win this one to stay in the running and will be playing their best brand of ball.

The two teams will employ virtually the same line-ups as of Monday. Senate will have Eli Blank catching, Art Brasse, Davis, Archie Zinnamon and Jake Rosenblum in the infield, and Gizzy Ehrlich, Jimmy Woodward, Dave Singer and Paul Woodward in the outfield. Charley Aquilino will be behind the bat for Senate, with Al Wellens, George Larrick, Tucker Woodward and Jerry Zanellotti around the hub, and Harrell, Barry, Wallerstein and Jacobson in the outer domains.

Pepco Beats Civil Service; Clinches 2d

The Pepco ten eliminated Civil Service, 7 to 0, from second place honors in the Washington Night League at the Ballston Softball Stadium last night.

Ken Thomas held the losers to one hit and struck out ten men, eight of them successively.

In the first inning, George Beach hit a two-run homer to give Pepco a lead that virtually cinched the ball game.

In the second game, the Baltimore Blue Coals piled up a 2-0 lead over Yellow Cab in the first inning when a sudden storm brought about an end to the proceedings.

Fat Boy will meet Yellow Cab tonight at the stadium at 8 o'clock, when Harold Steffes will take the mound for Fat Boy against Dump Simonds. A victory for Fat Boy will tie team with Kavakos for the second-half title of the Capital City League.

In the nightcap, the Kenilworth girls will play M. P. M. Market at 9:15.

ball. Boudreau eventually recovered the ball and relayed it to Mack at second.

With two on base in the fourth, Bloodworth obliged Smith by striking out, and the Nats similarly muffed scoring chances in other innings. Anderson tripled to the center-field wall with one out in the sixth, but neither Case nor Cramer could get him home. Lewis was safe on Boudreau's fumble with none out in the sixth, but was abandoned on second base.

In the seventh, Bloodworth opened with a single and with one out Pinch-Hitter Welaj walked, but Case and Cramer popped up.

The Nats got two runners on base in the ninth with one out when Bloodworth and Early singled, but Smith was still boss. He disposed of Pinch-Hitter Evans on a foul pop and Case flied out to left field. The Nats were having a horrible time of it.

Portsmouth, Va., July 29 (AP).—Leland Walker pitched seven-hit ball here tonight as the Asheville Tourists defeated the Portsmouth Cubs, 5 to 1. Pat Capri, Verban and Natisin led the Tourists at bat.

U. S. Steel Net Drops Sharply In June Period

By the Associated Press

New York, July 29.—The profits of United States Steel Corporation, reflecting provision for proposed higher taxes, dropped sharply in the second quarter of this year, while production expanded to new high records, well in excess of the totals of World War years.

The big steel company—accounting for more than a third of this country's capacity—reported net profits of $24,814,751 for the three months ended June 30, compared with $36,559,995 in the preceding three months. The total, however, was still well ahead of the $19,201,008 reported for the June quarter of 1940.

Nets $2.13 a Share

The profits for the latest quarter, after preferred dividends, amounted to $2.12 a share on the common stock, but the board of directors again ordered a common dividend of only $1 a share, payable September 20 to stock of record August 20, as in previous recent quarters. This disbursement to common stockholders totals $8,703,252.

Total operating profit for the latest quarter was $64,051,689, nearly three times the $22,009,147 reported for the same period of last year, but deductions of $32,800,000 to allow for Federal income and excess profits taxes, together with other charges, cut this total to less than half.

Shipments of finished steel for the June quarter were 5,101,606 tons, highest for any quarter on record, 3 per cent above the March quarter, and 59 per cent over the June period of last year.

Pay Roll Up Sharply

Average number of employes in the three-month period was 295,047, and the total pay roll was $147,905,290, compared with 240,257, and $100,736,396, respectively, in the same part of 1940.

Operations for the three months averaged at 102.4 per cent of rated capacity.

The company laid out $44,200,000 during the first half of this year for additions and betterments of properties, and as of June 30, last, had expended balances on all authorizations for property additions and replacements of $176,600,000.

Net profits for the first six months came to $61,374,746, against $36,315,003 for the first half of 1940. For the latest half year, total funds set aside to provide for Federal income and excess profits taxes were $44,600,000, and for State, Social Security and other taxes, $30,962,671.

Backlog Is Heavy

Irving S. Olds, chairman of the board, said the corporation's unfilled orders for finished steel equaled six months' operation on the basis of present shipments.

Olds said that direct and indirect defense orders, including shipbuilding, were more than 60 per cent of the total.

Discussing the raw materials, Olds said the scrap situation was serious.

"The shortage of scrap is retarding production of steel today," he said. "Our own position is fairly comfortable. We have, however, exported so much scrap during the last four or five years that there just isn't a very large supply."

Olds explained that the steel corporation, as a result of its many operations, produces a great deal of its own scrap.

"As regards manganese and tin," Olds said, "I don't think anyone knows what will be the effects of the Far Eastern situation on supplies. The situation gets tighter all the time."

Olds said export business in the first half of 1941 was about 10 per cent of the total, as compared with about 20 per cent in the comparable 1940 period. He indicated most of the exports were going to Britain.

Turning to production, Olds estimated the steel corporation ingot capacity at 29,720,000 tons annually. He said there had been no change in the situation as regards expansion of capacity.

Margin Again Raised On Sugar Trading

New York, July 29 (AP).—The sugar futures trading margin was boosted today to $625 a contract on nontrade accounts, effective July 30, on order of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange.

The hike came on the heels of yesterday's increase to $350 a contract on all accounts from the previous $250.

All old contracts not classified by the exchange as "trade" accounts must be backed by the $625 margin by Monday.

While covering both domestic and world contract trading, the stiffer margins were believed to be aimed at speculation in world futures, which have spurted recently on expectations of increased demands.

28% Cut Ordered In Rubber Use, Akron Reports

Akron, Ohio, July 29 (AP).—Akron rubber circles said today the OPM had cut August's allowance consumption of rubber about 28 per cent under June's consumption. They predicted further sharp reductions in available stocks of civilian goods.

The indicated quota would give the industry 61,200 tons to process in August. It has had 68,000 tons this month and had 85,000 in June, the record month for the industry.

A factory, which does a large business in supplying tires for replacements, said its August quota had been set at 71.5 per cent of June consumption. This company said it would have to fall back to five-day production at once, and that layoffs might be necessary.

Structural Steel Orders Spurt 13%

New York, July 29 (AP).—New business booked by structural steel fabricators in June ran 13 per cent ahead of the monthly average for the entire first half of 1941 and the new orders received in those six months were more than double the like 1940 period, the American Institution of Steel Construction reported today.

June orders totaled 245,255 tons compared with 109,744 in June, 1940. The first six months' orders totaled 1,298,432 tons compared with 619,231 in the first half of 1940.

Shipments of fabricated structural steel were 184,095 tons in June compared with 119,087 in June 1940, and the shipments of the first half of this year totaled 1,055,946 tons compared with 655,012 in the first half of 1940.

Dutch Indies-U. S. Trade Gains Sharply

Imports from the Netherlands Indies totaled $169,074,000 last year and were the highest on record, the Commerce Department says. The 1940 total compared with $92,971,000 in 1939. Meanwhile exports from the United Stataes to the Netherlands Indies rose from $35,420,000 in 1939 to $53,751,000 last year.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 29 (AP).—Rye led the way for wheat futures today and converted opening losses of as much as a half cent into net gains up to ⅞ cents.

All deliveries of rye went into new high ground for the season for the third successive session with final quotations 2-2½ cents higher than yesterday. The closing levels were just under the peak prices. Much of the buying of rye was reported due to increased outside participation and the price disparity between this cereal and wheat. The rally in wheat was attributed largely to strength in rye and to reports that price control legislation would be introduced in Congress tomorrow following the President's message on price fixing.

Wheat closed with net gains of ¾-⅞ cents over the previous close; September, 1.07@1.06⅞; December, 1.08⅞@1.08¾. Corn was ⅛@¼ down down; September, 75⅝; December, 78¼. Oats unchanged to ¾ higher. Rye, 2@2½ up. Soybeans, ½@¾ off, and lard declined 7½@10 a hundred pounds.

Relief Rolls Are Halved in 21 Key Cities

By the Associated Press

New York, July 29.—The National Association of Manufacturers, completing a survey of 21 key defense cities, reported today:

"Relief rolls are cut more than half, nearly to the normal number of unemployables and 'chronic relievers'; employment is at the highest rate since 1929; a skilled labor shortage is so acute that in some instances industry is training women and physically handicapped men for work in defense production."

The NAM said its survey substantiated the July 8 report of the National Industrial Conference Board, a research organization, that on June 1 only 3,962,000 were unemployed in the United States. This figure compared with the 3,300,000 unemployed in the busiest days of 1929.

Labor Shortage Acute

"The labor outlook has become so critical," said the NAM, "that in many cities industries now are building up 'employment backlogs' training men for skilled work in the defense factories now in the construction stage.

"Already hampered by labor shortage, industrialists in the larger defense centers anticipate this condition will be twice as bad by the beginning of 1942. Payrolls are expected to double before winter.

"The Glenn L. Martin Co. of Baltimore is indicative of the general situation. At present hiring 800 (more) men weekly, this company must raise its employment rolls from the present figure of 18,000 to 42,000 within the next year to fulfill its assignments under the national defense program.

Cry for More Men

"In the Gulf and Seaboard cities, shipbuilders have expanded training classes to the near-breaking point, and still cry for more men. In the San Francisco Bay district, the survey showed an estimated shortage of from 21,000 to 23,000 workers. Shipbuilders, the survey showed, are experiencing great difficulty in getting suitable men for training.

"This tremendous demand for men for either unskilled construction and industrial work or for traning in the skilled craft branches is eating into the relief and WPA rolls at a terrific rate."

Illustrating the reduction of relief rolls, the NAM offered these cities as examples:

Stocks Close Lower on Late Reaction; 'Verge-of-War' Speech Causes Selling

New York, July 29.—The stock market rally bogged down in spots today after yesterday's bulge was extended moderately in early dealings.

The fact the list, as a whole, had reached the best level since last January, with the rails even exceeding their year's top, inspired some profit selling on the idea the advance was due for at least a temporary correction.

While there were a number of relatively strong performers, losers were in the majority at the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished with a loss of .1 of a point at 44.2 after a combined advance of .7 in the two preceding sessions. Transfers were lively at intervals and volume totaled 962,710 shares compared with 938,350 Monday.

Boardrooms still were cheered by business items, including a batch of good earnings statements, although there were exceptions. In addition mild bullishness remained over the Russian-German war news and the persistence of inflationary symptoms in the domestic economic structure.

On the other hand, the comment of Prime Minister Churchill that American sentiment was "on the very verge of war," together with doubts regarding the Far Eastern situation, served to inspire offerings here and there, brokers said. The desire to await the President's price control recommendations to Congress was seen as a speculative restraint.

Irregularly lower tendencies in recently soaring commodities provided another handicap. World sugar contracts slumped on a second-day boost in margins. Cotton futures fell 95 cents to $1.20 a bale. At Chicago wheat was up ⅜ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel but corn eased ⅛ to ¼ and hogs were off about 15 cents.

Japanese dollar loans backed away after Monday's recovery and other bonds were mixed.

Among stocks U. S. Steel ended off ⅝ of a point at 59⅝ and, after the close, directors disclosed second quarter net of $2.12 a common share against $1.48 in the like 1940 period. The report stressed sharply mounting tax provisions which totaled $52,958,292 compared with $22,603,379 in the first quarter. The board voted a dividend on the junior stock of $1 a share, the same as paid previously.

On the offside were Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Dupont, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, Standard Oil (N. J.), American Telephone, Chesapeake & Ohio and Consolidated Edison.

Crucible Steel common and preferred dropped 2⅞ and 3⅛, respectively, as 6-months' earnings of the company did not come up to some forecasts.

Half-year net for Goodrich of 478 per cent over last year helped put this stock up 1⅝ at a new 1941 peak. Southern Railway, Savage Arms and Texas Corporation also established new highs for the move. Pepsicola, Radio Corporation and Santa edged forward. J. I. Case was up 3. Propping sentiment was the sale of three stock exchange seats for $32,000 each, up $5,000.

In front of a ragged Curb were American Cyanamid "B," Phoenix Securities and Sherwin Williams. Laggards included American Gas, Pantepec and Cities Service. Turnover here was around 154,000 shares versus 143,000 the day before.

I DON'T KNOW IF MY SUPER POWER CAN HELP AT A TIME LIKE THIS, BUT I'LL TRY! MAYBE I COULD HOLD THE TRAIN BACK, BARE-HANDED!

AT THIS MOMENT, OUR OLD FRIEND, SYLVESTER, RESENTS THE NOISY APPROACH OF A BLACK MONSTER. SYLVESTER IS ONLY A SMALL GOAT, BUT HE HAPPENS TO BE LOADED WITH GLUMITE. AND GLUMITE MAKES LITTLE TWINGS OUT OF BIG THINGS!

Listen! with Glynn

If you're a movie or radio fan, you must know about the Jack Benny-Fred Allen feud. You'd think the guys hated each other, so many cracks do they make at each other's expense.

And so it's somewhat paradoxical that tonight when Jack Benny appears as a guest on the "Treasury Hour" series over WJSV at 8, he'll be: First, appearing in Fred Allen's time spot on the air (Allen's sponsor has donated the hour to the Treasury Department for the summer.) Second, Benny will be using Fred Allen's music (Al Goodman's Orchestra). Third, he'll be using Fred Allen's announcer (Larry Elliott). Fourth, also appearing on the show with Benny will be Fred Allen's well known stooges (John Brown, Alan Reed and Minerva Pious.)

Others to appear on the hour-long show will include Bette Davis, in an Arch Oboler dramatic sketch; Claudette Colbert and Don Ameche; "Hit Parade" baritone Barry Wood and Ray Block Choir, and Tyrone Power as master of ceremonies.

But to get back to the Allen-Benny feud—when Fred heard that Benny was to be one of the guests, his remark was in the best feud tradition "With practically my entire show," says Fred, "they have to add six movie stars and a baritone to make Benny sound good."

Contract Bridge

Tricks can be lost other than by poor play. Knowing and following the laws of contract help greatly to cut down penalty losses of this nature. An error which cost two players several important match points is described by a tournament director who is a little uncertain as to the correctness of his decision. It concerns an insufficient bid and a player bidding when barred.

He writes: "We were playing the condensed version of the sixteen-player individual to be found in Maj. Gruenther's book. I was the director." The following sequence took place.

West	North	East	South
1 ♢	Pass	1 NT.	1 ♠-2 ♠
3 ♢	Double	—	—

"The insufficient bid was properly called, and South made his bid sufficient in the lowest range at the same denomination, barring his partner for one round.

"At this point I was called on for a decision. I ruled that the double must be disregarded; that North must be considered as silent for that round, that it was East's bid over three diamonds. My decision was accepted merely because of the diretcor's authority.

"However, West and East did not fancy the decision and felt that they were entitled to a further penalty since the irregularity gave South the opportunity to draw an inference to which he was not legally entitled.

"There was no hint of North's double being a deliberate violation of rules of ethics."

As far as he went in his adjudication, our tournament director did very nicely indeed, but from what his letter says he did not go far enough.

According to the duplicate laws, "if a player makes a call (other than a pass) while barred from the auction, either opponent may elect (1) to avoid the improper call and bar the partner of the offender from further participation in the action, or (2) to apply to the tournament director for a neutral score."

Neutral scores are not given out freely by directors: they are troublesome for the score keepers and often affect the results of disinterested players.

In this case the only justification the director would have for offering a neutral score would be if the penalty or barring South for the duration of the action plainly was inadequate. Frequently directors instruct the play to continue, reserving decision until the board is completed.

Henderson and Knudsen Agree

Passenger car production in August, September and October may be cut even below the 600,000-unit schedule now under consideration, the OPM and the Office Price Control and Civilian Supply intimated yesterday in a joint statement.

The hint of curtailment even greater than the 20 per cent cut now planned followed a luncheon meeting of auto industry representatives, noteworthy in being presided over jointly by the OPM and OPACS chiefs, William S. Knudsen and Leon Henderson.

The two agencies and their directors are in the throes of a "jurisdictional dispute" over which is empowered to order curtailment in auto production and the method by which it shall be done. Despite their joint appearance yesterday, and agreement on the size of the initial reduction in output, it was learned authoritatively that the conflict between OPM and OPACS is no nearer settlement.

It was freely forecast that the issue of which has control of allocating civilian production will have to go to the White House.

Another instance of the conflict was seen yesterday in the announcement of an allocation of aluminum for nondefense purposes—the manufacture of civilian radio sets—by an OPM official. Priorities Director E. R. Stettinius, jr. OPACS contends that such allocations are within its scope, rather than that of OPM.

Her Name . . .?

. . . SHE CAN'T BE BOTHERED—Five-year-old Helen Healy thought getting lost was so much fun she just couldn't be bothered about giving anyone her name or address. Found by police wandering near Post Square, she was taken to the Receiving Home for Children. Despite bribes of food, candy and fruit, she declined to identify herself.

Pitts, Financier, Leaves Jail

G. Bryan Pitts, Washington financier of the 'twenties, was released from Lorton Reformatory yesterday after serving 9½ years of a 14-year sentence.

Former head of the defunct F. H. Smith Co., Pitts was convicted by a District Court jury in 1930 for conspiracy to embezzle five million dollars from his company, a building concern operating in several cities.

His trial brought out evidence of a maze of accounting, of dummy corporations and holding companies and watered stock. Two other members of his corporation, J. H. Edwards, jr., secretary, and C. Elbert Anadale, vice president, also were convicted and given lighter sentences.

Among Pitts' assets were a palatial home in Florida and $500,000 in jewelry belonging to his wife.

For more than a year he remained in District Jail while his case was appealed. Then he was removed to Lorton.

House Rejects Plant Seizure Bill Again

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The House yesterday refused for the second time to approve legislation giving the President power to take over strike-bound defense plants.

The legislation rejected yesterday was a modified version of the original Connally amendment to the bill deferring men of 28 or over from the draft.

Republicans combined with New Dealers to reject by a 255-to-114 vote the conference report recommending the plant seizure power for the President. Most of the support for the conference report came from the conservative Southern Democratic bloc.

Effect of the House action is to send the bill back to conference with instructions to the House conferees to insist on a bill lowering the draft age with no plant seizure or antistrike amendments.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, last night said he believed the Senate would make no further effort to incorporate the plant seizure authorization in the draft age revision bill.

The conference report turned down by the House would have given the President power to take over any plant whenever he found, "after investigation, that there is an interruption of production at such plant, that the national defense program will be unduly impeded or delayed by such interruption and that the exercise of such power and authority is necessary to insure production at such plant in the interest of the national defense."

The provision was opposed by both the A. F. of L. and C. I. O., though it was milder in language than the amendment originally approved by the Senate and far less drastic than the antistrike amendments to the draft age bill defeated in the House July 10.

Yesterday's action by the House was hailed by the C. I. O. as "a most gratifying response" to its demand "that no legislation be adopted to destroy labor's rights under the pretense of aiding national defense."

Electric Strike Slows Down Naval Strike

By the Associated Press

Construction work on a $17,000,000 expansion program at the Brooklyn Navy Yard was slowed down yesterday by a city-wide strike of New York Electrical Workers, while in Chicago the first discordant note crept into negotiations between the Railroad Brotherhoods and the carriers' managers.

Capt. E. B. Smith, of the Navy Yard, said that 100 A. F. L. electrical workers had walked off their jobs, causing 700 men in other building trades to halt work. Another 2,000, he said, would be affected should the strike continue.

Rear Admiral E. J. Marquart, commandant of the yard, appealed to the union late in the day to send the men back.

The union said that 8,000 skilled craftsmen were involved throughout New York City. The strike was voted after the Consolidated Edison Co., the city's leading power and light disributor, had refused a demand to employe 600 union members on a plant construction job.

A statement by Bert M. Jewell president of the Railway Department of the A. F. of L., indicated that all was not serene in the Chicago rail negotiations. Jewell said that the union "emphatically and finally" refused to agree to any changes in working rules proposed by the rail managements.

Carrier representatives had insisted that working rules be discussed before negotiations began on the union's demands for wage increases. The working rules, they said, were designed to reduce operating costs and give management more authority in work assignments.

In Key West, Fla., striking A. F. of L. laborers who had tied up work on two million dollars of naval construction voted to accept a temporary compromise settlement of their wage dispute and return to work provided the contractors release 150 Negroes who had been newly hired.

A group of civic leaders had proposed that the strikers accept wage increases of 10 cents an hour, return to work and submit to arbitration their original request for increases to 62½ cents an hour. The present scale is 40 cents.

Word came from St. Louis meanwhile, that 2,700 striking A. F. L. building trade workers would return to work at the 89 million dollar small arms ammunition plant whepever the contractor wanted them.

In Madison, Ill., a strike of 800 American Car & Foundry Co. workers went into its second day.

THE OBEDIENT MILK. Yes, that's right and the heat hasn't got us much. Wesley Whitehouse at the Lotus has a bottle of trained milk. He pours out part of it, then says "Stop!" and the milk backs right up. When he barks "Go!" the milk rushes out of the bottle again. Wesley is also stretching yards of silk clear across the Lotus dance floor, cutting it up with a pair of hedge shears and putting it together again with magic words. How he does it? Well, the more you look—the more you look . . . The "South Sea Fantasies" is quivering into its second week . . . Joan Hope gives a jiv treatment to "Asleep In the Deep." Sailors, beware!

LOVELY Kathleen O'Dea, of "We Two," opening at the Anchor Room on Friday

Eileen Read, dancing on the Shoreham Terrace, was a dancing teacher in Elizabeth, N. J., at the ripe age of 11. She was discovered by Rudy Vallee, later appeared in "Leave It To Me."

MUSIC IN THE AIR. The high wind that swept the town lately, was a bit tornadic on the Starlight Roof. It blew all of the sheet music of Don Wislon's Orchestra clear down onto Pennsylvania. But even stranger is the fact that every bit of it was recovered, though it took some careful looking around for a couple of blocks by the Wilson musicians and the aid of benevolent passers-by.

HILDRETH HARRISON, one of our town's smarter pianists, has joined Bob Stickney at the Silver Fox. This means a highly effective combination of piano with novachord in novelty numbers. Hildreth has played at a number of Washington clubs.

PARLEY'S PEPPERY PARLEZ-VOUS. For years "Parley" Eaton was the most subdued member of Milton Davis' Rainbow Room Band. He sat in a corner, played his sax and strictly minded his own business . . . But there's a change in Parley. He's just blossomed out as one of the pepperiest singers ever. Intersperses his vocalistics with wild saxophone tootling. It all started when he experimented with the "Hut-Sut Song" and reaped an ovation.

Laczi, cymbalonist of the Plymouth, tells us that "Intermezzo" was carved right out of Strauss' "Til Eulenspiegel." Still, that's one way of popularizing "Til Eulenspiegel."

SONGS AND BACKGROUNDS. "Noches de Ronda," played so beautifully by Eddie Chase in Burt's Trans-Lux, is a favorite Chilean song. Eddie picked it up when he visited Chile a couple of years ago, is the only musician in town who plays it . . . Glen Echo's Adele Van and Ken Foy are doing a skit of "The Reluctant Dragon. They planned to produce it at just the moment when most of the town's movie-goers have seen the picture . . . The reason that the King Cole Room's Vincent de la Garza sings "Green Eyes" every night has something to do with his being seen around with a Latin-Swiss lass with green eyes. He'll be trying "Swiss Miss" next.

WEIRD FACTS. Louise La Tour, charming looker-into-the-future of the Pall Mall Room, says that a certain way to get into trouble is to become the owner of a peacock. After her father bought a pair of beauteous white peacocks, she says he lost all his money within a year . . . That travelled person, Van Taylor, of Restaurant "823," says that a drink called the "Exterminator" (compounded of tequila, vodka and kummel, if you please) is popular down near the Mexican border.

Tommy Johnson, the Neptune Room's young and goodlooking swing organist, is rolling up a big following with his original "jive" technique. It's gotten to the stage where his fans cheer as he mounts the Neptune organ stage.

FOUR MEN ARE NINE. Though they're four in number, the Senators who'll arrive in Mayfair next Monday, have the playing power of nine men because of their exceptional versatility. Bill Harrington plays piano, accordion and trombone. Henry Davis doubles on violin and bass. Larry Lloyd plays saxophone and clarinet. Bob Roberts is equally dexterous with bass and violin. The Senators have been featured in such ultra spots as the Hotel New Yorker, Barney Gallant's and Jack Dempsey's in New York, and the Pelican Club at Palm Beach.

OSCAR'S DECORATIONS. Oscar, of the Hi Hat, seems to wear a new lapel decoration every few weeks, depending on what particular good cause, from the Community Chest to the C. I. C., is being pushed. His latest is a strip of red, white and blue enamel that looks exactly like a ribbon.

SIPPING 'N' SUPPING. The "tartar steak" special at the Lounge Riviera will give you strength to do the most furious conga. It's mixed with raw egg . . . The duck chop suey at the Casino Royal is nothing less than splendificent. Good enough for a mandarin . . . The Harrington Tavern takes great pride in its mint juleps, tall and frosty, and made according to an old Kentucky recipe . . . Hogate's combination of shrimp and crab meat cooked Norfolk style preserves the natural flavor of these deep sea delicacies . . . The hot corn bread at O'Donnell's Farmhouse is the perfect complement to their fried chicken . . . For "something different" in a cocktail, try the refreshing "rum old-fashioned" at the Madrillon.

"The Wabash Cannon Ball" is not the name of a song. It's one of those dizzy square dances that create such a fun carnival at Kavakos' Grill on Tuesdays and Fridays.

"PIGGY NIGHT" is on again tonight at River Bend. This weekly party is one of the most successful novelty events ever started around Washington, has been going on for a couple of years. For one tiny dollar you can eat all you can hold, drink beer with never a thought of a check, dance to George Stein's rhythms all evening.

GYPSY JIVE. Rodd Raffell's Nightingale band is playing a group of tunes taken from light operas, most of them in the gypsy metier, and arranged in modern jive style. Among them you'll recognize "Gypsy Sweetheart" and "Giannina Mia."
